SENATOR WAGNER of New York, putting through the Senate a resolution ordering investigation of unemployment, makes this important statement:

"We may as well determine right here that we are going to wage relentless war until we abolish involuntary idleness as surely as we abolish involuntary servitude."

THE state owes no man a living. But it does owe every man work if he is willing to work, and pay that will enable him to live decently.

Some Republicans taking the unemployment of others calmly say, "There is politics in Wagner's resolution." What of it? There was politics in the tariff that built our industries. There is politics in every public question. If Senator Wagner sticks to his fight and wins it, he will be remembered when many "Republican statesmen" are forgotten.

WHAT is the finest epitaph you ever read? Which would you like to have and DESERVE?

The epitaph of the unknown French soldier under the Arc De Triomphe is the finest written recently. That of the great King of Persia beginning "I Am Cyrus, O, Man," is perhaps the most magnificent. That of Napoleon under the gilded dome of the Invalides, telling how the great general wished his dust to rest "among the French people, that I have loved so much" and of whom he killed so many, is high sounding.

ONE that any man might envy, is on the tomb of old Baron Von Stein, near the German rock from which he took his name. Part of it reads:

HEINRICH FRIEDRICH KARL, IMPERIAL BARON VON UND ZUM STEIN.

The list of his knightly race, which had ruled on the Lahn for seven hundred years;

Humble before God, high-hearted before men, an enemy of untruth and of injustice.

"I have a desire to depart and to be with Christ."

Happy the man who earns a noble epitaph as Von Stein earned his, freeing serfs, uniting Germany against Napoleon.

PEDRO REYES, Mexican bandit, supposed to have accumulated 100,000 pesos and killed many men, had his ideas about

MRS BERNERDINE HALLEWELL

"I'll kill you first and then kill myself," is the threat Mrs. Bernerdine Hallewell says her husband, Philip Hallewell, made several times recently and she fears for her safety. In a bill of particulars filed in support of her divorce action against her husband, who lives in East Orchard avenue, Bellevue, Mrs. Hallewell said he struck her, insulted her, and smashed equipment in her beauty shop at 3216 Brighton road.

LINDY BARS FUELLESS MOTOR BACKER

WASHINGTON, March 7.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's plane was still in its hangar at Bolling Field this morning, and Col. Lindbergh himself was secluded in the Racquet Club, neither confirming nor denying reports from Baltimore that he is planning to enter Johns Hopkins Hospital for a rest.

The capital has seen nothing of the trans-Atlantic flier since he swooped out of the misty dawn yesterday morning, completing the fastest aerial round-trip to Scott Field, near St. Louis, on record. When he arrived at the field, after flying all night, Lindbergh said he was tired and wanted a rest. He was taken to the club, and there he has remained secluded in his room.

Among those who endeavored to see Lindbergh was D. Barr Peat, of Pittsburgh, said to be a business associate of Lester J. Hendershot, the Pittsburgh inventor, who is reputed to have evolved a new type of motor that requires no fuel.

The flying colonel's next public engagement is scheduled for March 19, when he goes to New York to receive the Woodrow Wilson foundation peace prize, amounting to $25,000. Two days later he will return to the capital to be decorated with the congressional medal of honor by President Coolidge.

His associates are as uncommunicative as the colonel himself con-

$25,000 FOR HER DANCE TOE

Virginia L. White, 16, was awarded a verdict of $25,000 against the Pittsburgh Railways Company by a jury in Common Pleas Court today for the loss of the great toe on her right foot because, among other reasons, it interfered with her dancing.

Her counsel, in filing the suit, claimed only $15,000.

On January 23, 1925, Virginia was struck by a street car in Murray avenue, between Lilac and Loretta streets, while she was en route to the Roosevelt Public School. As a result of the accident it was necessary to amputate the toe.

The girl, a daughter of Landon C. White, lived in Pittsburgh at that time, but since had removed to Huntington, W. Va. Her attorney, A. M. Oliver, claimed damages for suffering, humiliation and because it hampered her in dancing.

TELLS ALL; BEGINS TERM

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

(Copyright, 1928, by International News Service.)

PAINESVILLE, O., March 7.—Smoking one cigaret after another, Velma West, the blonde flapper "hammer slayer," for the first time told her own story of the murder of her husband and of her life, hopes, fears and ambitions, in a remarkable interview with this writer in the Lake county jail just before she departed today for the Ohio Reformatory for Women to serve a term of life imprisonment.

The interview, lasting more than two hours, was virtually a confession on Velma's part. The only other person present was Sheriff Edward Rasmussen, who solved the murder of T. Edward West, the 28-year-old husband whom Velma literally hammered to death because he would not allow her to attend a bridge party. It was Velma's story just as she would have told it on the witness stand had her case gone to trial.

Q.—(By this reporter)—Why did you kill your husband?

A.—I lost all control of myself. I hit him with the hammer again and again. I don't know how many times. I did not know what I was doing. It was dreadful. The memory of that tragic occurrence will always remain with me.

Q.—Was the murder premeditated? Did you have the idea of killing him in the back of your head?

NOT PREMEDITATED

A.—No, it all happened so suddenly. One word led to another. He struck me. I picked up the claw hammer and hit him on the head. He fell back on the bed. I hit him again. He fell to the floor. I lost my head. I hit him again and again. Finally he lay quiet. I went to the dresser table and took a ball of twine and tied his hands and feet so that he could not come back after me. I used my finger nail clipper to cut the twine. I had bought the twine that afternoon in Painesville to fix some draperies. I saw a bandana handkerchief on the dresser table and I tied it across his face.

Velma's slim form quivered as she talked. She inhaled her cigaret. She paused. Evidently the subject nauseated her. She seemed in a daze. She came out of it and replied to this question:

"What was the quarrel about?"

"About my girl friend, Mabel Young."

It was to the home of Miss Young, a pretty 24-year-old stenographer in Cleveland, that Velma dashed in her green roadster immediately after the crime. Her husband, Velma

Crane, Actor, Dies

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 7.—William H. Crane, 83, illustrious stage comedian of the old school of actors, died here today following a brief illness.

The veteran actor, who quit the stage in his seventy-third year after treading the boards for 54 years, had lived in retirement here since 1918.

His wife was at his bedside when the last curtain was rolled down on a colorful career.

Beginning his acting at a salary of "nothing a week," Crane was credited with having accumulated one of the largest fortunes ever made by an individual on the stage.

He was born at Leicester, Mass., April 30, 1845, the son of Amaziah and Mary Crane. He received most of his schooling in Boston, where his mimicking of pupils and teachers won him recognition as an impersonator, but played havoc with his deportment card.

Crane acted all sort of comic characters in "The Senator," "The American Minister," "The Governor of Kentucky," "His Wife's Father," "Father and the Boys,"

Lewis Tells Senate That—

JOHN L. LEWIS,

President of United Mine Workers of America, first witness at the Senate mine probe in Washington today.

"AMONG the first companies to abrogate their wage agreements with the union miners were the Consolidated Coal Company, of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is a controlling factor, and the Pittsburgh Coal Company, which is generally recognized in the financial world as a Mellon company.

"Due to its large financial resources and political affiliations, the Pittsburgh Coal Company was able to inaugurate a non-union drive in a big way to de-unionize its coal mines.

"Wholesale employment of coal and iron police, detectives and deputy sheriffs followed.

"Former employes were evicted from their homes and a reign of terror and intimidation inaugurated that has excelled for brutality and lawlessness any union busting endeavor this nation has witnessed in recent years."

JONES CRIES "TRICK" IN COAL RECEIVERSHIP

John H. Jones, president of the Bertha-Consumers Company, today termed the action of an unnamed company in forcing the Bertha concern into receivership as "one of the most dastardly tricks one business concern has ever played upon another."

The identity of the unnamed company was revealed as the Pittsburgh Coal Company by court records, which showed that it took judgment on Monday and entered execution on a suit it had begun December 19 against the Bertha-Consumers Company.

Coal men, hunting for an explanation of the Pittsburgh Coal Company's action, pointed out that Jones, representing the Bertha concern, attended the "peace conference" in Washington on December 13, 14 and 15, at the call of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, which J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and leaders of other strong coal organizations in the Pittsburgh district refused to heed.

When this was mentioned to Morrow he denied that the act of his company in pushing its claims had anything to do with the difference in opinion over the Washington conference.

The Bertha-Consumers Company will do its own collecting of delinquent accounts in the future. In Federal Court today, Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson authorized John H. Jones and F. E. Powers, receivers, to cancel the company's agreement with the Manufacturers' Finance Company, of Baltimore. This contract gave the finance company the right to purchase such accounts of the coal company as might be acceptable to the finance company. The court order affects only accounts created prior to the receivership, of which the finance company holds about $260,000.

MINE SHUT DOWN

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., March 7.—(AP.)—The Cresaps mine of the Consolidated Fuel Company, employing 250 men, was closed down temporarily today. C. A. Miller, superintendent, said the receivership action against the Bertha Consumers Coal Company, of which Consolidated is a subsidiary, was responsible for the shutdown.

5 Youths Confess Killing

Five Russellton youths who, according to police, last night confessed to beating Michael Yarsavage, 42, of Nant-y-Glo, Pa., whose body was found yesterday in Walters Chapel Cemetery, Rural Ridge, were taken to the scene today by county detectives to check up on their story.

"We were out to be up scabs," the youths told Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren. "We didn't mean to kill him."

The five, with fence palings, took turns [illegible] beating Yarsavage, according to their statement. They were surprised, they said, when they learned the next day the man had died.

The accused youths, Fred [illegible]onetti, 19; Joseph Bassitti, 20; Joseph Micklow, 18; Samuel Koneski, 19, and his brother, John, 20, all are said to be sons of striking coal miners.

Relating how he and three other employes of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation had been set upon by a crowd of men in front of Justice of the Peace Hugh Fishwick's office at Hays last night, Private Omer Welshons, a coal and iron policeman, reported the affair to G. F. Osler, vice president of the coal company, this morning. He bore marks of having been badly beaten about the head and face and said hospital attaches told him several ribs had been cracked in the melee. LEWIS QUOTES LETTER

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Coolidge regarded the Jacksonville agreement between the coal operators and the United Mine Workers, providing for the payment of a stipulated wage scale until March 31, 1927, as a binding contract, and on being informed in November, 1925, that the Pittsburgh Coal Company and certain other companies had broken it, expressed profound regret and suggested that the United Mine Workers seek redress in the courts.

"Faithful compliance with agreements between employers and employes is the sole hope of collective bargaining—a principle now accepted in American life," said the President to oJhn L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, in a leter dated December 5, 1925, which Lewis read today at the opening session of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee's investigation of the coal strike inPennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

Refused to Intervene

President Coolidge further stated in his letter that a few months previously government officials had been requested by some of the operators to secure a revision of the Jacksonville agreement downward, but had refused, because, as the President said, "they rightly decided that any alteration must be mutually agreed to by the parties to it and that it would be wrong for them to intervene to alter established contracts."

Lewis urged the following remedies to stabilize the highly overdeveloped coal industry:

"1—The uneconomic mines must be closed and closed for good.

"2—Unscientific freight rates must be wiped off the tariff books.

"3—The perpetual strife and conflict within the industry must give way to labor relations on a par with those which have achieved comparative peace in other trades.

"4—Above all, the American Constitution must mean what it says in every coal field of America."

Lewis was asked by several members of the Senate committee why the United Mine Workers had not taken the abrogation of the Jacksonville agreement into the courts. He answered that it was being considered, but that certain difficulties stood in the way, chief among them being the difficulty of posting the enormous bond that would be required to indemnify the operators against loss in case the United Mine Workers' contention should not be sustained by the courts.

Lewis, the first witness called, took the stand with a 50-page typewritten statement, of which he had read scarcely one-fourth, because of numerous disgressions and questions, when the noon recess was taken.

A large part of the testimony of the forenoon related to the charge that the railroad companies and their officials have conspired to depress the labor cost of coal produced by union mine labor.

"The over-developed condition of the bituminous coal industry," said Lewis, "has made it an easy prey for the railroads, public utilities and other large consumers of coal. In 1925, seizing the demoralized state of coal as an opportunity to further nonunion working relationships, Gen. W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, began to let it be known that it was the desire of that railroad that the miners' wages should be substantially reduced.

Charges Conspiracy

"Not content with conducting a campaign to depress prices on the Pennsylvania Railroad, Gen. Atterbury began to reach out and use his influence with other railroad heads to depress coal prices on their lines. In the actual game of depressing coal prices, the Baltimore and Ohio also assumed leadership in the various coal fields it served. The American people, as well as Congress itself, is well acquainted with the anti-trade union tactics of Gen. Atterbury. The industrial relations commission, appointed by the late President Wilson, clearly established the Atterbury attitude

BULLETS ROUT TRIO

J. F. Dornan "shot it out" with three bandits when they walked into his store at Fifth and Penn avenues, Point Breeze, late last night—and when the powder smoke cleared away he was alone on the battlefield, a victor, surrounded by a wreckage of shattered glass where bullets struck, while the bandits were fleeing in terror in an automobile.

Alone when the thugs entered the store, Dornan apparently was helpless when one of them pointed a gun at him, ordering the storekeeper to throw up his hands, as the others went toward the cash register.

BANDITS SURPRISED

But, Dornan was prepared. He whipped out a gun and opened fire on the bandits. Surprised and terror-stricken, the gang was too amazed to fight back against the enraged storekeeper. They made a mad scramble for the door and dashed into a waiting automobile. In a moment they were off at high speed in a hail of bullets, driving toward East Liberty.

Dornan lives at 6822 Thomas boulevard.

He gave police a good description of the gang. The fugitives eluded capture.

It is not known if any of Dornan's bullets struck one of the thugs.

TWO ROBBERS ESCAPE

Two armed robbers who held up T. A. Madden in his confectionery store at Lang and Hamilton avenues late last night escaped after taking $22.40 from the cash register. The holdup men escaped in a stolen automobile.

cerning future plans. Some of them said they had heard the reports from Baltimore that he was contemplating entering the hospital for a rest and medical examination and considered them "probably authentic." Others denied that the flying colonel had any such intentions.

Col. Lindbergh has secured the seclusion and quiet he wants on the occasion of this visit to Washington. He left instructions that his telephone was not to be rung and that no messages were to be delivered to him. Cabinet officers, trying to get in touch with the young flier, had no more success than newspaper reporters.

"Col. Lindbergh is not in to anyone," was the message given one cabinet officer trying to get in communication with him.

RUNS FROM HAT SHOP WITH $100

Dashing from the Sample Hat Shop, 220 Oliver avenue, with a box containing $100 cash and some checks, Mrs. Bertha Burns, 36, of 201 Dennison avenue, was captured after a brief chase by Mounted Patrolman A. M. Hein yesterday. Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today held her for court on a larceny charge.

Miss Martha Hehr, clerk, noticed Mrs. Burns cover the box with some magazines and start from the store. She followed, caught her in Oliver avenue, and recovered the box with contents intact. Then the patrolman arrived and chased Mrs. Burns to Liberty avenue, where she was arrested. Police said the woman recently was released from prison after serving a term on a shoplifting charge.

FIND MAN DEAD IN HALLHAY

Gerald Armstrong, 35, of 1844 Jancey street, was found dead this morning in a hallway adjoining the confectionery store of Mrs. Ella Riegler, 7341 Butler street. Acute alcoholism was recorded as the cause of death.

Mrs. Riegler told Deputy Coroner Thomas C. Baird that Armstrong had gone to sleep in her store last night and not wishing to turn him out in the cold, allowed him to stay in the hallway, when she closed her place for the night. A contusion over the dead man's eye and blood on his lips were thought to have been received in falling.

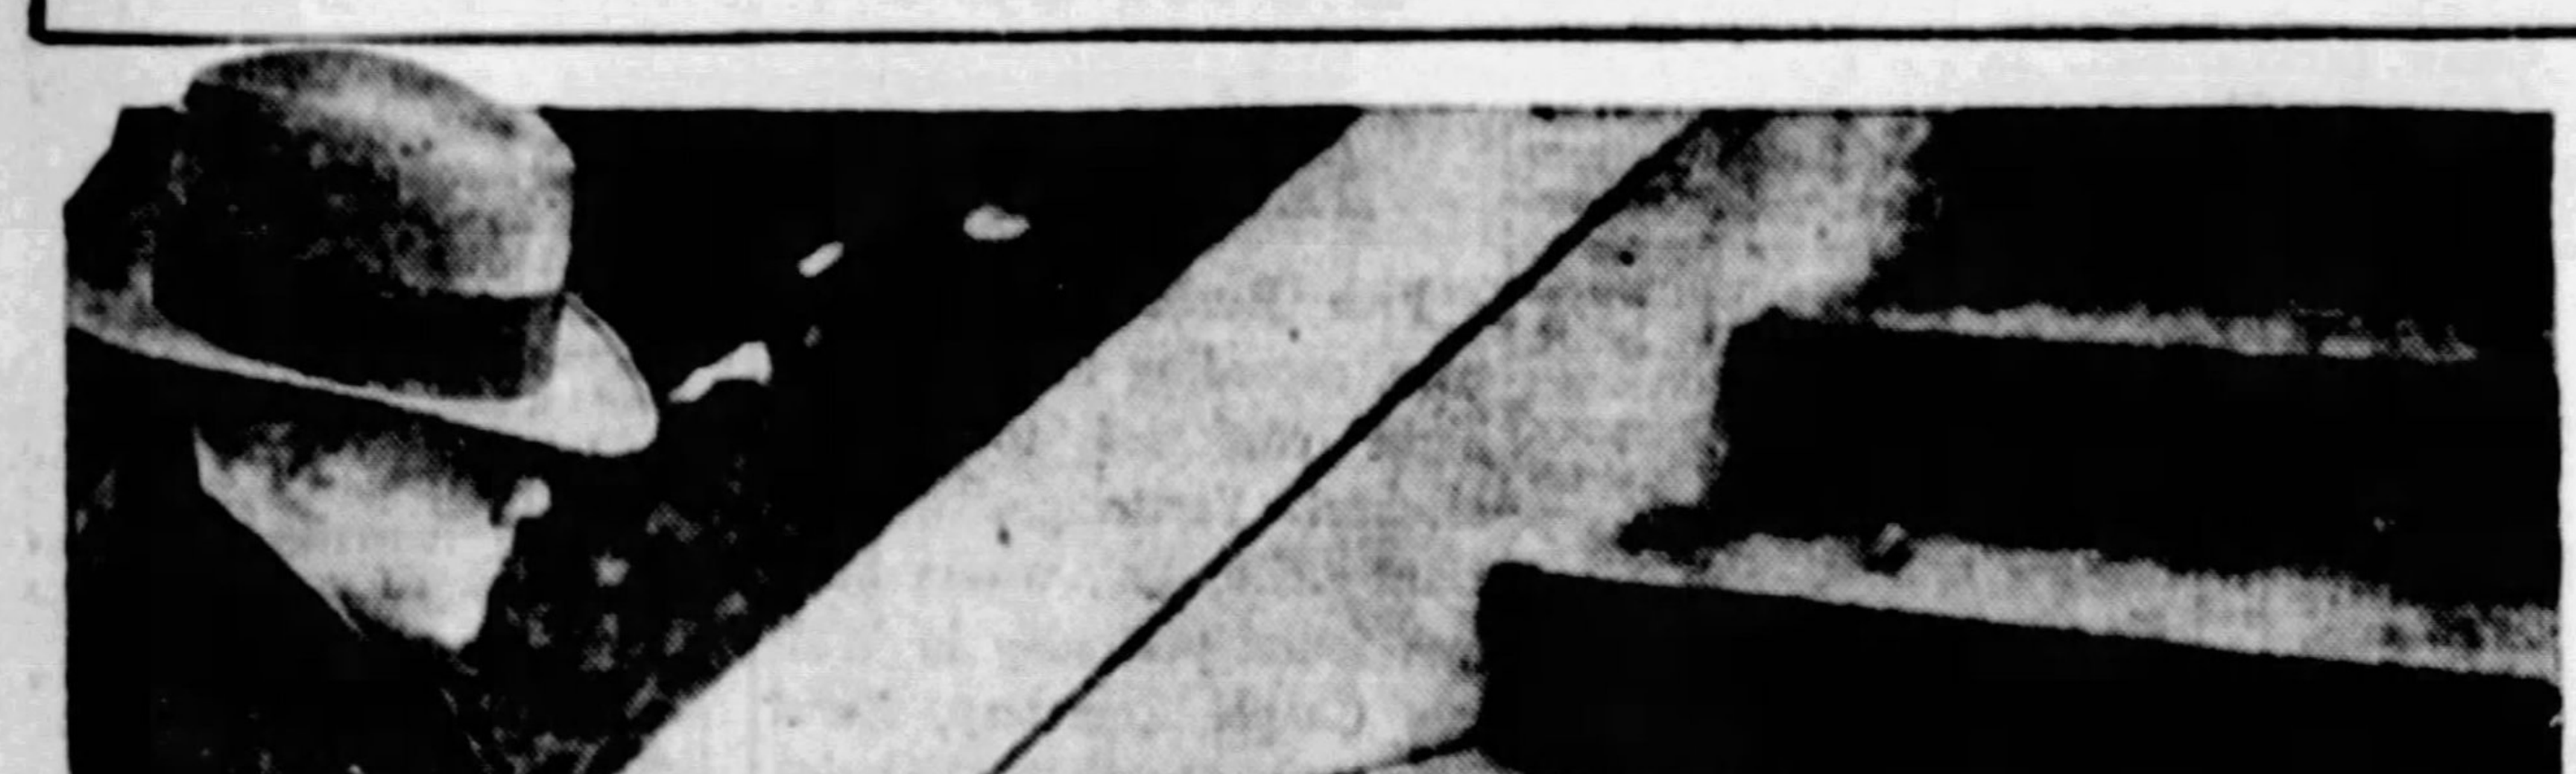
State police from Library were called after the fight to escort the coal company party back to Mollenauer mine of the Terminal Corporation.

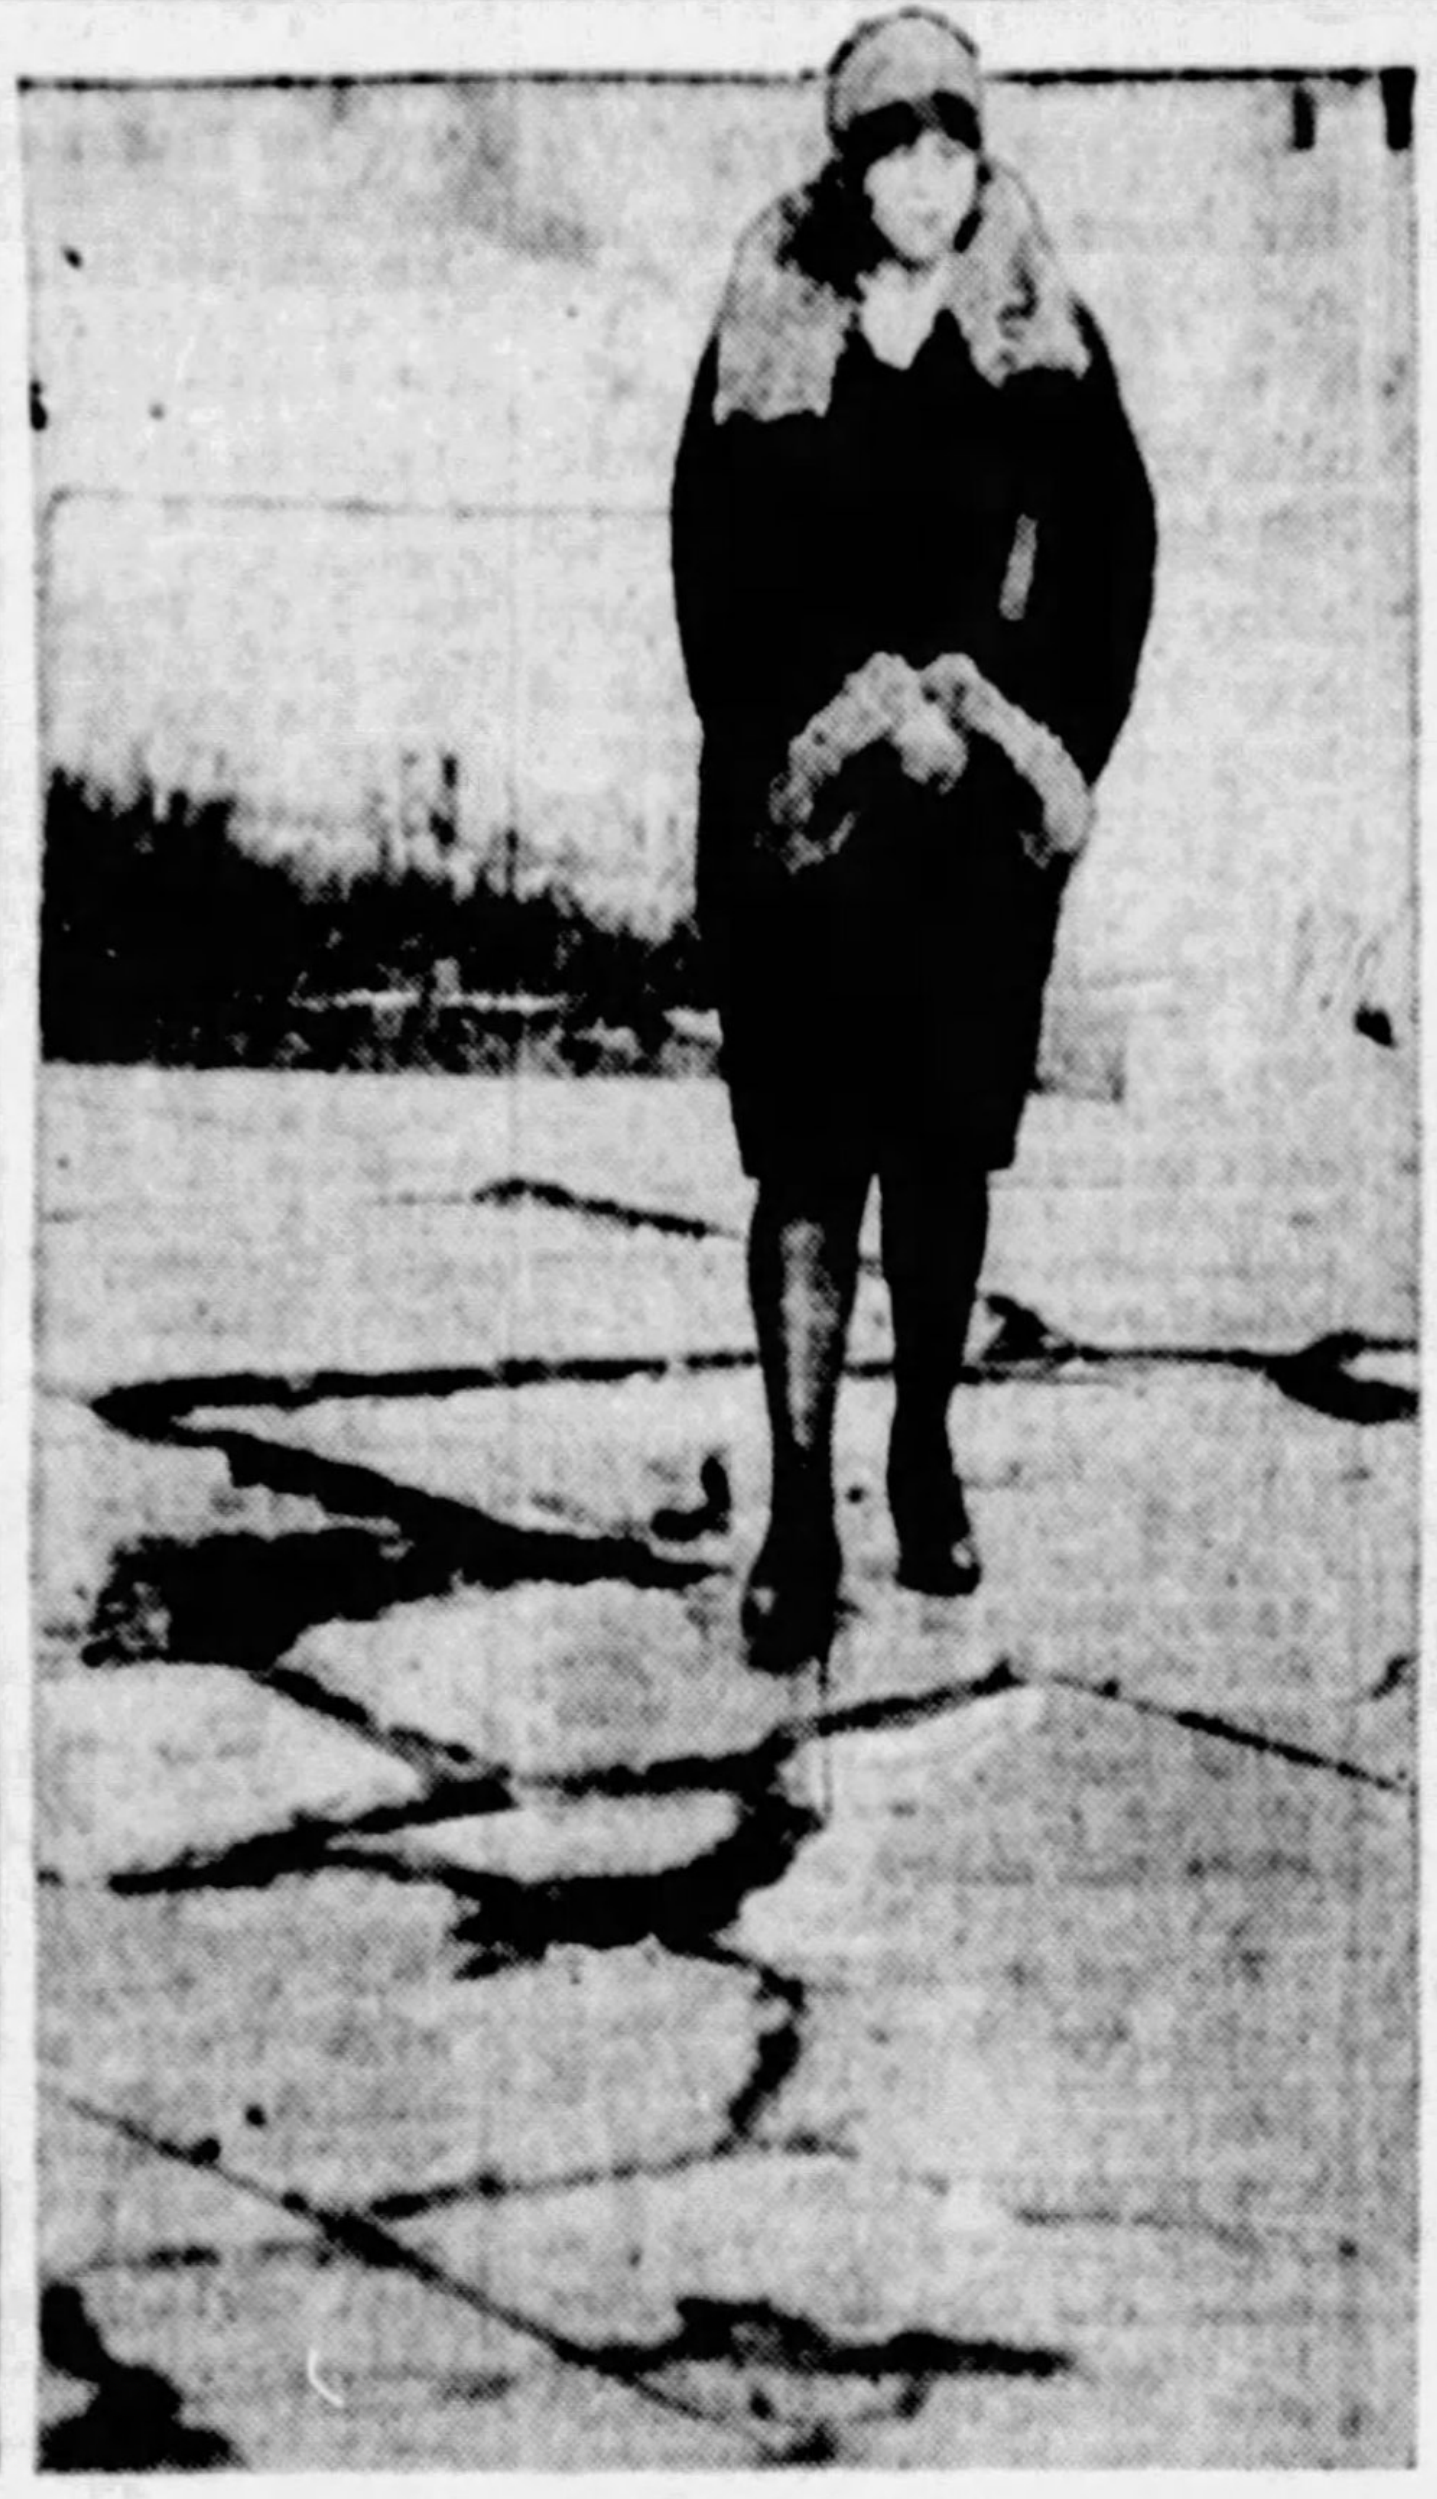
Welshons was beaten on the head; both his eyes were blackened; his nose was broken and several ribs were fractured. He was taken to the hospital then removed to the Mollenauer police barracks,

POOR CEMENT WORK -:- AT LANGLEY HIGH -:- CAUSES REAL MENACE



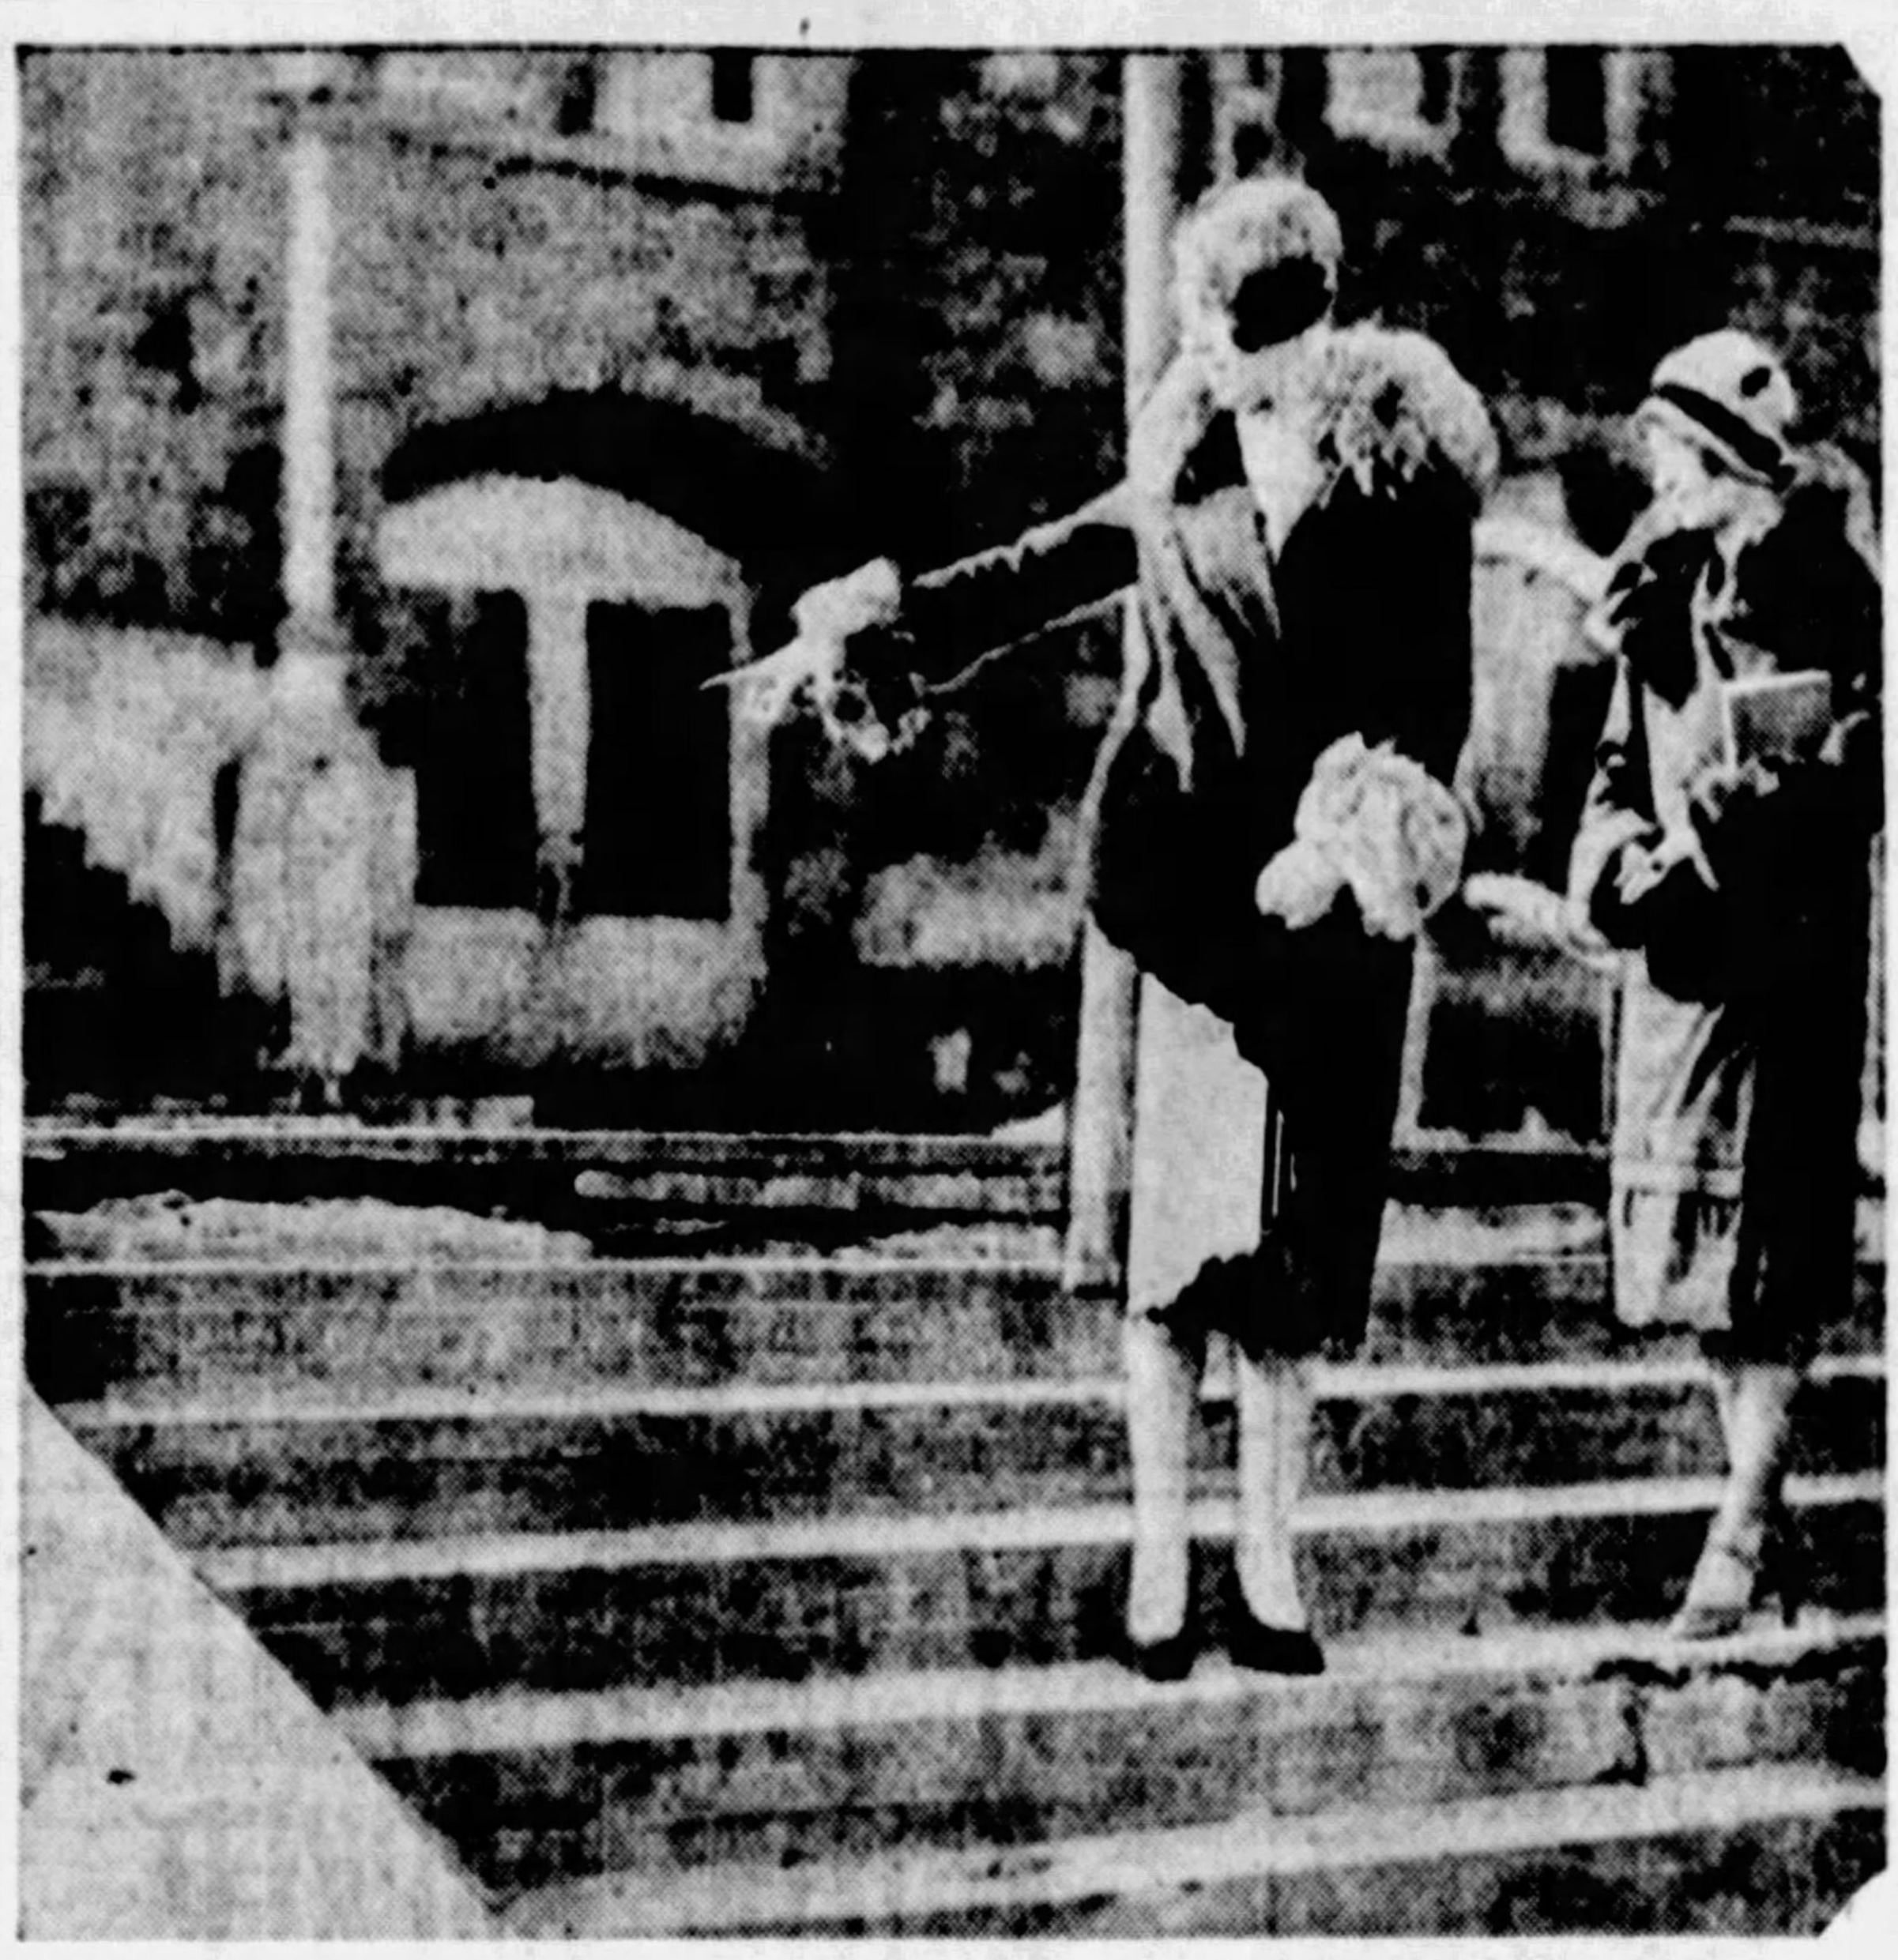
DANGEROUS

This is a sample of the decay in evidence on the steps in front of the Langley High School. Although not yet five years old, the steps are falling apart and constitute a menace to students going up or down them. James McCartney, one of the students, indicated one of the soft spots in the cement work which had worn away.



FALLING APART

Walk in front of the main entrance of the Langley High, although constructed less than five years ago, is full of holes and cracks. It has the apearance of the pavement of an old ruin.



DISINTEGRATING

Huge chunks of cement are falling out of the Langley High School steps, as these pupils are showing. An attempt at patch work was made a year ago, the principal explained, but it didn't do. No information could be obtained at the school regarding efforts to repair the steps and walk.

VELMA "CONFESSES" ALL; STARTS SERVING LIFE TERM

said, had been intercepting letters she had received from Mabel and they had quarreled about that. Velma said Mabel was her "dearest girl chum—I loved her as a sister."

Q.—What were your feelings after you had killed your husband and were motoring to Mabel's bridge party?

A.—I was frightened. I drove furiously. My mind was in a whirl. I stopped only once on the 25-mile trip. That was at Wickliffe where I stopped to buy a package of cigarets.

Q.—Is it a fact that you were "the life of the party" that night?

A.—No. I was as nervous as could be. I did play and sing at the party because the girls who were present insisted that I should. I am a good piano player and have a nice contralto voice and they forced me to sing, although my mind was dazed and my heart heavy. I remember they asked me to sing the song, "I Can't Believe You're in Love With Me." I went to the roadster and got the sheet music and came back and sang it. I certainly wasn't lively that evening. I could hardly eat.

Velma accepted another cigaret.

Q.—Does your conscience now trouble you?

A. (very softly)—It does. I think of it all the time. I can hardly sleep some nights. I have nightmares and the terrible thing that happened in our bungalow that fatal afternoon often comes to me in my sleep and I am driven frantic.

When this reporter first asked Velma why she killed her husband, she said: "He said something that made me mad. He was condemning Mabel Young."

NO CULT MEMBER

Q.—(By this reporter) — Were you a member of any cult?

A.—I never knew what the word cult meant until the other day when I read it in the Cleveland newspaper. I was not.

Velma said she did not want to talk about Mabel Young because the newspaper stories "almost killed my mother." She was handed a four-page typewritten statement made to the sheriff by Miss Young. Velma read it carefully, inhaling her cigaret all the while, and then, asked how much of it was true, replied:

"Only part of it."

Q.—You are hot tempered, are you not?

A.—Yes, but not as hot tempered as my husband was.

She charged that West had frequently struck her. The first time he hit her, she declared, was while they were on their honeymoon, only a month after they had eloped. She said she had witnesses to that.

Velma was asked just how sophisticated she was. For instance, did she like liquor as well as she enjoyed cigarets?

"I used to drink a little at parties," she admitted. "I would take about six or eight drinks a night at a party."

Asked to comment on the ultra-flappers of today, she thought for a while and replied:

"This present jazz age is all wrong. Too many girls are living too fast a life. They do too much drinking and petting. I will admit I've spooned a bit with the boys but it's not the thing to do."

"I would tell them: Be sure and marry the right kind of a man. Life with the wrong kind of a man can be a torture."

Asked if she had any regrets, her lips quivered and she said:

"Oh, how I have wished I could turn the clock back."

Q.—Do you believe in a hereafter—a heaven and a hell?

A.—I think there is a heaven but I don't believe there is a hell. I think we pay for our sins on this earth. You see, I don't know much about religion as I was only baptized since I came to the jail, by Rev. Wyckoff of the Methodist Episcopal Church. But I am reading my Bible and I am getting a lot of consolation from it."

She said she intends to "Go and sin no more."

She remarked that the best book she has ever read was entitled "Beyond," written by John Galsworthy.

PITIED RUTH SNYDER

She had read the newspapers a great deal since she had been incarcerated. She was intensely interested in the Ruth Snyder case. She thought it was a "shame" that the Sing Sing authorities would not allow Ruth to wear the dress she wanted to wear when she was to be executed. She, Velma, had often visualized herself as in Ruth Snyder's place.

"I hope when I get to the Marysville Reformatory that I will be put among the most refined of the prisoners," she said. "I want to work and forget. I want to settle down. I'd like to get an outdoor job at Marysville. My lawyers tell me they need a woman to drive a light delivery truck and I'm going to try for that job."

She's going to take her banjo ukulele along. She wondered if they would take her gray coat away from her and make her wear blue denim instead of the black knee-length silk dresses she now affects.

"Do you think you'll spend all your life in prison?" she was asked.

"No. I think I'll get out in about eight years. At least that's what my lawyers think. I'm not worrying about that, though. I have committed a crime and I think I should be punished. If I could, I would not walk out a free woman today because I don't believe it would be right. I must pay the price. You see, I'm going to try and be good now. There are no sins on my soul now because I am a new person since I was baptized."

Velma said she would not have been in her present predicament had her environment been different. Had she, for instance, used her ability as a singer in some church choir instead of at gin-parties, things might have been different. She remarked at this point that if she gets out of jail in eight years she will be 29.

"Will you marry again?"

"I never will," she declared emphatically.

"Is it true you are a man hater?"

"No, if it was I never would have married Eddie."

"Do you still love the memory of Eddie?"

Chokingly the answer came: "I do."

"Was his murder premeditated on your part?"

"No no indeed. I never thought of such a thing."

The slim little girl-slayer trembled again at the mention of the crime. She tossed her sixth cigaret away and nervously clasped and unclasped her hands. Her blue eyes were clouded and troubled. She bowed her blonde, marcelled head and looked steadily at the floor. She was thinking hard. When she looked up a tear or two slid down her pale cheeks.

There didn't seem much else to say. The prison clock ticked loudly. The big, kindly sheriff took out his handkerchief and blew his nose.

"Come, Velma," he said, gently. "You've got to get ready for Marysville."

And America's latest jazz-age slayer began packing up her belongings, her powder puff, lipstick, mirror and those other little things girls carry in vanity cases.

Mrs. West, accompanied by deputy sheriffs, left by automobile for the state institution shortly before 7:30 a. m.

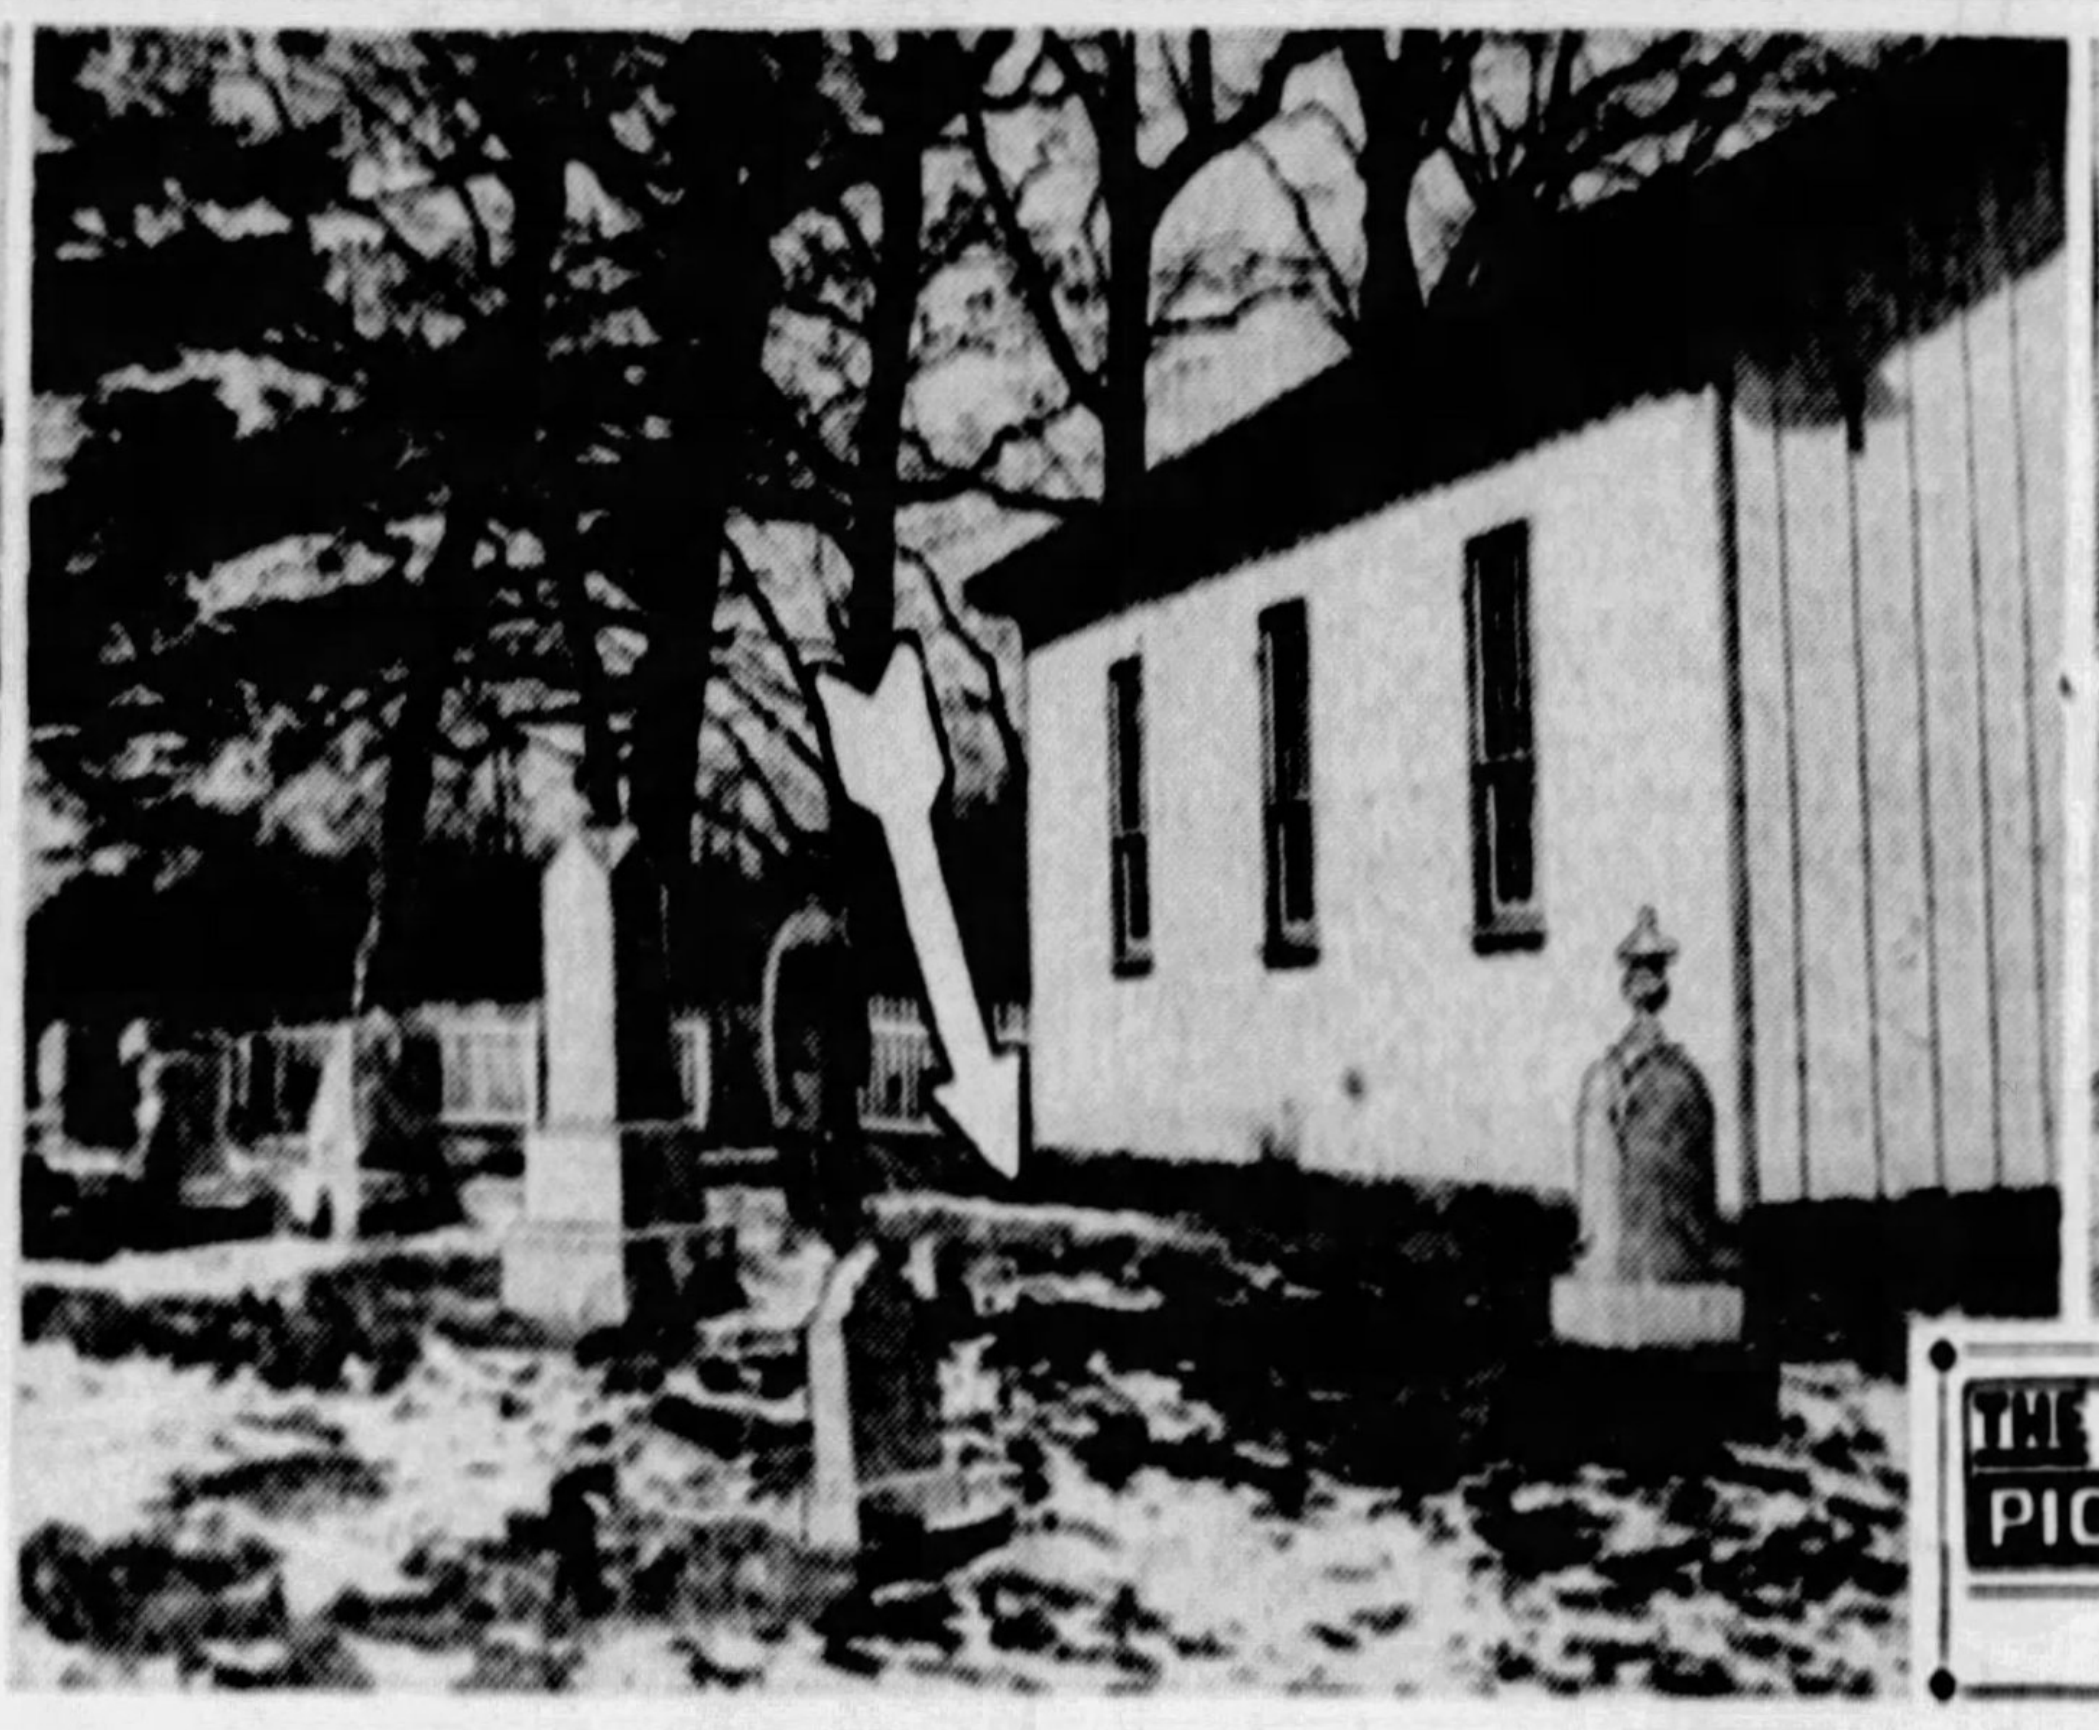
Albert Heile heard attack and found the blood-stained paling used in fatal beating of Mike Yarsavage, 33, whose body was found in Walters Chapel burying ground.

BROKEN FENCE

Looking for a weapon for their murderous attack, the slayers of Yarsavage broke a paling from the picket fence surrounding the country churchyard at Rural Ridge on Russellton road.



WHERE THE MURDERED MAN WAS FOUND

After suffering a beating by thugs who assailed him on the road, it is believed tht the victim was dragged through the hole in the fence and left in the churchyard to die. His body was found close to the white frame chapel at the spot indicated by the arrow.

MARCHING SUSPECT TO BARRACKS

State police, deputy sheriffs and county detectives made a search of the surrounding mining community and arrested several suspects. These men were marched down the narrow country road to the main highway, where they were taken in automobiles to police headquarters for searching and close questioning. This suspect was taken at Russellton mines.

Seized Through Decoy In Smith Girl Kidnaping

SENT NOTE TO SMITH, HE SAYS

International News service.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 7.—Blaming moonshine for his downfall, Michael Buinickas, 32, police said today, confessed that he sent a threatening letter to the father of Miss Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College freshman-heiress.

The Lithuanian silk mill worker, father of three children, who was captured when he took a decoy letter from a box in the local postoffice, declared that he knew nothing of the whereabouts of the missing heiress. Police and federal authorities said they were inclined to believe him.

A somewhat puzzling angle of the case, however, was that the postoffice box was hired under a fictitious name on January 10, three days before Miss Smith vanished from her dormitory. Buinickas claimed he hired the postoffice box because his relatives and friends knew the location of his regular box, that he wanted to get mail without interference.

Police said that Buinickas was ready with an alibi of his movements during the night the girl vanished.

HIT-RUN DRIVER KILLS ANOTHER

Police are searching for a "hit-and-run" driver as a result of the death last night of John M. Campbell, 75, of 3518 Beechwood boulevard, struck by an auto while crossing Beechwood boulevard near Saline street. A report to police stated that the driver of the machine sped away after the accident. Campbell died in the Homeopathic Hospital.

SEEK POISONER OF HORSE

Agents of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society are searching for persons who placed arsenic in the feed mixture that Harry Harris, a huckster, of 2 Reed street, fed his horse a few hours prior to its death, they said yesterday. The poison was found in the feed by Dr. T. E. Munce, director of the State Bureau of Animal Industry, who analyzed the feed yesterday and who submitted his report to L. W. Ahn, superintendent of the Humane Society. The horse died February 13, and when Harris found a dead mouse in the feed box, he suspected poison and reported the matter to the society.

WRECK TIES UP P. R. R. TRAINS

Twenty trains, east and westbound on the Pennsylvania Railroad, were delayed from two to three hours today by the wreckage of 12 coal cars, derailed at 1:50 a. m. at Longfellow, between Altoona and Harrisburg.

Great piles of coal blocked the four tracks hours after the cars had been removed. Workmen with shovels made slow progress as the trains lined up on both sides.

The cars were part of a 99-car train. The cause of the wreck has not been determined. Twelve of the trains tied up were eastbound, and eight westbound.

CITY SELLS $125,000 TRAFFIC SIGNAL BONDS

AMERICANS IN PLANE CRASH

LONDON, March 7.—(AP.)—Of half a dozen forced descents of cross-Channel airplanes because of a thick fog yesterday, only one today apparently was accompanied by danger.

A dispatch from Folkestone to the Daily Mail said a French air liner from Paris to London crashed in a field near the Lympne Airdrome, Kent. Three Americans had a narrow escape. Baroness Van Till Canch Kavanagh, of the Hague, was cut in the face, being the only one of the eight passengers aboard to be injured.

As the passengers emerged white-faced from the wreckage their first thought was praise for Roger Maury, pilot, who brought the machine safely across the fog-blanketed waters of the English Channel with one engine disabled.

The Americans were Miss Dorothy Palmer, of Seattle; Miss Margaret Duncan, who gave her address as "care of the American Express, Paris," and S. Ahiloff, New York City.

When the machine neared the French coast the left wing dipped suddenly, J. W. Wilesmith, an English passenger, said. The pilot turned as it to head inland. The machine then seemed to right itself and the pilot headed seaward again.

Listing to the left and traveling slowly it reached the English coast. The left wing dipped again. The plane spiraled rapidly toward the earth.

"There was a crash," said Wilesmith. "The machine bounced several times after the wing struck the ground and slithered sideways about 100 yards. The passengers were jolted all over the place. The baggage tumbled about us.

"The women were wonderful. They made no sound until the pilot brought his machine to a standstill. He climbed out of the cockpit and quietly opened the door for us. We got out quickly because both engines were wrecked and we feared the machine might catch fire."

The pilot, he said, explained a valve spring in one of the engines had apparently broken.

Other planes, British, French, Belgian, Dutch and German, made forced landings on the coasts of England, France and Belgium without accident.

WERRENRATH STARTS WAR -:- WHEN HE CRITICIZES -:- U. S. OPERA STARS

MARY LEWIS

GERALDINE FARRAR

LOUISE HOMER

GRACE MOORE

MARION TALLEY

MARY GARDEN

Reginald Werrenrath, baritone, stirred up war and wrath in the musical world when from his ambuscade in Atlantic City, he broadcast a sharply-worded critique against women opera singers generally and American-born and American-trained women stars in particular. Mary Lewis, he says, is the only one worth mentioning. It was expected that would arouse caustic replies and in this nobody was disappointed. The response was instant.

Grace Moore, very latest of the stars who has come to Broadway from Main Street—she put on her goloshes and came down from the mountains of Jellico, Tenn.—straightway declared that the wrathful shafts of Warrenrath are aimed at her. "He means me," she flared, "and they are the rudest and crudest remarks that ever came from one who calls himself a gentleman."

Friends of Geraldine Farrar are wondering how many foreign stars have anything on her, and followers of Mme. Louise Homer, likewise wonder wherein the dyspeptic baritone at Atlantic City remembering her long career along with the best European stars, has room to talk. Then there is winsome Marion Talley, whose voice rivals the nightingale and all the other songbirds. How dare he include her among operatic failures? Mary Garden—but wait, folks! Werrenrath will need the saints' blessing when she is heard from. Already it is declared that Reginald is only looking for a little bargain-rate publicity.

WILLIAM H. CRANE, STAGE COMEDIAN, DIES AT 83

"David Harum" and numerous other plays.

When he was 17 Crane got his first stage "job." It was with the Holman opera troupe, but there was no salary attached to it. His part was very small, but he learned every line spoken by the other members of the troupe. When one of the cast became ill, Crane volunteered to do his part. The manager was doubtful, but there was nothing else to be done, so Crane went on. His first real part was as the notary in "The Child of the Regiment" on July 13, 1863, in Utica, N. Y.

Crane remained with the Holman outfit for seven years, during which he played Beppo in "Frau Diavolo," Mephisto in "Faust," and Dr. Dalcomara in "The Elixir of Love." After four years as leading comedian in the Alice Oates Opera Company, he played Leblanc in the burlesque of "Evangeline" when it was first produced in Niblo's Garden in New York in 1874.

It was at this point that Crane, against the advice of friends, turned to more serious roles. With a stock company at Hooley's Theater in Chicago he appeared in such plays as "Married Life," "The Rough Diamond," "Led Astray," "School," "Divorce," and "The Serious Family."

In 1877 a misunderstanding resulted in the famous partnership with Stuart Robson. The two men found both had been cast for the same part—Gillipod in "Our Boarding House." An amicable agreement was reached whereby Crane took the added part of Col. Elevator and the play had a long run in New York. The pair continued to share honors in several successes. They revived "A Comedy of Errors" and "Merry Wives of Windsor," after which in 1899 their long partnership ended.

A dozen plays in which Crane acted a wide variety of humorous characters followed. Having great faith in the dramatic possibilities of American life, it was rarely that he appeared in anything except as an American character.

JACK DEMPSEY is through with fighting. His horse won the big race at Tia Juana, two days ago. And Dempsey says "Tunney can keep that title as long as he wants it. I am not going to fight any more. Happy Mr. Dempsey. How few college professors, school teachers, and clergymen are able to say "I have nothing to worry me."

NEWSPAPERS tell of a baby "dead 10 times." Ten times in its short five weeks of life the baby's heart stopped beating in a struggle against pleuro-pneumonia. Ten times it was revived and it probably will live. The doctors did wonders.

There is just a line about the mother. Still weak, following the baby's birth, she gave her blood in transfusion to save her baby's life. Her name is Mrs. G. E. Olmstead, and what she did ten million other mothers would do, gladly.

A UNITED STATES court decides that under the old Jay treaty of 1794 Canadians can cross the border into the United States as often as they choose with no immigration restrictions.

Thus our Canadian neighbors can drink beer on Canadian territory, and earn dollars on United States territory. That will madden some 100 per cent Americans. But they also can cross the border to get beer. That may comfort them.

"GIRL dies from alcoholism at drinking party." She was only 20. Surgeons said, "alcoholic poisoning." It is such a common thing under prohibition that you don't even ask the girl's name. Whisky killed her suddenly. It is killing thousands of others more slowly. Something ought to be done about bootleg whisky.

IN OREGON some cattle were butchered and yellow spots on their teeth were found to be pure gold. They had never seen a dentist. The question is did they scrape their teeth against gold in their pasture, or do they represent the ingenious idea of some "realtor," anxious to sell a farm?

It is done by acids derived from lemon and grape.

Then remember this drink—"Epsonade" in water—whenever any clogging occurs. Take it any hour of the day. That's the quickest and the best way to correct things. Let a trial prove this to you. Get a small quantity, at small cost, at your druggist.

This man will never grow old

Full of pep at 60. Never expects to get too old to enjoy life. Has found secret.

He's always astonishing people by introducing a lanky grandson or a flapper great-niece. For he's one of those men who seem young. With a clear skin, a springy step. And a laugh like a boy's. Actually he's reaching the age when most men think about retiring from business.

"Why should I retire?" he asks. "Never felt better in my life. All I ever need to keep well is Nujol. And that's not medicine." He's right Nujol is a natural substance, perfected by the Nujol Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). It contains absolutely no medicine or drugs. But it keeps the body functioning normally. For Nujol not only prevents any excess of the body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but also aids in their removal.

There's no age limit on Nujol. Doctors put babies on it soon after they're born. School children take it. Mothers and fathers. And the very old folks, too.

Maybe you think you feel perfectly well. Perhaps you suspect you don't. Anyway, try taking Nujol and see if there isn't a difference. Take it for 3 months. It can't do any harm to try. And it might do a lot of good. Everyone else who's tried it says so.

Be sure you get the genuine.

COAL ILLS BARED BY LEWIS

in its investigation during 1915. It was then shown how vast sums of money were annually spent by the Pennsylvania Railroad in the employment of detectives and spies to bore from within the unions to the ultimate destruction of the self-constituted trade union and in launching in its stead the company union, controlled and dominated by the Pennsylvania management."

"Except during the war period," said eLwis, later on, "and a boom year now and then, the majority of railroads serving the coal fields have secured their coal at and below production costs."

"Except during the warperiod."

"How do they do it?" asked Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, chairman of the investigating committee.

"By their enormous purchasing power, and by pitting one operator against another," answered Lewis.

"The railroads control the operators," commented Senator William C. Bruce of Maryland, "as the shippers control the railroads."

Gives "Plot" Details

"By 1925 this demand of the railroads for lower fuel costs had crystallized itself into a practical conspiracy to accomplish cheap coal," Lewis went on. "This charge against the railroads is not the idle imagination of a trade union leader, or the thoughtlessness of men victimized in their normal employment, who recognize that disaster has overtaken them, but who are uninformed as to from whence it came and why. The evidence is at hand and the proof obtainable to substantiate the accusations.

"The competitive relationship of the coal industry, superinduced by the railroad conspiracy to depress mine wages and coal prices, reached such powerful proportions in 1927 that its influence dominated the coal operators of the central competitive field and caused them to refuse to renew their wage agreements with the United Mine Workers of America."

"Although the rate of bankruptcy for coal operators had reached alarming proportions in 1926," he continued, "the directing forces of the National Purchasing Agents' Association thought it a duty to let its full membership in on the profits to be obtained from the coal operators purchase of coal orders, and caused to be issued a bulletin telling the whys and wherefors of coal buying. This bulletin tells the conspiracy against coal, the assault against American wages and working conditions, and the leveling of coal mines to profitless operation in unbridled language."

This bulletin, dated at New York on December 18, 1926, and marked "confidential," declared that the time was ripe for all purchasing agents to insist upon the coal operators "taking immediate steps to lower wages and reduce the contract price accordingly."

Asserting that the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation have made three wage cuts since they were deunionized, Lewis declared his belief that the facts would show that wages "in these nonunion camps are further deflated by the company stores."

When Lewis came to that part his statement which dealt with e abrogation of the Jacksonville agreement by the Pittsburgh Coal Company and certain coal companies before its expiration, Senator James Couzens of Michigan asked:

"Was that a straight, square unequivocal contract?"

"Yes," said Lewis. "It was based on 35 years of collective bargaining, and it is our boast that we have never broken a contract."

"The Jacksonville agreement," continued Lewis, "was predicated on the clear assumption that except in the case of certain specified employes none but members of the United Mine Workers should be employed in the mines of the operators signing the agreement."

Lists Injunctions

Turning to the granting of injunctions against the union miners by the federal courts, the union leader declared that "the judicial process of injunction has been granted to restrain us in our economic struggle under conditions and for purposes we regard as intolerable."

Lewis said the trend of the law seems to be, if it has not already reached that conclusion, that the employer has a property right in the nonunion status of his employes.

The union leader referred to operators requiring miners to sign an agreement that they would not join the United Mine Workers of America or any trade union. These agreements he termed "yellow dog contracts."

"The federal courts hold that the employer thus acquires a property right in the nonunion status of his workman that entitles him to an injunction against our efforts peaceably to persuade his employe to quit work and join the union," he said.

"I here denounce the doctrine that the employer can covenant with his employe to rob him of the opportunity of hearing us preach the gospel of unionism to him, or to preclude us from appealing to him by fair argument and peaceable persuasion."

After the reading of the correspondence with President Coolidge, Lewis, in answer to questions, asserted that the operators tried to make miners bear the burden, in low wages, of every economic condition under which the companies were laboring.

purpose of the big nonunion operators, Lewis charged, is "to break the morale of the striking miners and to destroy the union."

"The open minded citizen recognizes that these attempts to batter down fair wages, to lengthen the work day and to practically enslave mine workers in isolated mining camps is directly opposite to the American point of view and out of gear with American economic thought and American life," he said.

"The acts of the nonunion interests are not merely an assault upon American government, a substitution of the dictatorship of ownership for constitutional government, they are an attack upon the declared purposes of the American people as enacted in tariff and immigration laws."

Lewis asserted that the abrogation of the contract with the union miners by the Consolidation Coal Company, the largest producing company in the Fairmont, W. V., field, caused other operators in that region as well as in the adjoining Morgantown field to abrogate like contracts.

"The bituminous coal industry today is in the worst demoralized state that it has ever known," he said, "notwithstanding, it is admitted, that for the past 75 years, excepting the war period, the industry has been a chronic sufferer from its sins of overcapitalization, over-development and the naturally resulting excess of man-power.

"In Pennsylvania and Ohio, where wages have been reduced from 30 to 60 per cent, coal is being mined and marketed without profit to the operators, while the mining communities steadily are being ground down to pauperized levels."

A digression from Lewis' prepared statement was carried forward with questions pertaining to many phases of the coal industry.

Lewis said that while the American coal miner was the most efficient in the world, producing four times as much coal a day as the miner of any other country, casualties in American mines were much higher than in any other part of the world.

"We kill four times as many miners per million tons of coal produced as Great Britain," said Lewis. "The fierce competition between our coal companies acts as a constant pressure to save money at the expense of human life. It costs money to keep gas out of a mine, properly to timber it, and to rock dust it, and in the interest of economy coal companies sometimes omit these safeguards."

Answering Chairman Watson, the miners' executive charged that coal operators seek to balance any loss in revenue by reduction of wages.

Effects "Devastating"

Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, asked Lewis his opinion of the effect of strikes on the coal industry, and was told it was "devastating."

The only time that all members of the mine workers were employed was during the war, Lewis told Watson, adding that the present membership of his organization was around 400,000. He estimated that three-fifths of the men now employed as miners could do the work of the industry. He denied that miners would work only four days a week, and quoted figures indicating that one of every six miners were killed or injured in the course of their work.

"We pay an awful price because of conditions in the industry today," he declared, adding that about four times as many men are killed per 1,000,000 tons of coal produced in this country than in England, and blamed the "inclination of the operators to save money at the expense of human life."

There was a throng of Pittsburghers in the Senate office building room, where the hearing is being held, long before the arrival of the committee. Many expect to be called as witnesses. Others are merely spectators. Among today's arrivals was R. Templeton Smith, of the Lowber Gas Coal Company, whose paper on "The Strike from the Operators' Viewpoint," read before the Hungry Club several weeks ago, attracted much attention. Officers of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the United Mine Workers came to Washington yesterday.

The purpose of the investigation, as set forth in the Senate resolution under the authority of which it is being held, is "to ascertain whether the railroad companies and their officials have been or are, by agreement or otherwise, endeavoring to depress the labor cost of coal produced by union mine labor; also whether in the said coal fields wage contracts have been abrogated or repudiated; whether defenseless men, women and children, without cause, have been evicted from their homes and generally what has transpired in the said coal fields, and the reasons for conditions and happenings therein."

Of the 19 members of the committee only Senators James E. Watson, of Indiana, chairman; W. B. Pine, of Oklahoma, Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho; William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland, and Robert F. Wagner, of New York, were present when the first witness, John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, was called to the stand.

Before Lewis began his statement Chairman Watson said the proponents of the investigation would be heard first. He asked them to choose their witnesses with a view to avoiding repetition and "long wearisome proceedings." At the same time, said Watson, nothing should be omitted that was necessary to develop the facts fully. The operators will have full opportunity to present their case, Chairman Watson said, after the other side has been heard.

POLICE BREAK UP MEETING OF RADICALS

TOOHEY
BROPHY

SPEAKERS WARNED

John Brophy and Pat Toohey, "Save the Union" committee speakers, were warned against radical utterances by state police before they were permitted to enter the miners' union hall at Renton, yesterday afternoon. Both men promised to confine their remarks to union matters.

Pencil scratchings and erasures so beclouded the will of Charles Springer, of Hazelwood, that Common Pleas Court will be called upon to decide who shall receive the $10,000 estate, it was brought out when the document was filed for probate today. Springer's wife and children are named in the will but his intentions as to specific bequests remain in doubt.

MEETING BROKEN OFF

State troopers closed up an insurgent miner's mass meeting at Renton yesterday afternoon, dispersed the assemblage, and placed two speakers under arrest on charges of unlawful assembly and inciting to riot.

Patrick Toohey, former union leader of the Canonsburg district had just launched into a phillipic against the activity of marines in Nicaragua and China when Corp. M. J. Onko led the sortie to the speakers' platform.

"What have you got against the marines?" he demanded, emphasizing his question by escorting Toohey off the platform.

John Brophy, former president of the Central Pennsylvania district of the United Mine Workers and a speaker at the meeting, was also placed under arrest.

Both speakers were turnd over to Sheriff Robert H. Braun and later released under $1,000 bond each for a hearing Wednesday before Justice George S. Wilson, of East Liberty.

"What are the United States Marines doing in China and Nicaragua?" asked Toohey of his audience of some 200 striking miners from the Renton district. "Is there anyone here that is interested in either of these two countries? If there is, I want him to raise his hand."

No hands were rpised and Toohey continued.

"Who sent these Marines to Nicaragua? Mellon and Schwab—these are the men who wield the power, and if these fellows do not use their power right, we will take it away from them."

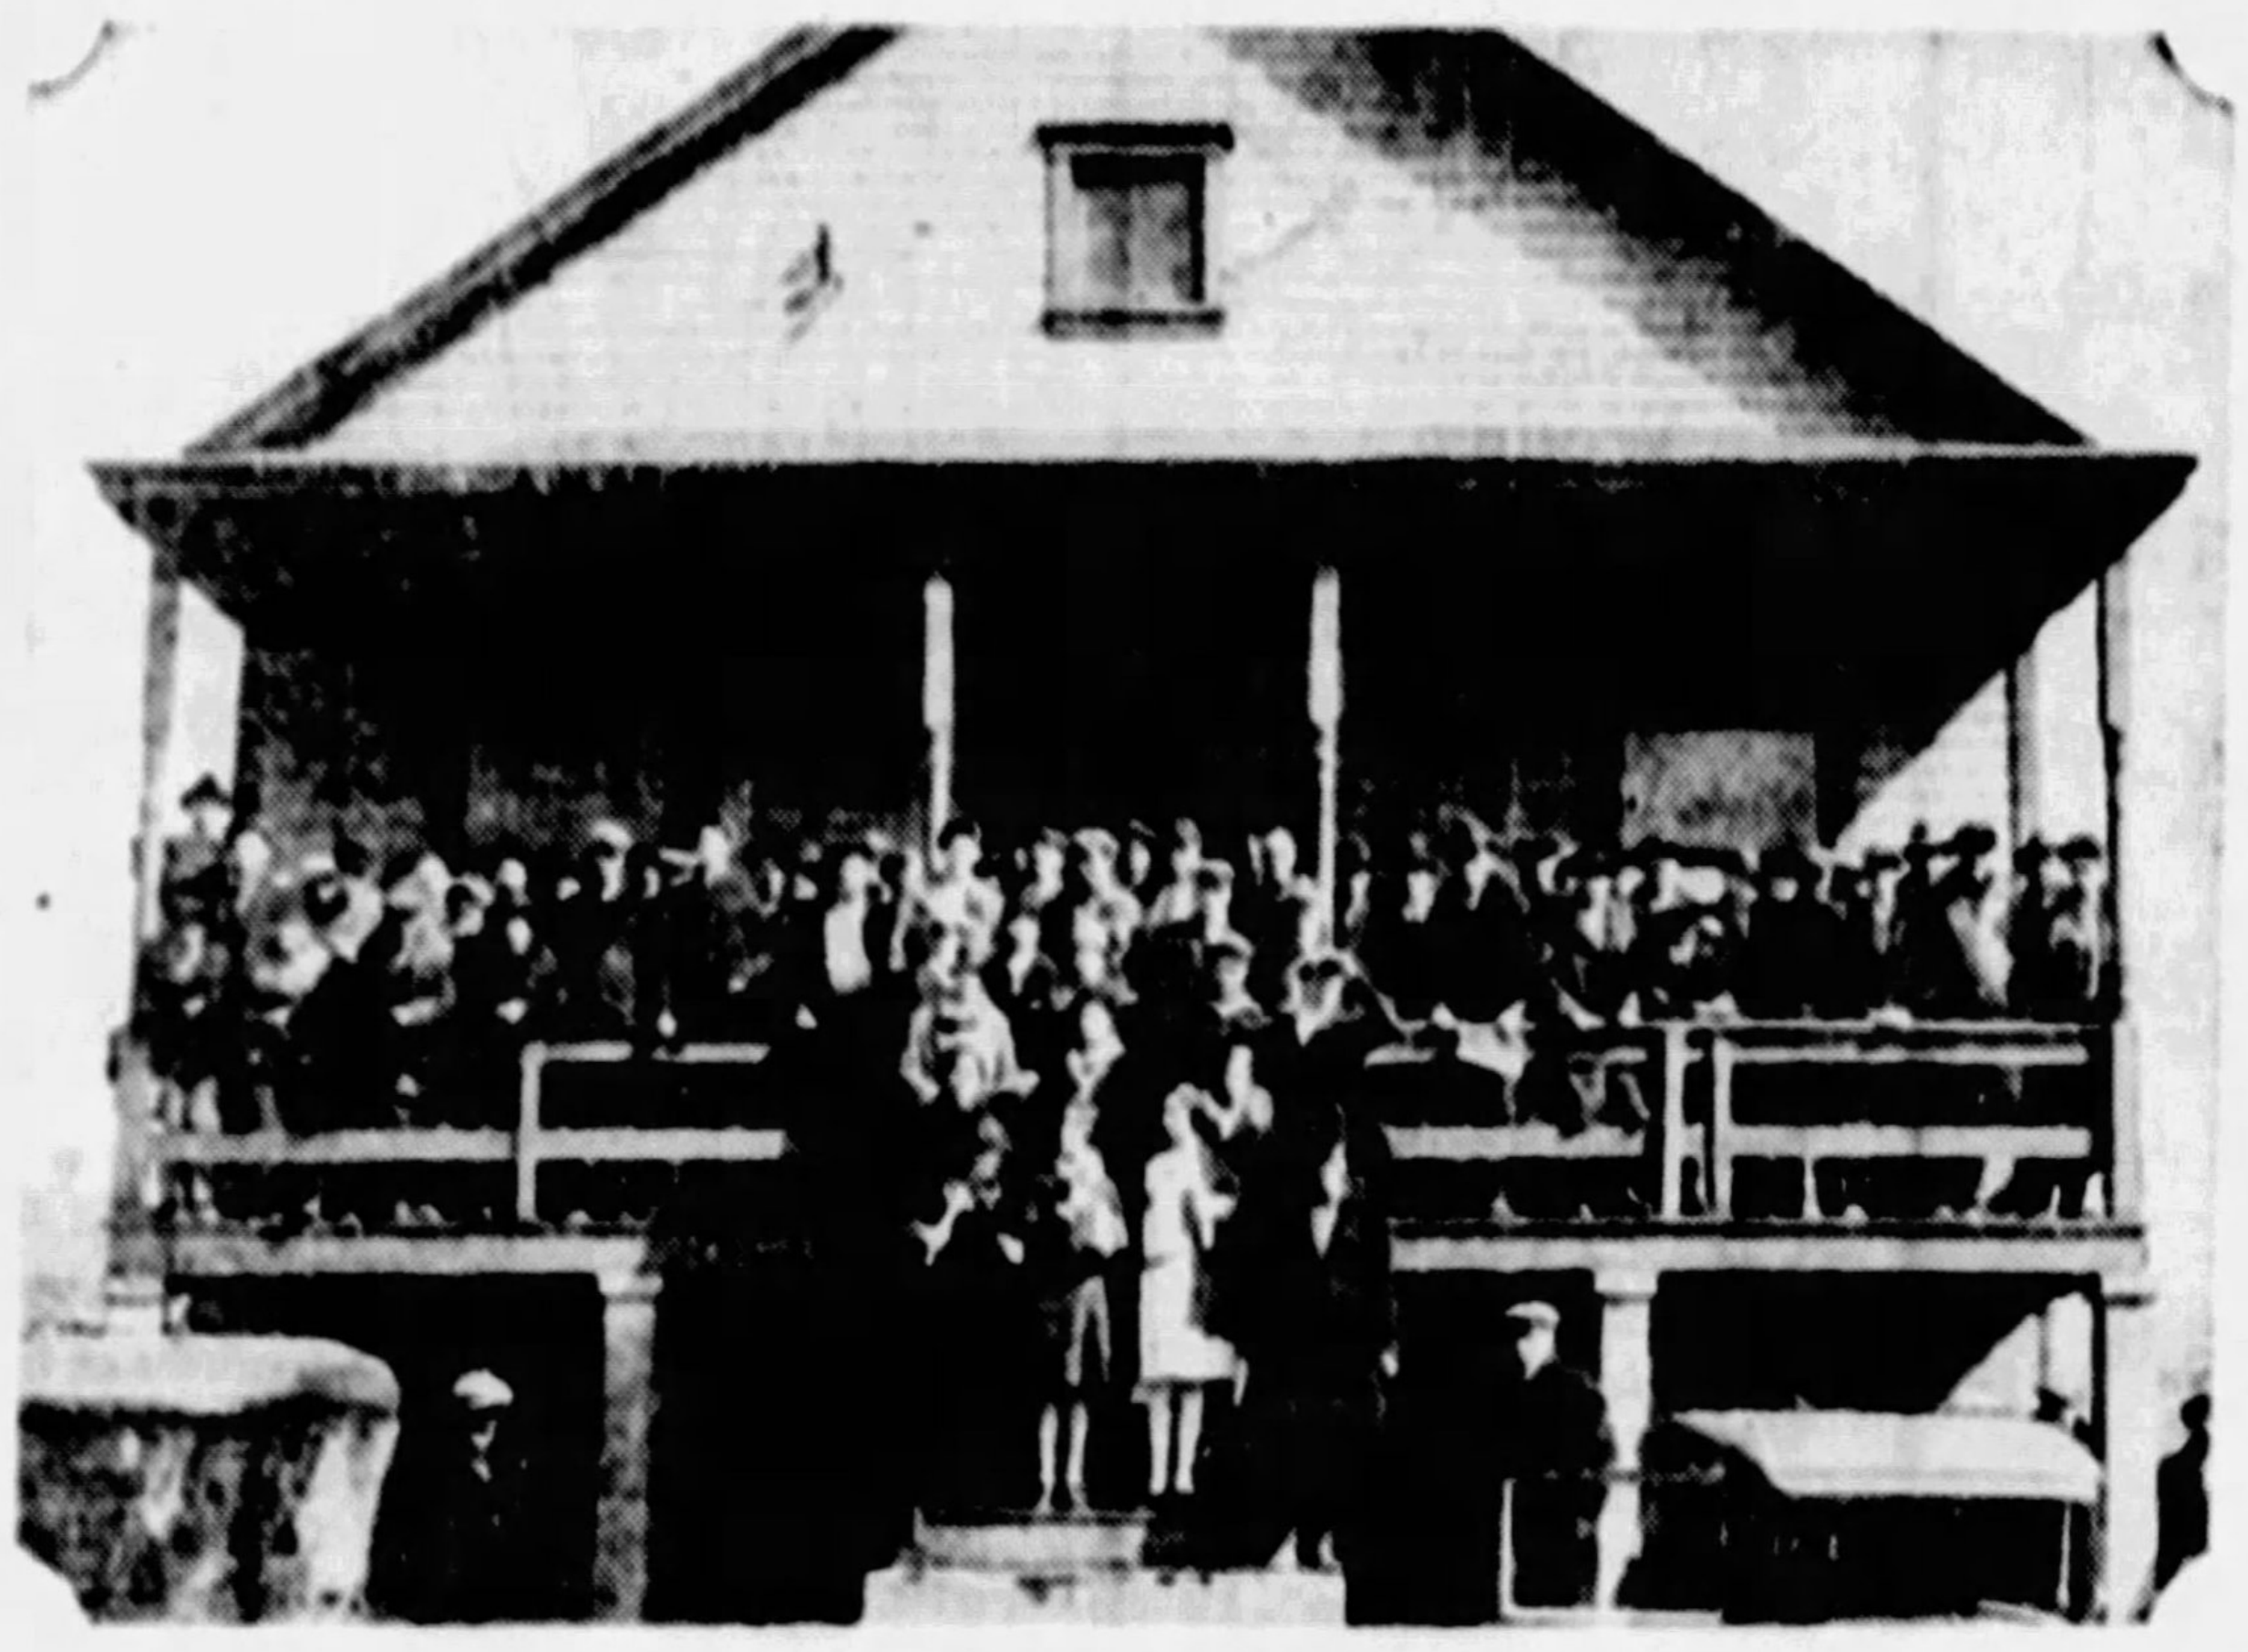
At this Onko went into action in true "devil dog" fashion and in almost no time "the situation was under control."

The troopers, who had filed quietly to the stage, told the crowd to leave the hall and the place was emptied quickly, the miners going immediately to their homes.

BRAUN INDIGNANT

Denouncing Brophy and Toohey, Sheriff Braun declared today that he felt confident that both men "represent some subtle organization, un-American and communistic; preaching mass action, inciting to riot and attacking our government."

"Their purpose here, Sheriff Braun said, adds a new and very dangerous element of disturbance as every time they attempt to utter their un-American speeches filled with attacks not only upon the government, but upon the local union officials, there is extreme danger of a serious clash between loyal members of the United Mine Workers of America and any supporters whom Toohey and Brophy have converted to their belief."

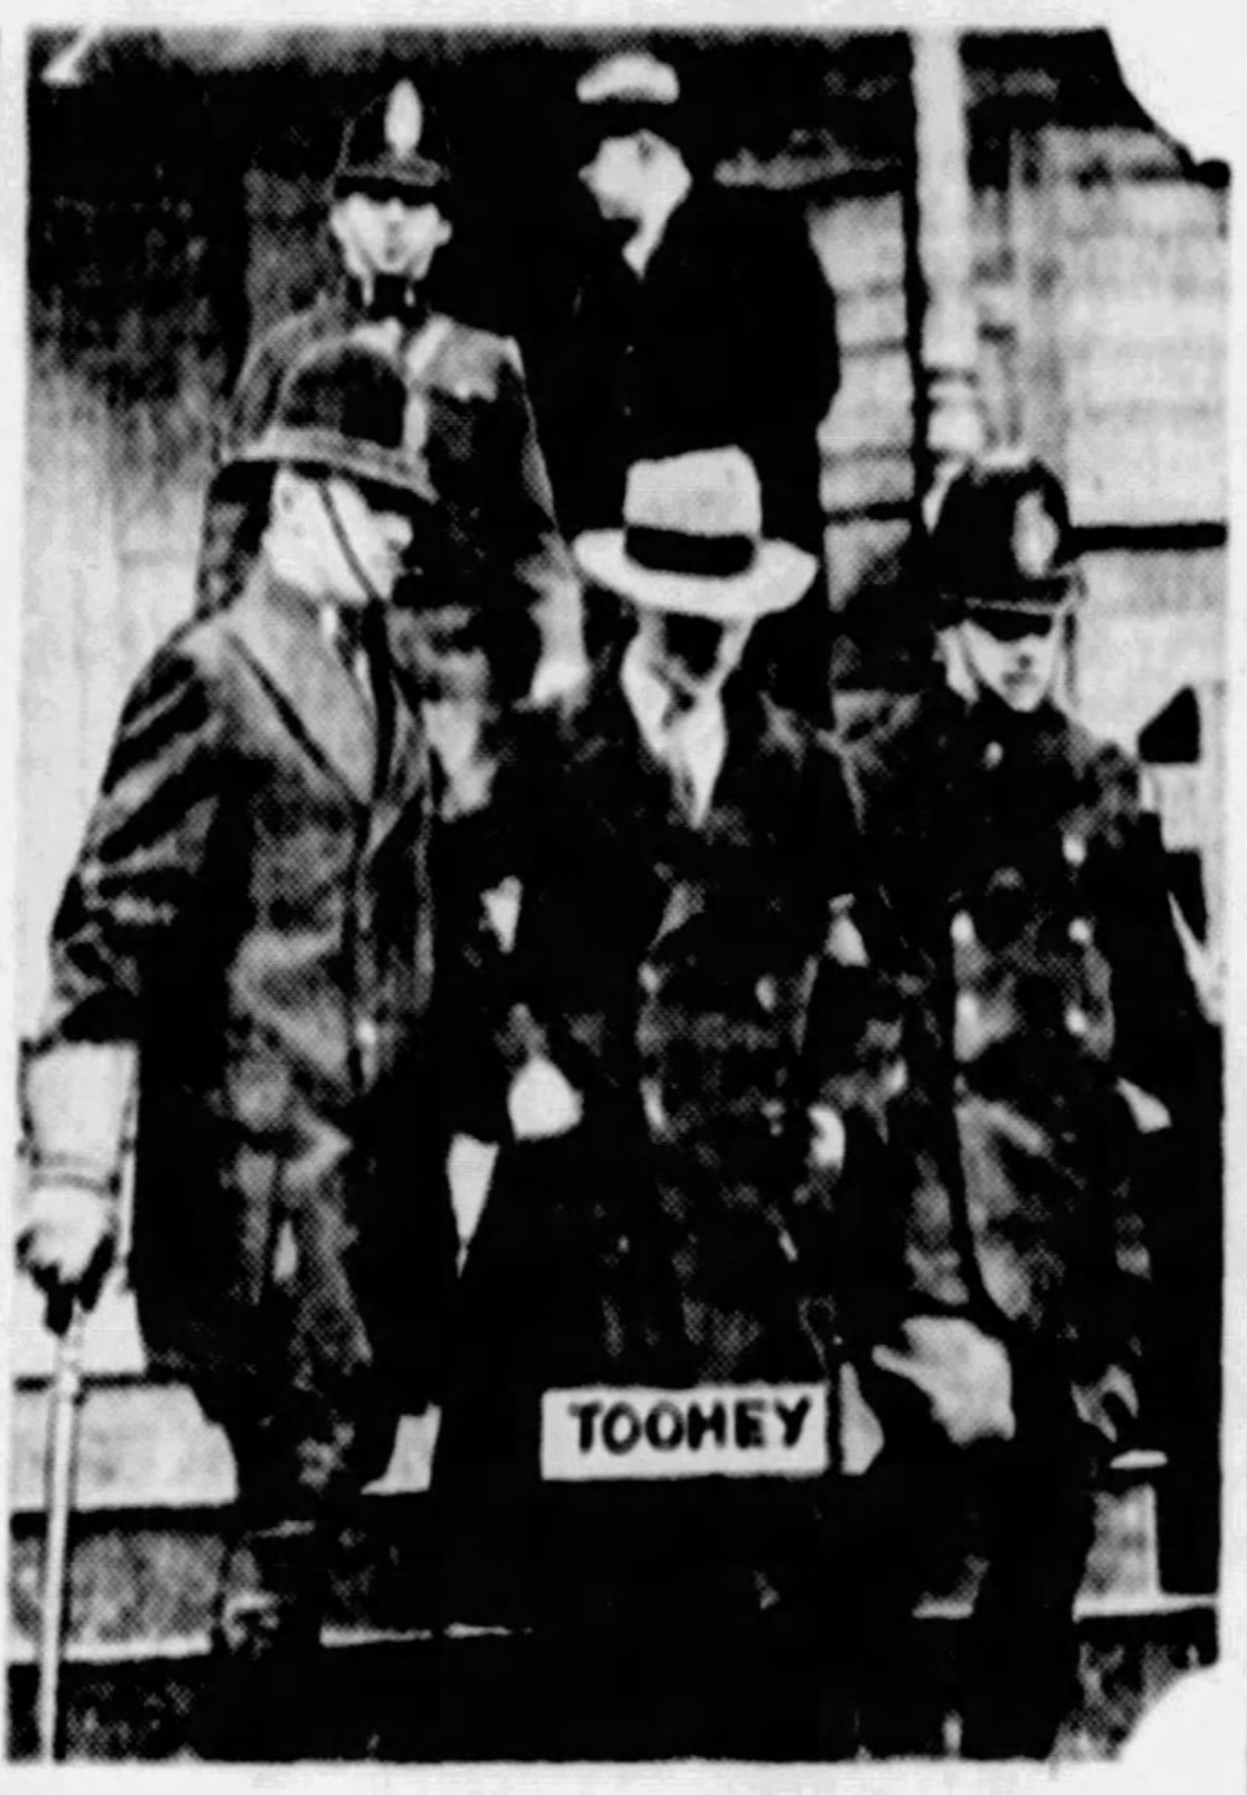


BEFORE THE MEETING

A crowd of between 200 and 300 miners assembled from two local unions to hear Brophy and Toohey speak. A business meeting presided over by Ignatz Perme, joint chairman of Locals No. 811 and 5456, preceded the addresses. Brophy was permitted to finish his address without interference, but as soon as Toohey started scoring the United States Marine Corps for their activities in South America and China, the troopers stopped the meeting.

BROPHY ARRESTED

Brophy's speech consisted mostly of a tirade against union officials and the "coal baron who keeps the worker under his heel." He was taken into custody by the troopers on a charge of inciting a riot and unlawful assembly.



TOOHEY RESISTS

When state police ordered Toohey to cease talking and declared the meeting at an end, the speaker remonstrated and was forcibly ejected from the speakers' platform while the crowd filed out the front door in an orderly manner.

WHAT COOLIDGE TOLD LEWIS ON MINE PACT

By MAX HENRICE,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in testimony today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee investigating the soft coal strike, read a letter that he sent President Coolidge concerning the breaking of the Jacksonville agreement and the President's reply.

Coolidge Reply

Following is the correspondence in full:

The White House,
Washington, Dec. 5, 1925.

My Dear Mr. Lewis:

I am in receipt of your communication of November 21, 1925, in relation to the difficulties that have arisen under the Jacksonville bituminous wage agreement.

You will recollect that the disastrous strike of 1922 started with the failure to secure a meeting of the operators and miners for the negotiation of the renewal of the expiring agreement.

As you state, the officials of the federal government about two years ago helped to bring about a meeting of the representatives of the coal operators of the central competitive field and of the United Mine Workers at the time of expiration of their then existing agreement. It was naturally the hope of these officials that if this meeting, which some group of operators opposed attending, could be brought about, then a basis of an agreement might be found, and thereby peace could be preserved in the industry, great suffering to the workers prevented and great waste to the country. In making the meeting possible, the government performed a service for your organization as well as for the industry in the union fields. At that meeting, the terms of a contract were exhaustively debated and finally entered into between operators and miners. The government took no part in the discussion at Jacksonville and can in no sense be considered a party to the contract, or any other of the many hundreds of labor agreements where its friendly offices are called in for conciliation of the parties.

Wrong to Intervene

Some few months ago, certain employers, parties to the contract, represented that due to the agreement their mines were operating at a loss and requested that the government undertake to secure a revision of the contract downward. This, as you are aware, the government officials refused to do, as they rightly decided that any alteration must be mutually agreed by the parties to it and that it would be wrong for them to intervene to alter established contracts.

I profoundly deplore the breaking of any contract, whenever this is the case, especially as the faithful compliance with agreements between employers and employes is the sole hope of collective bargaining—a principle now accepted in American life. On the other hand, as you are aware, that arm of the government provided for the enforcement of contracts is the courts, and if such contracts have been violated, it is the duty of the injured party to appeal to the courts.

The government, not being a party to contracts, has no status in enforcement. If no enforcement is found by appeal to the courts in labor contracts when properly formulated, then the law-making powers should enact the legislative measures necessary to enable the courts to give such relief in the future.

Suggests Court Action

I am not unmindful of the fact that the courts have had few, if any, opportunities to pass upon the legal right of the enforcement of industrial joint wage agreements, because they are generally performed as a joint obligation without violation. However, you will be performing a distinct public service by getting an authoritative court decision on this subject.

Apart from the rights or wrongs under which the dispute you mention has arisen, it is my understanding that the great majority of the mines located in the district subject to the Jacksonville agreement have maintained the terms of that contract, although it is stated that a majority of these mines lost money for some time, due to the competition of non-union fields paying lower wages.

I am very glad to hear that the United Mine Workers have no intention to call a strike in the bituminous coal fields because of these grievances.

Cordially yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Mr. John L. Lewis, president,
United Mine Workers of America, Merchants Bank Building,
Indianapolis, Ind.

Lewis' Letter

Copy of letter addressed to President Coolidge by John L. Lewis, president, United Mine Workers of America:

Philadelphia, Pa.,
November 21, 1925.

The President,
White House.

Sir:

In February, 1924, the operators and miners of the central competitive bituminous coal fields consummated a wage agreement designed to expire by limitation on March 31, 1927. With this instrument as a base, supplemental agreements of similar nature were executed between operators and miners in contiguous and outlying coal districts. The accomplishment met with general public approval, as the agreement gave promise of security and advantage to the public with respect to the factors of continuous supply and price. Agencies of the federal government co-operated in making possible the agreement, the Departments of Justice, Commerce and Labor participating. The twelfth annual report of this Secretary of Commerce, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1924, at pages 13 and 14, stated as follows:

"Through co-operation by the department with the unionized operators and with the leaders of the United Mine Workers, a long term agreement has been entered upon, which insures industrial peace in the industry.

"The industry is now on the road to stabilization.

"No better example of co-operation to secure the elimination of national waste can be presented. The past year, as compared to the year 1920, shows a saving to the consumer of about $1,000,000,000, which must be reflected in decreasing costs of production in every avenue of industry and commerce."

Without question, the foregoing declaration of accomplishment by the federal government in the public interest was heartily approved by every thoughtful citizen.

Repudiated Pact

Notwithstanding the acknowledged virtue of the beforementioned contract, I am compelled to authoritatively advise you that substantial coal producing interests, signatories to the agreement, have violated and repudiated their written word of honor and in so doing have impaired the integrity of the wage structure throughout the entire bituminous industry. Among the coal companies thus trampling upon and dishonoring their wage agreements with the mine workers are four of the largest coal producing groups in the nation, viz: The Pittsburgh Coal Company, the Consolidated Coal Company, the Bethlehem Mines Corporation and the coal interests of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad, their several operations being located in northern West Virginia, Ohio and the central and Western Pennsylvania coal fields.

To attain their unmoral objective these companies, and certain others of lesser consequence, have utilized coercive and oppressive methods. Their actions have been destructive of all confidence between employer and employe and constitute an unwarranted, indefensible blow at the universally recognized principle of collective bargaining. The savage and dishonest acts of the beforementioned group has added to the burden of those honest coal operators who desire in every particular to operate in accordance with their wage agreements. The most full information as affecting the representations which I make is available in the Departments of Commerce and Labor.

The federal government upon occasion and from time to time, has intervened in the coal industry. Not alone the operators, but the miners have felt the weight of its influence and regulated their policies accordingly. In all respect, the mine workers now inquire whether the federal government desires to intervene to maintain the morality and integrity of the existing agreement in the bituminous coal industry.

If it should occur that the federal government is disposed not to intervene for the protection of a meritorious wage agreement, might the mine workers believe that their own efforts in that direction may be considered as being justified?

Respectfully,
John L. Lewis,
President.

WOMAN'S GREATEST CHARM DECIDED

Hollywood agrees no one can star without Smooth Skin

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—The public demands exquisite smooth skin in women, say the leading film directors. No girl without a beautiful smooth skin has ever proved popular enough to star. They can't pass the test of the close-up without "Studio Skin," as it's called in Hollywood!

Under the strong blazing Klieg lights the slightest imperfection will show. "The cleverest make-up cannot fake beautiful skin under the blazing lights of the close-up" —as Lewis Milestone, United Artists director, expressed it—"it must be the real thing."

Nine out of ten stars are using Lux Toilet Soap. And in the dressing rooms of the big film companies it is also the "official" soap.

Made by the method France developed for her finest toilet soaps, it gives the skin a wonderful smoothness. "Lux Toilet Soap certainly gives my skin that lovely smoothness we mean by 'Studio Skin,'" says Doris Kenyon, the First National star. Lux Toilet Soap is made by Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

'DOPE' VICTIMS OCCUPY TENTH OF COURTS' TIME

17 TO 22 DANGER AGE FOR DRUGS

By WINIFRED BLACK.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Seventeen to twenty-two—that's the dangerous age. When it comes to the fight with "dope."

So Cornelius F. Collins, justice of the Court of Special Sessions of New York, declares.

Judge Collins says:

At least one-tenth of the whole business of the Court of Special Sessions of New York county is made up of drug addicts.

"This is such a horrible situation that it brings home to all of us the absolute necessity for the doing of something which means business in the attempt to control this evil.

WINIFRED BLACK

"We men throughout the state who daily see the procession of these pale youths, victims of the drug habit, may be said to be men who are not unduly worked up over anything. We are somewhat like an undertaker, inured to the corpse.

"The ordinary proceedings in a criminal court while calling for some emotion, do not excite us. Yet, nevertheless, this drug situation shocks us, trained and experienced as we are in the performance of our duty.

"It arouses all to the necessity for action of some kind."

Plain reasonable talk from a plain thinking, plain-seeing, reasonable man.

Seventeen to twenty-two—how much of a man is a lad at that age?

Seventeen to twenty-two—How much of a woman's wisdom and a woman's judgment and a woman's self-control has a girl at that age?

Seventeen to twenty-two—that's the time to catch 'em—that's what the "dope ring" says—nothing imaginative or emotional or high-strung about the dope ring.

Very practical people, they are, who belong to that. From the higher-ups who buy the stuff and smuggle it into the country to the deck hands and cabin stewards who bring it in and the waiters and cab drivers and bootleggers and peddlers of all sorts who sell it.

In Traffic for Gain

They have no illusions about the "dream powder." . . . They sell it because there's money in it—lots of money and it's easy to get, too . . . That's what they're after. Money! And they don't care what happens to the boys and girls who buy the drugs.

Why should they care? It isn't their business . . . They "work up the trade" just exactly as a man who sells shoes "works up the trade" for slippers and sandals and walking shoes—whatever sells best and sells quickest.

Opium, morphine, cocaine, heroin, codiene and marijuana—it's all the same to them—as long as it sells. And there's no trouble about the selling part of it, not so long as light-headed girls and reckless boys "try anything once" and get "hooked" with the habit before they know what they're doing.

'Out of every one thousand youths who are examined for enlistment for the American Navy, five hundred are rejected because of physical unfitness." So Sarah Graham Mulhall, ex-deputy commissioner of New York, says.

How much have the narcotic drugs to do with this state of affairs?

Ask the examining surgeons about it. They'll tell you.

Big Factor in Crime

The police records tell us of a blood-chilling story about the influence of narcotics on crime.

Sixty per cent of the criminals in our jails and in our prisons are narcotic addicts—we all know that by this time.

But how about the thousands upon thousands of addicts who "get by" without being charged with any crime?

The loggers in the great logging camps up north, out-door men, you wouldn't think there would be much use for "dope" among them.

Have a talk some day with some man who is interested in wood and has a market for it. He'll tell you a tale about "dope" in the logging camps that will astonish you.

The fleet of fishing boats that goes to Alaska every year—How much "dope" do those boats carry and who uses it?

Down South in the oyster canning camps along the Gulf, up and down the levee of the Mississippi when there are great cargoes to be loaded and unloaded in a hurry—the foreman of the levee gangs knows all about "dope." He has to know it. His men work under cocaine and rest under morphine.

Not all of them, of course, but an astonishing number of them.

It isn't in the cities alone that the narcotic evil is spreading like a vile disease.

Country Women Caught

What about the women in little country villages?

They do not begin so young—they are caught in the noose when they are ill—after childbirth when the agony of the nerves and muscles is almost too great to be borne . . young mothers, poor things—good women, no riff-raff of the tenderloin; good innocent, loving, gentle little women—they take a little morphine to ease almost unbearable pain and before they know it they are lost to everything but "dope."

Husband, children, home, friends, ideals, hopes, dreams, ambitions—all gone.

This happens not once in a while, but over and over again. Ask your family physician—he knows.

J. W. Gavit, chief of the Washington bureau of the Associated press, has written an authoritative book on narcotics.

He says in that book:

"The drug menace is not confining itself to any part of the world or any order of persons.

"It has invaded every class of society, including armies and navies and groups responsible on land and sea for the safety of their fellows.

"It spares neither young nor old, and like death, it seems to love a shining mark.

"There is an appalling list of brilliant people—some young and very promising—who first sought diversion in rash experiment, and soon found themselves enmeshed belond rescue."

Day by day the world in general is waking up to the appalling truth about "dope."

The narcotic committee of the League of Nations and the opium advisory committee are doing what they can to arouse the conscience of the civilized nations and get some sort of co-ordinate action that will throttle this monster that threatens the youth and hope of the nations.

Porter Plan Practical

Here in the United States we are trying to do something practical about our own immediate problem.

Take care of the addicts. Look after the peddlers. Stop the smuggling—cut down the growth of the criminal addict class—and in that fight, Representative Porter and his bill for the Federal farms for addicts are making a good, plain, sensible, practical step forward.

What are you and your community doing to help that fight?

Out in Seattle and in Chicago and in California—the clubs and various organizations are telegraphing to their own representatives in Congress to stand behind the Porter bill.

What work are you doing along that line yourself? The bill will come up for discussion this week—don't let your own congressman be in doubt as to where you stand in the question.

MAN STRUCK BY TRAIN SUCCUMBS IN HOSPITAL

Apparently struck by a train on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, Esplen, late last night, Joseph Kanary, about 45, of the railway's Esplen labor camp, was injured fatally. He died in the Ohio Valley Hospital half an hour after he had been found lying beside the railroad tracks. The body was taken to the county morgue.

LEAVES INCOME FROM ESTATE TO WIDOW

Albert L. Huber, late of Pittsburgh, by his will probated directs that his wife, Anna K. Huber, receive the income of his $15,000 estate during her natural life, when it reverts to their six children in equal shares. Catherine A. Miller, Sharpsburg leaves her estate, valued at $8,000, to her five children.

WAR VETERANS HEAR TALK ON AVIATION

About 500 war veterans of Homewood and Brushton attended a meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the municipal building, Brushton, last night, at which former Congressman James M. Magee spoke on "Aviation." Councilman John S. Herron talked of the work of veterans' organizations. Charles E. Potts presided. John C. O'Donnell is commander of the Bell-Haid-Murray Post of the U. F. W., in charge of the meeting.

Joseph Schenck to Make Film In England, With Alice Terry Star in Cosmo Hamilton Play

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service,

LOS ANGELES, March 7.

JOSEPH SCHENCK is not the type that sits quietly by while the world moves on. England is demanding English-made pictures. Presto chango! Joseph Schenck is going to give them what they want and that right away. Rex Ingram, who has already declared himself highly in favor of living abroad, will produce "Three Passions," by Cosmo Hamilton, for United Artists in England.

This will not be one of those foreign pictures, made hither and yon with a "catch-as-catch-can" atmosphere. Mr. Schenck is determined that England will be done by as well as the United States. He has engaged a studio at Elstree, a suburb of London. This choice was made because this particular spot is said to be as immune from fog as any part of England.

Mrs. Rex Ingram, or Alice Terry, will be the star. Let's hope that Miss Terry wears her blonde wig and goes on a rigid diet. She was far, far too fat in her last picture. But, as Mr. Schenck himself says, these young girls are fat one day and thin the next. A little diet will work wonders. Ivan Petrovich, admired by the American public, will play opposite Miss Terry.

Buster Collier yesterday agreed to make three pictures for Warner Brothers this year. Conrad Nagel, who was to have played opposite May McAvoy in "Ladies Prefer Bonds," will be busy at home. By home I mean Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, so Buster's first assignment will be to make love to May McAvoy in this picture. This shouldn't be hard to do, especially now, for May never looked so well in her life. I like her hair, which is a lighter gold than it was last year.

"Tempest" will have a personal escort to New York. John Considine, Jr., who has spent every waking hour on the John Barrymore set since the first day of production, will take a print of the film to New York, where it will be introduced to Broadway in one of the large legitimate theaters. Barrymore, in all likelihood, will be present at the premiere of his picture. There is now talk that Camilla Horn, the little German girl who plays opposite Mr. Barrymore, will be in New York at the same time and, possibly, Louis Wolheim. Altogether, the opening will be put over in United Artists' best style.

Emotional

KATHARINE CORNELL Is the emotional star of "The Letter," dramatic production being presented in the Alvin.

BILLS INCLUDE "OPTIMISTS"

In the Pitt next week theater goers of this city will see for the first time here "The Optimists." This is a London play and production that enjoyed a prosperous run in the Century Theater, New York. With this organization are Josie Heater, Flora LeBreton, Peggy Vere, Emma Kligge, George Hassell, Colin Campbell, Rolans Bottomley, Alexander Kelleway and others. The sale of seats will begin tomorrow morning. Matinees Thursday and Saturday will prevail.

Ray Dooley, star of "Sidewalks of New York," coming to the Nixon next Monday evening, is a sister of Johnny and Gordon Dooley. In private life she is the wife of Eddie Dowling, author, star and manager of himself in "Honeymoon Lane," recently seen in the Nixon. Seats go on sale Thursday morning.

Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, the 83-year-old actress who is one of the stars in Joseph Santley's musical comedy production, "Just Fancy," which comes to the Alvin for a week's engagement beginning Monday, March 12, was the original "Buttercup" in the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera, "Pinafore," when it was produced for the first time in America. The sale of seats will begin Thursday morning.

Nick Lucas, will head the Keith-Albee vaudeville program, in the Davis next week. His program includes songs that he has recorded, as well as new ones.

EVELYN NESBIT STAYS IN FLOTILLA, VENICE

Evelyn Nesbit is in the second week of her engagement in the Venice Restaurant, 218 Diamond street, and the Flotilla Club, where she is entertaining nightly. She has arranged a completely changed program of entertainment for her appearances this week. Bebe Falvo, is also appearing nightly with a changed repertoire. Beginning next Monday night, the Goodrich Silvertown Cord Orchestra and the Silver-Masked Tenor open a week's engagement in the Venice and Flotilla.

NEW YORK ORCHESTRA HERE LAST OF WEEK

Arturo Toscanini is to appear in Syria Mosque Friday night and Saturday afternoon, as conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. The Friday night symphony is to be Beethoven's "Pastorale," and Saturday afternoon the major work is Haydn's Symphony in G major, No. 13. These concerts mark the close of the symphony series under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Social Set, Irked by Lack of Activity, Sees Bright Prospect in Early Advent of Easter

NEVER has there been so little going on, I believe, as in this Lenten season. Entertainments of any kind seem to be banned in the North. To those who are already finding the dearth of social activity a little irksome there is a pleasant prospect, for Easter is only a month off, and then there will be a revival of dinners, and luncheons, and dances. Of course the post-Lenten activities will not rival the brilliant social season of the fall and early winter, but it will offer interesting diversion.

Just at present in addition to musicales and philanthropic affairs, the only news of interest, or rather the only social happenings that are occuring, are the "comings" and "goings" of the social set. Many are spending the entire winter, of course, in the South, but others find it more interesting to vary excursions to the South or West with short visits to the home city. Perhaps these appreciate the value of contrasts in life.

The Frederick Ickes Merricks have returned to their picturesque home on Holyrood road, Morewood Heights. They have been spending some time, you know, at Ormond Beach, where the Joseph W. Marshes and their daughter Katharine are also spending the winter. The Merricks, always seen at all the important social functions of the city, will probably remain here for the weddings to follow the Easter season.

This is a popular time, too, for family visits, when the release from arduous social duties gives one sufficient time to spend with relatives. Mrs. Philip H. Remington, of Springfield, Massachusetts, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Graham McCargo, I hear. Of course you remember that that young matron Mrs. McCargo is the former Mary Margaret Remington. Their marriage was one of the most important events of the fall social season. Their marriage took place on October 22.

* * *

The Walter Cockrill Carrolls, of College avenue, are expecting their daughter, Mrs. Edward Standish Bradford, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., to arrive in the city the first of the week. She will spend some time with them. Before her marriage Mrs. Bradford was Mary Edith Carroll.

TO BE GUEST OF HONOR

BRITAIN GROOMS PLANES FOR 'HOLY WAR'

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

by George A. Dorsey, Ph.D., LL.D.

Death Doesn't Strike at Random, It Is Orderly

SECOND NEWS SECTION THE SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS FEATURES

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1928

Skin Is Armorplate and First Line of Defense Against Entry of Bacteria

Woman are more human than men, they live longer also, were two facts developed yesterday by Dr. Dorsey in The Sun-Telegraph. Although more males than females are born, in the course of time the division of the sexes is about balanced. Some sex differences are more apparent than real, as woman's "crowning glory," her long hair.

Mortality Factors Compared

CHAPTER XXV.

WEISMANN held that death is an "advantageous adaptation." For what? To whom? Looks like nonsense. Osler said that man is as old as his arteries. There was enough truth in this to make it take. It means even less to say that man is as old as his endocrine glands. Arteries and glands are as old as the man.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

Metchinikoff held that because of "disharmonies" in the body, the phagocytes devoted too much time to eating pigment in hair and too little to the bacterial flora of our digestive tract. Result: Fermentation, poison, death. His theory beat the gland treatment theory into the drug stores, but sour milk is losing ground as a cure for old age.

Puberty is a period, but a kind of sex life begins at birth; for many, real sexual maturity never comes. So it is with adults; some are more adult in body and mind at 15 than others at 35; some hurry through to senility before body and mind have become fully adult. Normal old age is physiological; it is no more a disease than adolescence, and should be as agreeable. In pathologic old age, senility is premature and is a disease. The seat of the disease may be anywhere or may be due to bacterial infection.

Death Is Orderly

In natural death, we die by inches. But while there is only one path by which we may enter the world, as Pearl points out in his remarkable book on death, there are many that lead to the River Styx. Death does not strike at random, but in an orderly way and there are many ways of dying. We die when an essential part of our body breaks down.

From an analysis of the mortality tables of England and Wales, the United States and Sao Paulo, Brazil, Pearl found that over half the deaths in all three countries are due to faulty wind and food canals. While both canals are inside the body they come in contact with air, food and water from the outside. The skin also is exposed to the world, but it is armorplate against foreign invasion. Wind and food canals have no such protecting layer of pavement cells as has the skin. Outer skin and lining of wind and food canals constitute the body's first line of defense against invasion of bacteria.

Blood Defensive

The next chief cause of death is the circulatory system; the blood is the body's second line of defense. When the first fails to check the enemy the way to the blood is open. Hence the great part played by the circulatory system as the second great cause of death. As Pearl says, we should live much longer if our lungs were as good as our heart.

The death rates show certain important age and sex fluctuations. Early infancy deaths are heavy. There is then a sharp drop until the 10-15-year period, when the rate begins to rise to the [illegible]-25-year period. Thereafter the rate rises slowly until the 50-55-year period, when it begins to rise again rapidly.

The death rate from failure of circulatory system rises steadily from maturity until the eighty-fifth year, when it slows down. But between the fifth and thirty-fifth years this rate is higher in females than in males, presumably because the changes accompanying puberty are graver. Up to the sixty-fifth year deaths from breakdown of the sex apparatus are also much greater in females.

The chief cause of death among males during the first year is from the food canal; after that, to the sixtieth year, the respiratory system; after the sixtieth year, the circulatory system.

Man's Strongest Defense

Nearly 60 per cent of the deaths were from organs derived from the endoderm or inner germ-layer—the layer that originally was outside the body. In the developing embryo that layer comes to be folded within the body and lines the food canal and accessory organs of digestion. It is an old fashioned, out-of-date relic of antediluvian ectoderm. As a lining for the food canal it is our weakest spot.

Our strongest spots are the skin cover of our body and our nervous system. Both are derived from the ectoderm or outer germ-layer. Deaths from structures derived from this layer make up only about 10 per cent of the total. Almost no germs get through a healthy skin. The cells of skin and nerves have differentiated most from their primitive structure.

The remaining 30 per cent of deaths are from the mesoderm or middle germ-layer, circulatory and urogenital systems and muscles. The breakdown of the femals reproductive organs is also a heavy factor in infant mortality.

While mortality due to breakdown in ectoderm organs is about the same for the two sexes, femals mortality from mesoderm is as great as from endoderm breakdown twenty years before it is in males.

Death comes, then, according to Pearl, because our bodies are made up of systems specialized in structure and function. In becoming specialized, their cells have become so differentiated that they have lost the power of indefinite and independent existence. Thus the cells lining our lungs can be nourished only if the cells of the food tract and the blood keep on the job. Some systems are better made than others. The brain outwears the heart, the heart outwears the lungs.

The striking agreement as to the causes of death, which Pearl finds in such dissimilar countries as England, the United States and Sao Paulo, force him to conclude that innate constitutional factors, along with environmental factors, largely determine rates of human mortality. In certain diseases, of course, environment is the important factor.

The causes of death, Pearl finds, are in the following descending order: Respiratory system, digestive system, circulatory system and blood, nervous system and sense organs, kidneys and related excretory organs, sex organs, skeletal and muscular system, skin, endocrine organs. Or, arranged proportionately according to embryonic germ-layer origin: Endoderm diseases 5.2 and mesoderm diseases 3.8 times those of ectoderm origin.

We may be as old as our arteries—and so no good for digging a sewer, but we are also as young as our brains—and so, good where brains are needed. But when any vital system breaks down, the machine stops and we are dead.

NAB 14 CHINESE IN GAME RAID

A mad rush for windows and doors ensued late last night when police raided alleged gambling quarters in the rear of 511 Second avenue and arrested 14 Chinese. More than $100, the stakes of a fan tan game, was confiscated, police say.

Two of the Chinese, Frank Eng, who gave the Second avenue residence as his address, and Thoe Yeo of Homestead, were charged with keeping a disorderly house. Others were charged with visiting a disorderly house.

HOLY WAR MENACES BRITAIN

LONDON, March 7.—(AP.)—British aircraft was ready today for combat in a holy war.

The possibility that Ibn Saud, King of Hedjaz and Sultan of Nedj, would attack the borders of Irak and Transjordania, mandated British territory, was met with active preparations by Great Britain.

Advices from Basra, Irak, said an airplane base was established at Koweit, at the head of the Persian Gulf, of 10 bombing machines, 10 armored cars and numerous transport vehicles and ambulance cars.

GROOM WAR PLANES

The royal airforce detachment in Irak, to the north of Koweit, consists of 45 bombing planes and a dozen Bristol fighters. The correspondent of the London Evening Star said he had learned from an authoritative source that arrangements were made to hold in readiness aerial reinforcements in Egypt, Palestine and India.

Ibn Saud, who was reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Jerusalem to have made formal declaration of hostilities against the mandated district, was estimated to be able to place 30,000 fighting fanatics in the field.

There was no confirmation of the Jerusalem dispatch at Basra, which is the chief news source of the region. Basra, however, gets little reliable news of conditions in Ibn Saud's desert realm except that which is obtained by airplane scouts.

There was reluctance in London to believe that Ibn Saud has voluntarily avowed himself an active enemy of countries under British protection. It was held that if he was actively supporting raiding tribesmen it was because he felt that to remain aloof would cause his dominion to be threatened by powerful tribes over some of which his control is loose.

Senate Petrels Painless Gag for Found by Will

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 7.—Congressman Green, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and in favor of strong inheritance taxes for the rich, has been made some kind of judge at an increased salary. It's funny the administration never thought of giving Borah or Jim Reed or Walsh some judgeship where 't would keep them from ferreting out so much Republican devilment. I'll bet three of them could get appointments to the Supreme Court bench tomorrow if they would take it.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

"MY DEAR SIR: I was very much interested in receiving a copy of your remarks in your column about a month ago concerning my book, 'Notes on the Collection of Transfers.' I must say that I think you have done a better job of reading my book than the average reviewer. Some of my friends had a good laugh over it.

WHERE DID YOU GET IT?!
RHODE ISLAND!

"I am taking the liberty of enclosing our regular monthly bulletin on the subject dealt with in my book. Also, in the article entitled 'Announcements' on the second page you may find a few points about Pittsburgh—at least, as seen from our angle. Again maybe the jokes in the 'Here and There' Section of the Peridromophile may prove useful to you on occasion.

"I wonder if it would be possible to interest anyone connected with your papers in having me—or the editor of the enclosed bulletin—write an article of any desired length—or a series of articles—on the points which one can find of interest in collecting transfers, especially in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

"Yours very truly,
"FRANK FOLUPA."

"P. S. As I noticed that your review referred to laws against giving away transfers maybe you might note the fact that one of the strictest state laws on the subject is now in force in Pennsylvania. But again, 'Peridromophile Service' (on the first page of the enclosed bulletin) may suggest something else that would be the subject of a good joke in that direction. "F. F."

THE enclosed bulletin with the forbidding name, "The Peridromophile," deals in an intimate, chatty way with the doings of the various street car transfer collectors throughout the land. For instance, it is noted that Collector No. 3 has just returned from a tour of Rhode Island, where he was lucky enough to pick up one of two transfers that many of us had thought were extinct.

As for interesting the paper in a series that might appeal to Pittsburghers we question whether our recommendation would go very far. Certainly, we don't think that such a broad subject could be handled in one article. We would recommend a series of articles or none at all. It would be worthless, of course, without a snappy title. Something like: "Mr. Pittsburgher: What Do You Know About the Transfer Situation in Your Home City?" might have enough ring to it to catch on.

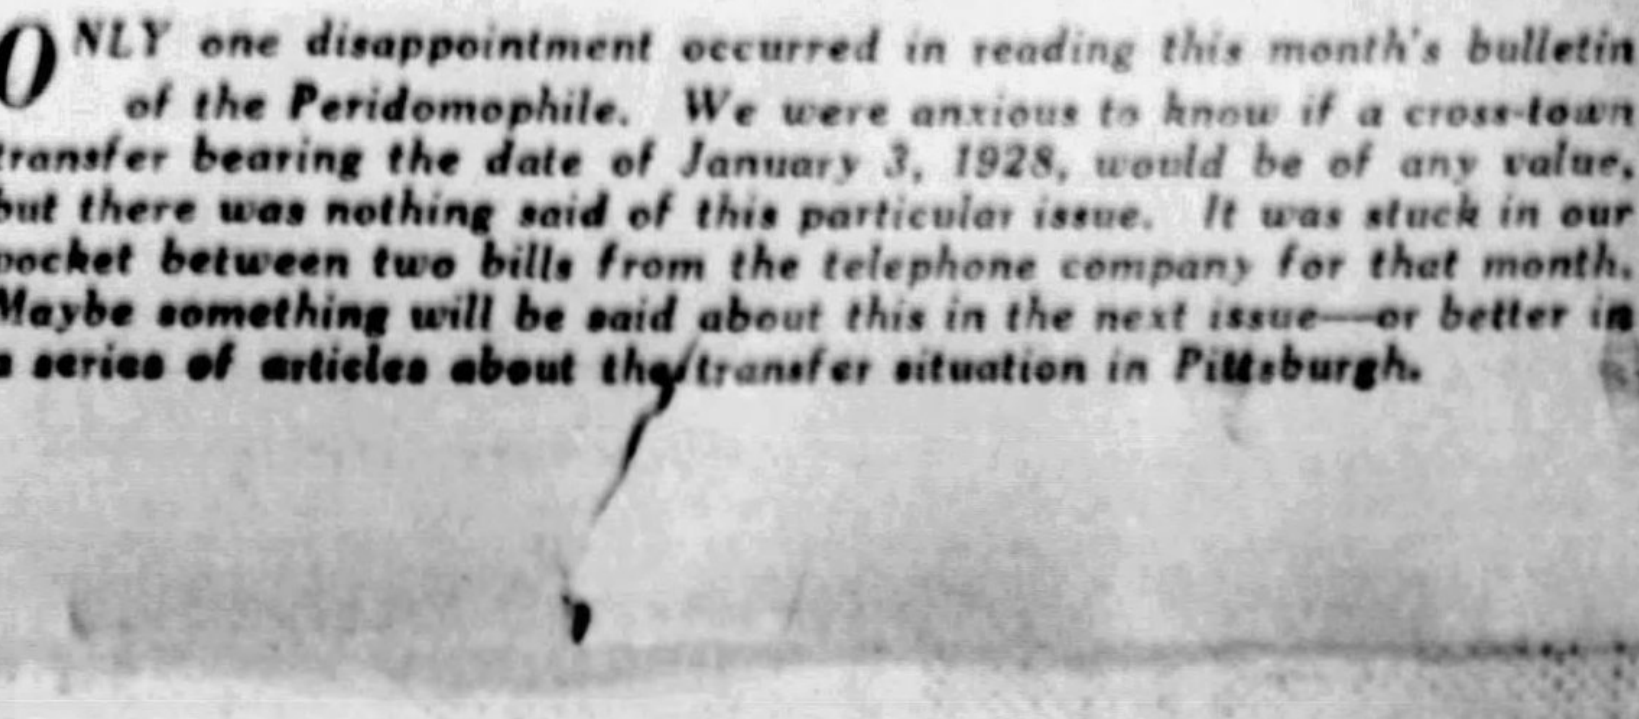
THE series about Pittsburgh transfers could get off to a great "lead" with the startling announcement that while for a time certain collectors thought a certain line in Brooklyn had more transfers than any other line it now comes to light, after much sweating and exploring by an alert collector, that none other than the Butler-Carson street line in Pittsburgh leads the country. This may be extended to world wide distinction after the European scouts make their final report.



BULLETIN
NOTHING ABOUT OLD CROSS-TOWN TRANSFERS!

IT IS with some excitement that we read in the bulletin received from Mr. Folupa that owing to downtown traffic regulations in Philadelphia southbound busses on line A will run on Race street instead of Arch street and this change will affect 22 exchange forms. This announcement will likely lead to a bonfire celebration, a parade and a banquet by the band of transfer collectors.

* * *

ONLY one disappointment occurred in reading this month's bulletin of the Peridomophile. We were anxious to know if a cross-town transfer bearing the date of January 3, 1928, would be of any value, but there was nothing said of this particular issue. It was stuck in our pocket between two bills from the telephone company for that month. Maybe something will be said about this in the next issue—or better in a series of articles about the transfer situation in Pittsburgh.

JERRY

The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait · by Elenore MEHERIN

Tess Willi Makes Up Her Mind to Marry Saxon and Follows Him Abroad

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good-looking, charming and 19, meets Saxon Rhodes, a young architect, and falls in love with him at first sight. Her fascinating mother, Marza, warns her that idealists like Saxon make unsatisfactory husbands. In spite of the fact that Jerry sees Saxon kissing Tess Willi, who has a great deal of money, she still clings to her ideal and refuses a marriage proposal from Heine Ross, a wealthy young suitor. Saxon runs across her while she is sketching and later they kiss each other rapturously in the moonlight. He takes her to lunch and Tess Willi comes to their table and makes a date with Saxon. Marza tells her she hopes she is not counting on marrying Saxon—that he has not enough money. Wondering if she had better give Saxon up, she gets a reassuring note from him. Saxon tries to argue himself into a belief that love is the only thing that counts and gaily makes plans with Jerry for their future. His uncle insists that he go abroad to complete his studies.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

THE trees closing the reservoir in darkness made a soft murmuring sound like running water.

For a long time they spoke only a few words. They sat with their hands tucked together.

Saxon thought: "Lord, I'm going to be homesick." He recalled the bitter loneliness of the year he had gone east to school. How excited he had been to see Esther Hill. Esther, whom he had scarcely noticed before, looked like an angel to him—for no reason in the world except that she came from home and knew the home folks, who in absence had most amazingly become very dear.

Loneliness is a vast devastating ache.

He drew Jerry closer. She was so warm and sweet. The boy's top-knot of her black, thick hair brushed against his cheek.

"I'm going to miss her terribly—terribly," he murmured to himself.

Jerry, sinking in his arms, thought: "He's leaving — another hour!" She wished, as often when Saxon held her and the sweetness of his lips seemed more than she could bear, that the world would vanish; would leave them stranded in this moment, swept eternally in each other's arms.

Again she thought: "Nothing will ever change for me. It will be he, always—he only."

This was solemn and a little frightening. Think of it—less than a year ago they didn't know each other; now they seemed so much one that the parting inflicted a mortal hurt.

She looked up quickly: "I've never said goodby before, Saxon. Not like this!"

He kissed her.

"I hope the two years fly!"

"They won't. They'll drag like an unhappy lifetime."

"Saxon, a lifetime isn't long enough—half long enough for all the love I've got for you!"

He saw and loved the dewy brightness of her eyes. "You don't know, Jerry. You're so young—younger tonight than before."

"Long past 20 now! I waited for love a long time—I was always so certain that I'd know instantly when it came. And I did. The moment I looked at you—that very first night. I almost told you so."

He laughed: 'I wish I could be sure of this, Jerry. That you're really going to wait for me. And when I come back it will be just as it is now. With both of us. I've a terrible feeling that it won't. That something will be changed. That I'm losing—I don't know what—but I'm losing."

"Not me, Saxon. I'm an awfully faithful wench. And I've a very chained feeling. I know I'm never going to get over you."

He turned her neat brown hands in his. He looked a long while at her profile, sprite-like, cut eagerly and with a song and passion in the full sweet lips.

"Lord," said he hoarsely, "I'll be longing for you. It seems strange to be leaving. You'll write often? I'll wait for that. I'll be frightfully disappointed if you fail, Jerry—"

She laid her cheek softly on his:

"Every day. I'll have nothing else to do. Nothing else worth a moment's time."

She waited till he kissed her. With clasped hands they went out softly.

Then she was standing in the doorway, waving to him. And he came running back and looked at her face where the lashes were shiny and wet. He kissed them. She closed her eyes, felt his hands loiter on hers. . . . He was gone.

She poured herself out in her letters—ardent, audacious things.

Once Marza, coming in as she was sealing an envelope, stooped down and twined the topknot on her finger. She kissed Jerry and seemed very sad.

"You don't know what he writes back, Marza, darling," said Jerry, shrugging happily. To herself she murmured: "Worth the pangs! Worth any pangs!"

All through the winter it was like this. Burning phrase for phrase: "If I'd ever dreamed I would be as sunk as this, not all the futures in the world would have packed me off without you. Last night, Jerry, if I could have had you for one hour I'd have walked before the firing squad gaily when the hour was up. I wish now that I'd managed to take you. I would, if I'd known!"

A paragraph like this echoed and echoed. At odd moments she found herself smiling and repeating it—even planning to fly off to Europe at once—get the money somehow.

Spring came. A brightness stole into his writing—a sketch here and there of the artist fellows he met. One day happening down the boulevard he ran plump into John Ivers—she remembered him. And there was John sitting in the middle of the street with his canvas and palette, holding up the Parisian traffic while he did his sketching. Wonderful the understanding of these amiable gendarmes!

"Paris is wonderful in April. I'd read about it, but you'd think the whole world had burst into blossom, the parks and the country out a bit are all in gorgeous decoration. Now is the time you should be here. All winter, Jerry, I kept waiting for you to write and say you were coming over.

"Remember that book about George Sand you gave me to read? Well, I fancied you might come like that, masquerading as a page, and we would see the world together. Dear woodland thing, the spring is awful without you. There are some woods not very far from here. I would take you there. I've never seen moonlight so enchanting. I sit under a tree and all I do is ache and long—for you." For days after this she had no interest in food—no interest in dancing. Not even a whistle now and then brightened Marza's living room.

But she was happy. She was lost in her happiness.

Late in the summer, without explanation, his letters ceased.

She wrote and wrote.

A postcard came saying he was very busy. Other postcards—very brief, followed this.

One night—a September night—she went with Marza and a party to Tait's. She could remember exactly the warm, sweet scent of the gardenias Marza wore.

But it was while she danced with Heinie.

"I suppose you saw this," said he, leading her down into the gardens about the pagoda.

She took the clipping, and when they came to a single light blooming like a lost gold flower in a wilderness of dark, she held it up and read.

CHAPTER XII.

THE clipping was cut from the society news of the Sunday paper. Jerry, conscious of Heinie's resentful eyes, read slowly:

"Miss Theresa Willi and her aunt, Mrs. Ambrose Brent, will leave soon for the continent. Miss Willi is deeply interested in art, having taken several courses at the Watteau Institute in Chicago. She plans to continue her studies in Paris and will remain indefinitely. Miss Willi is the fifth San Franciscan to take up residence in the art colony within the past year. Among friends planning to welcome her are Saxon Rhodes, Loring Masters, John Ivers and Rod Porter."

Jerry folded the bit of paper and asked in a voice slightly strained: "When did Tess develop the arty streak?"

"At the same time she decided to marry Saxon Rhodes!"

Jerry gave a short mocking laugh: "If she has to become an artist before she becomes a wife, Saxon is safe."

"Tess," said Heinie meanly, 'has money! And she bats pretty high with the best of them here and in San Mateo. That counts when a fellow has an eye on the main chance like your friend Rhodes."

"You mean, Heinie, that I get the gate and Tess gets the ring?"

"I'm just wising you up. That's all. She's going over there. And he's going to be the grand little guide initiating her to the thrills of the quarter. They're going to the artists' ball together. So that's that!"

Jerry swallowed a large, smothering breath and grinned: "Where did you get the dirt, love?"

"She told me herself. It shouldn't stun you. He played both of you here!"

She flung her head up, flashing: "He—he didn't!"

Her mind rushed with images . . . the beautiful sweetness of his last kiss and his hands loitering so tenderly on hers, that phrase from his letter: "I sit under a tree and all I do is ache and long for you. . . ."

She smiled dreamily: "He wasn't playing me, Heinie. No man could!"

"Oh, no—you can high-hat the whole world, but no one high-hats you!"

"You're right! I do what I'm wanting to do, independent of the other fellow's feeling. If I see someone and shout to him in a friendly way: 'Hello, there!' and he comes back with a snooty 'how-do,' do you think I'm snubbed? Not much! I merely pity the poor prune who doesn't know good feeling when it's offered, and I go on shouting 'Hello' to him as often as the mood seizes me. I'm not humbled by some one else's shabbiness.

"So you see, Heinie love, no man plays me!"

"You think he's in love with you!"

"No—you're the one who thinks that. I'm so very entrancing to you—you're like a jealous husband imagining that even the garbage man is in love with his wife."

She was walking very fast; breathing very sharply, rattling along with her tongue, a blaze and unrest in her mind.

There was that long silence—the brief postcards.

Could it be—could it possibly be that Saxon was taking this way of wiping her from the picture?

Not for a moment did she believe this—not for the shadow of a moment.

She went hurrying along through the luring fascination of these dark, winding paths. One night she and Saxon had walked here. They had found that little stone bench, behind the shrubs. They sat there, forgetting the crowd; forgetting the world. She looked up and saw the moonlight in a halo on his tanned, buoyant face. She remembered her pang of joy because he seemed thrilling to her and god-like. The sound of his muffled laugh when he kissed her.

She paused in her swift walking, freezing with the shock of a sudden question: "Suppose he IS through?"

Three days after this, Jerry, browsing through aisles of books in the French book store, heard Tess's loud, dramatic voice: "Brushing up on your French, too, ole thing! I'm reading every French newspaper and journal I can lay a hand to. . . . Let's have a cup of tea and talk it all over."

She followed Tess because she was so hungry for a word of him—any word.

Tess unwound a gaudy scarf and disarranged still more the hair about her temples. She had lovely red-gold hair that had not been bobbed. She let it straggle in curls on her neck and frowsily about her face, imagining herself temperamental and prima donna-like. She was mistaken. She only looked disorderly and as though she needed a good, hard scrubbing.

Now she leaned across the table, idly turning a big jade ring that she wore—also temperamentally—on her forefinger.

"What do you hear from our darling Sacks?"

"Nothing exciting lately. What do you?"

"Thrilling! But everything is to me now. You've heard that I'm going abroad? That I'm joining them? I've been wanting to do Paris as an art student all my life!

"Jerry, fancy going to that perfectly awful Artists' Ball. Saxon says it eclipses in brilliant audacity anything you've conjured even in your wild, secret dreams."

Tess let her eyes close languorously: "I can hardly wait to get there."

"When do you leave?"

"Why—the end of the week. We're taking the fastest trains and the biggest liner, Aunt Amy"—Tess pronounced it. "Haunt Army"—"doesn't like traveling, and of course I'm tickled purple because I can't get there too soon. Did Sacks send you some of those perfectly darling little sketches from Italy?"

Madge Somewhat Softens and Delivers Philip Veritzen's Message to His Son

AS I slipped into the hall from the veranda I put my finger on my lips, and Katie with her ever-ready instinct for melodrama closed her own firmly and tiptoed stealthily ahead of me until we were well out of earshot of the people on the front veranda.

"Dot yung Meester Veritzen on side porch," she whispered.

"Thank you, Katie, I'll go there at once," I answered, dismissing her, and in another minute I was on the side veranda and the young violinist was looking at me with eager questioning eyes that gave me the uncomfortable sensation of being about to strike a friendly, defenseless child.

For I knew only too well what that eager interrogative gaze meant. Noel had stipulated that if he were to dine with us, his father must be told of the invitation and signify his willingness to sit at the same table with the son he had treated so cavalierly. I had told the youth that my sending for him would mean his father's assent, and I could see plainly that the lonely boy's heart was hopefully interpreting the summons as a promise of full reconciliation with the father he so loved, but from whom he had been estranged for years.

My throat constricted as I remembered the callous message which Philip Veritzen had commissioned me to give to his only son.

'Assure my young cub that I have no objection to meeting him at dinner," he had said. "Tell him I shall greet him as if we were in the habit of meeting every day, and I shall expect the same hypocisy from him. He, of course, will understand that the meeting will not alter our relations."

My common sense told me that it was useless for me to try to soften that message, but every compassionate impulse within me rebelled at the thought of delivering it verbatim to the lad looking at me with such eager, hopeful eyes, and whose voice at once uttered the embarrassing question I dreaded.

"Jim told me you said everything was all right, and that I was to come back with him," he said shyly but eagerly. "Does that mean that dad wants things to be as they used to be?"

"That I cannot tell you," I said trying to frame my reply in words that should be truthful in letter at least. "I did not have time to talk to him very long. But he said to assure you that he had no objection to meeting you at dinner, and added that he would greet you as if he were in the habit of meeting you every day and expected the same casualness from you. You know he is not the man to betray his feelings to an outsider, but I am sure you will be able to detect his real sentiments very quickly. Will you let me give you one bit of advice which I am sure is unnecessary?"

"Will I let you?" he exclaimed.

"Then take your cue from him in everything," I directed. "Do not make any advances to him, but respond cordially to any which he makes to you."

"If he makes any," Noel returned a bit despondently, and I saw that he was somewhat depressed by the absence of any definite message of reconciliation with his father. What state of mind would have been his if I had given him all of the elder Veritzen's message, I easily could surmise, and was glad indeed that I had kept it back.

"Don't be foolish," I admonished him tartly, for I felt that his spirit needed a fillip. "You know your father is a man who cannot be hurried into anything. I think it is a long step forward for him to acquiesce in this dinner arrangement."

"Ah!" said Noel, "that is because of you, not me."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps to neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

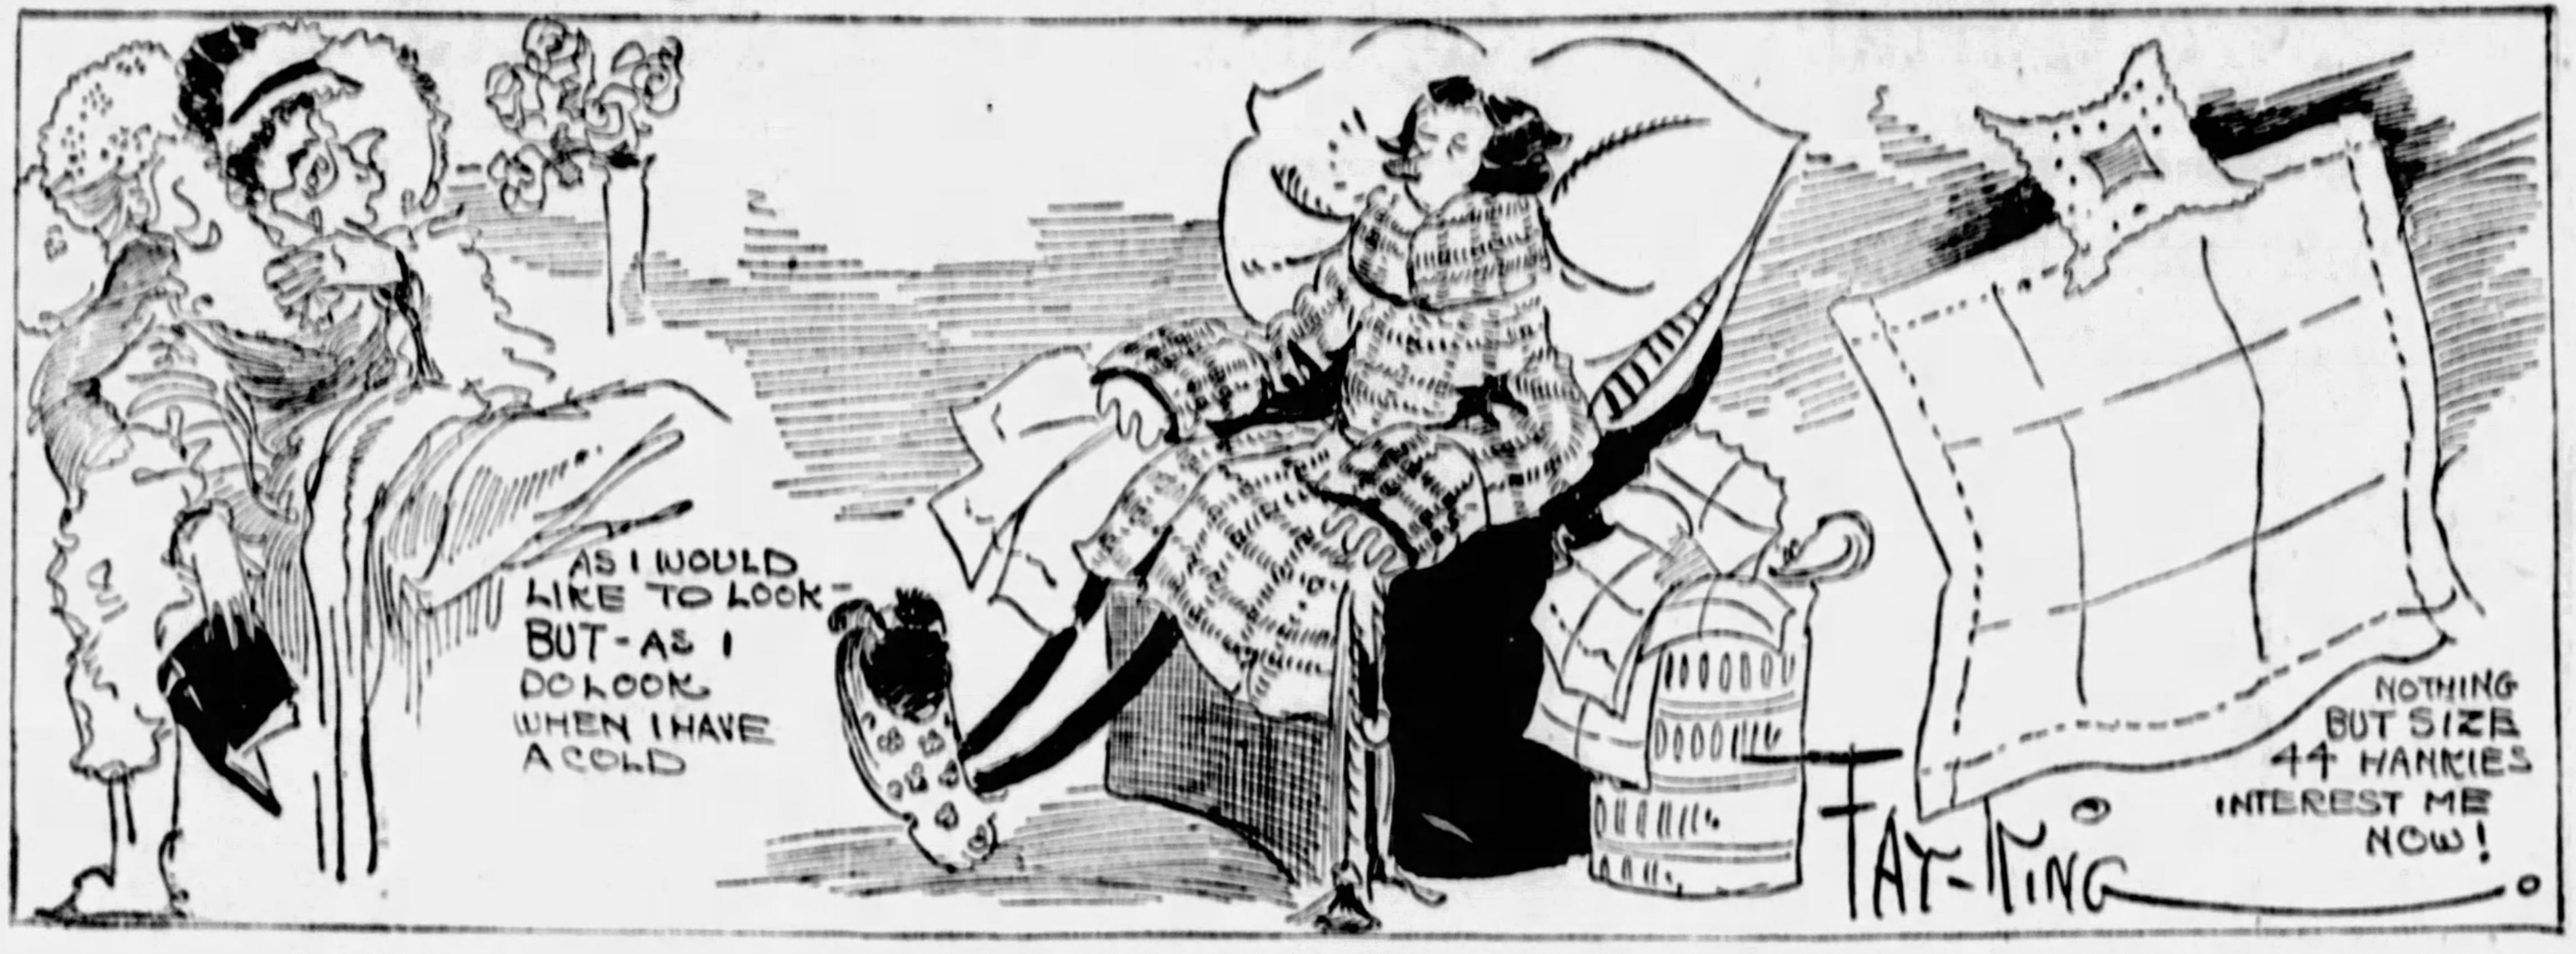
Fay King With a Cold No Artistic Invalid



AS I WOULD LIKE TO LOOK—
BUT—AS I DO LOOK WHEN I HAVE A COLD
NOTHING BUT SIZE 44 HANKIES INTEREST ME NOW!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

HOW often I have watched with envy the beautiful actresses of the stage and screen expiring!

Not that I really wished to expire, but they do it so beautifully, one is almost inspired to expire if they could look so well!

No matter what terrible malady has brought about this beautiful last scene, the only visible symptoms are an interesting wide-eyed pallor and the cutest little dabbings with the daintiest hankie that one could wish!

How sweet they look propped up among the fluffy feathers and silken coverlets!

One's pity is almost quenched by one's admiration!

But, alas, what a difference when an ordinary mortal like myself gets a sudden cold in the head!

Instead of an interesting pallor, I seem to take on the complexion of a newly-cooked lobster!

Nothing but a good old-fashioned full-sized bandanna handkerchief answers my purpose, and not one, but a dozen, piled up in a waste basket beside me gives me any comfort and security!

Many Camilles have coughed themselves to fame and fortune, but I doubt if any of them could have succeeded with a musical and artistic sneeze!

But what I really started out to say is that I am not able to think of a thing today.

So I won't have any story today. "Excuse it, please."

Business Worries Hurtful When Taken to Bed

A FRIEND of mine says that, "A night of worry is more wearing than a month of work."

This is a saying entitled to be immortalized among the classics.

DR COPELAND

The blackest and most trying hour possible to experience is that period in the middle of the night when you awake from slumber and think over your affairs. No matter what may have been your sentiments when you went to bed your outlook on life at three o'clock in the morning verges on despair.

The morning after a single hour's experience of this sort may turn out to be bright and cheerful. You look back upon the worries of three o'clock as something to be laughed at and forgotten. The life that seemed so hopeless in the night is after all worth living.

But when you go to bed full of worries and anxieties, and stay awake all night nursing these anxieties, you get out of bed in the morning a perfect wreck.

Your slumber is fitful. The few times you fall asleep you are dreaming terrible things. You toss about in bed and wear out every particle of nervous energy you have in your reserve supply.

After such a night as this, you get up to find yourself unfit for the burdens of the day. It is indeed true that a night of this sort is more wearing than a month of work.

What are the causes of night worries? You may have rather a cheerful outlook on life in the daytime. Why should you dream, lose your self-confidence, imagine you have lost your best friend and that you are going to the poorhouse? What's wrong with you, anyhow?

You should go to bed to sleep. That is no place to rearrange your business affairs or to make plans for the future. The bed and the bedroom should be arranged with reference to quiet, health-promoting sleep.

Ordinarily it is not difficult to find the reason for fitful sleep. If you are in the habit of sleeping poorly and waking up in the middle of the night to spend an hour or two in worrying, make a survey of yourself and your surroundings.

Let us consider first your own self. Do you make it a practice to eat a lot of food just before retiring, indigestible food that will cause your stomach to rebel three or four hours after you get to bed? If this has been your custom, you should reform. Be satisfied with the full meal you had at seven o'clock and let that last you until morning.

On the other hand it may be that you are hungry and need just a bite to eat before you go to sleep. A glass of milk sipped slowly, or a few crackers may take the blood to your stomach instead of leaving it to flood the brain and excite your thoughts.

Many persons who are constipated are likely to have broken sleep. This is a condition which should be overcome.

The bed clothing must not be over-warm or over-heavy. If you are too hot in the night, your sleep is sure to be disturbed.

There must be an abundance of air in the room. The room should be dark and cool.

Answers to Health Queries

REMOVING FILM EACH DAY does in a small way what your dentist does by cleaning teeth. Thus Anne Pomeroy is urged by her doctor to use Pepsodent, the special film-removing dentifrice.

Film-Free Teeth

Are White and Sparkling

FILM on teeth makes lovely teeth look dull, "off color." It causes many serious tooth and gum disorders, as science knows. You must remove it. Dentists urge new way.

THIS offers you a simple scientific test—one judged a most remarkable dental test. It will produce a brilliance and whiteness in teeth you do not realize they have. It will improve your gums.

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film . . . a viscous coat that covers them. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs discolorations and gives your teeth that cloudy, "off-color" look. Germs by the millions breed in it, and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Tooth troubles and gum troubles now are largely traced to that film. Old-time methods fail in successfully combating it. That's why your teeth remain dull and unattractive.

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, dental science has provided effective combatants. Their action is to curdle the film and remove it in gentle safety to enamel.

The teeth you see when that film is removed will amaze you. Ordinary methods fail in these results.

Get Pepsodent at your druggist's. Or mail the coupon. A 10-day tube will be sent free.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, March 8

If we command our wealth we shall be rich and free; if our wealth commands us we are poor indeed.—BURKE.

A PARTICULARLY lively and aggressive day is forecast from the dominant astral forces, and while the spirit of initiative and adventure may be rampant, yet there may be little real return for effort unless the substance be conserved and speculative undertakings be avoided. Protect the finances, sign all writings with precaution and be on guard against fraud or treachery.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively year, with the impetus to bold adventure and initiative strong, but unless the tendency to headlong gestures and speculation be avoided there may be loss. Sign all writings with precaution and be on guard against fraud or duplicity.

A child born on this day should be aggressive and enterprising, but unless the tendency to overdo in this direction be restrained, it may not make substantial progress. It may suffer by fraud or misrepresentation financially.

Simple Vamping

Lesson Twelve

By HELEN ROWLAND

DON'T worry about your "sex-appeal."

Unless you have some OTHER appeal, you're only "one of a crowd" in the average man's consciousness, anyway.

The truth is that almost any pretty woman who knows enough to keep her nose powdered, her hair curled, and the seams in her stockings straight, has more or less sex-appeal for almost ANY man.

HELEN ROWLAND

Dimpled knees and cooing ways don't make a man dizzy any more. They have lost their potency, now that "sex-appeal" is as common as adenoids, as obvious as a gold tooth, and as free as the air at a filling station.

The day has passed when women feared a professional "vamp." The girl that a wife fears, nowadays, is the bright-eyed, intelligent, snappy business girl down in her husband's office, who "understands" him. The girl with individuality. If Cleopatra wanted to vamp a modern American man she would have to chloroform him, first.

One dimple doesn't stir him any more than another dimple; one lipstick is just as cloying as another lipstick; one permanent wave is no more provocative than another permanent wave. Every woman is gotten up to look like a heart-wrecker, these days.

The only way in which one girl can stand out from all the others or make a dent in a man's consciousness, is by finding some OTHER "appeal"—mental appeal, emotional appeal, spiritual appeal—and playing it to win.

It is that something BEHIND a woman's eyes and underneath the water-wave—that something "different"—which strikes the spark in his imagination and lights up the "scenery."

It may be a ready wit, an original line, a wistful smile, a charm of voice or trick of manner or just plain sweetness or radiance or beauty of character; but it is that something distinctive—that SUPER-appeal—which spells "personality."

* * *

Glance around at the women who are the happiest wives, the women who have drawn Grade A husbands, and know how to keep those husbands devoted, and you will be astonished to see how little so-called "sex-appeal" they exhibit. That is because they have put all the emphasis on that "other appeal."

* * *

Wherever you find a woman who is adored, you will find a woman with the kind of "appeal" that won't wash off with the make-up or wear off with age, or die until SHE dies—personality!

* * *

It is not the shape or the paint or the upholstery that distinguishes one car from another or makes one girl a charmer and another a flat-tire. It is what's under the hood!

To Clean Light Furs

Light furs which get discolored and greasy by contact with the neck can be cleaned with benzine in the ordinary way, the only thing to note being that the piece of flannel applying the spirit must be gently rubbed, always the right way of the fur.

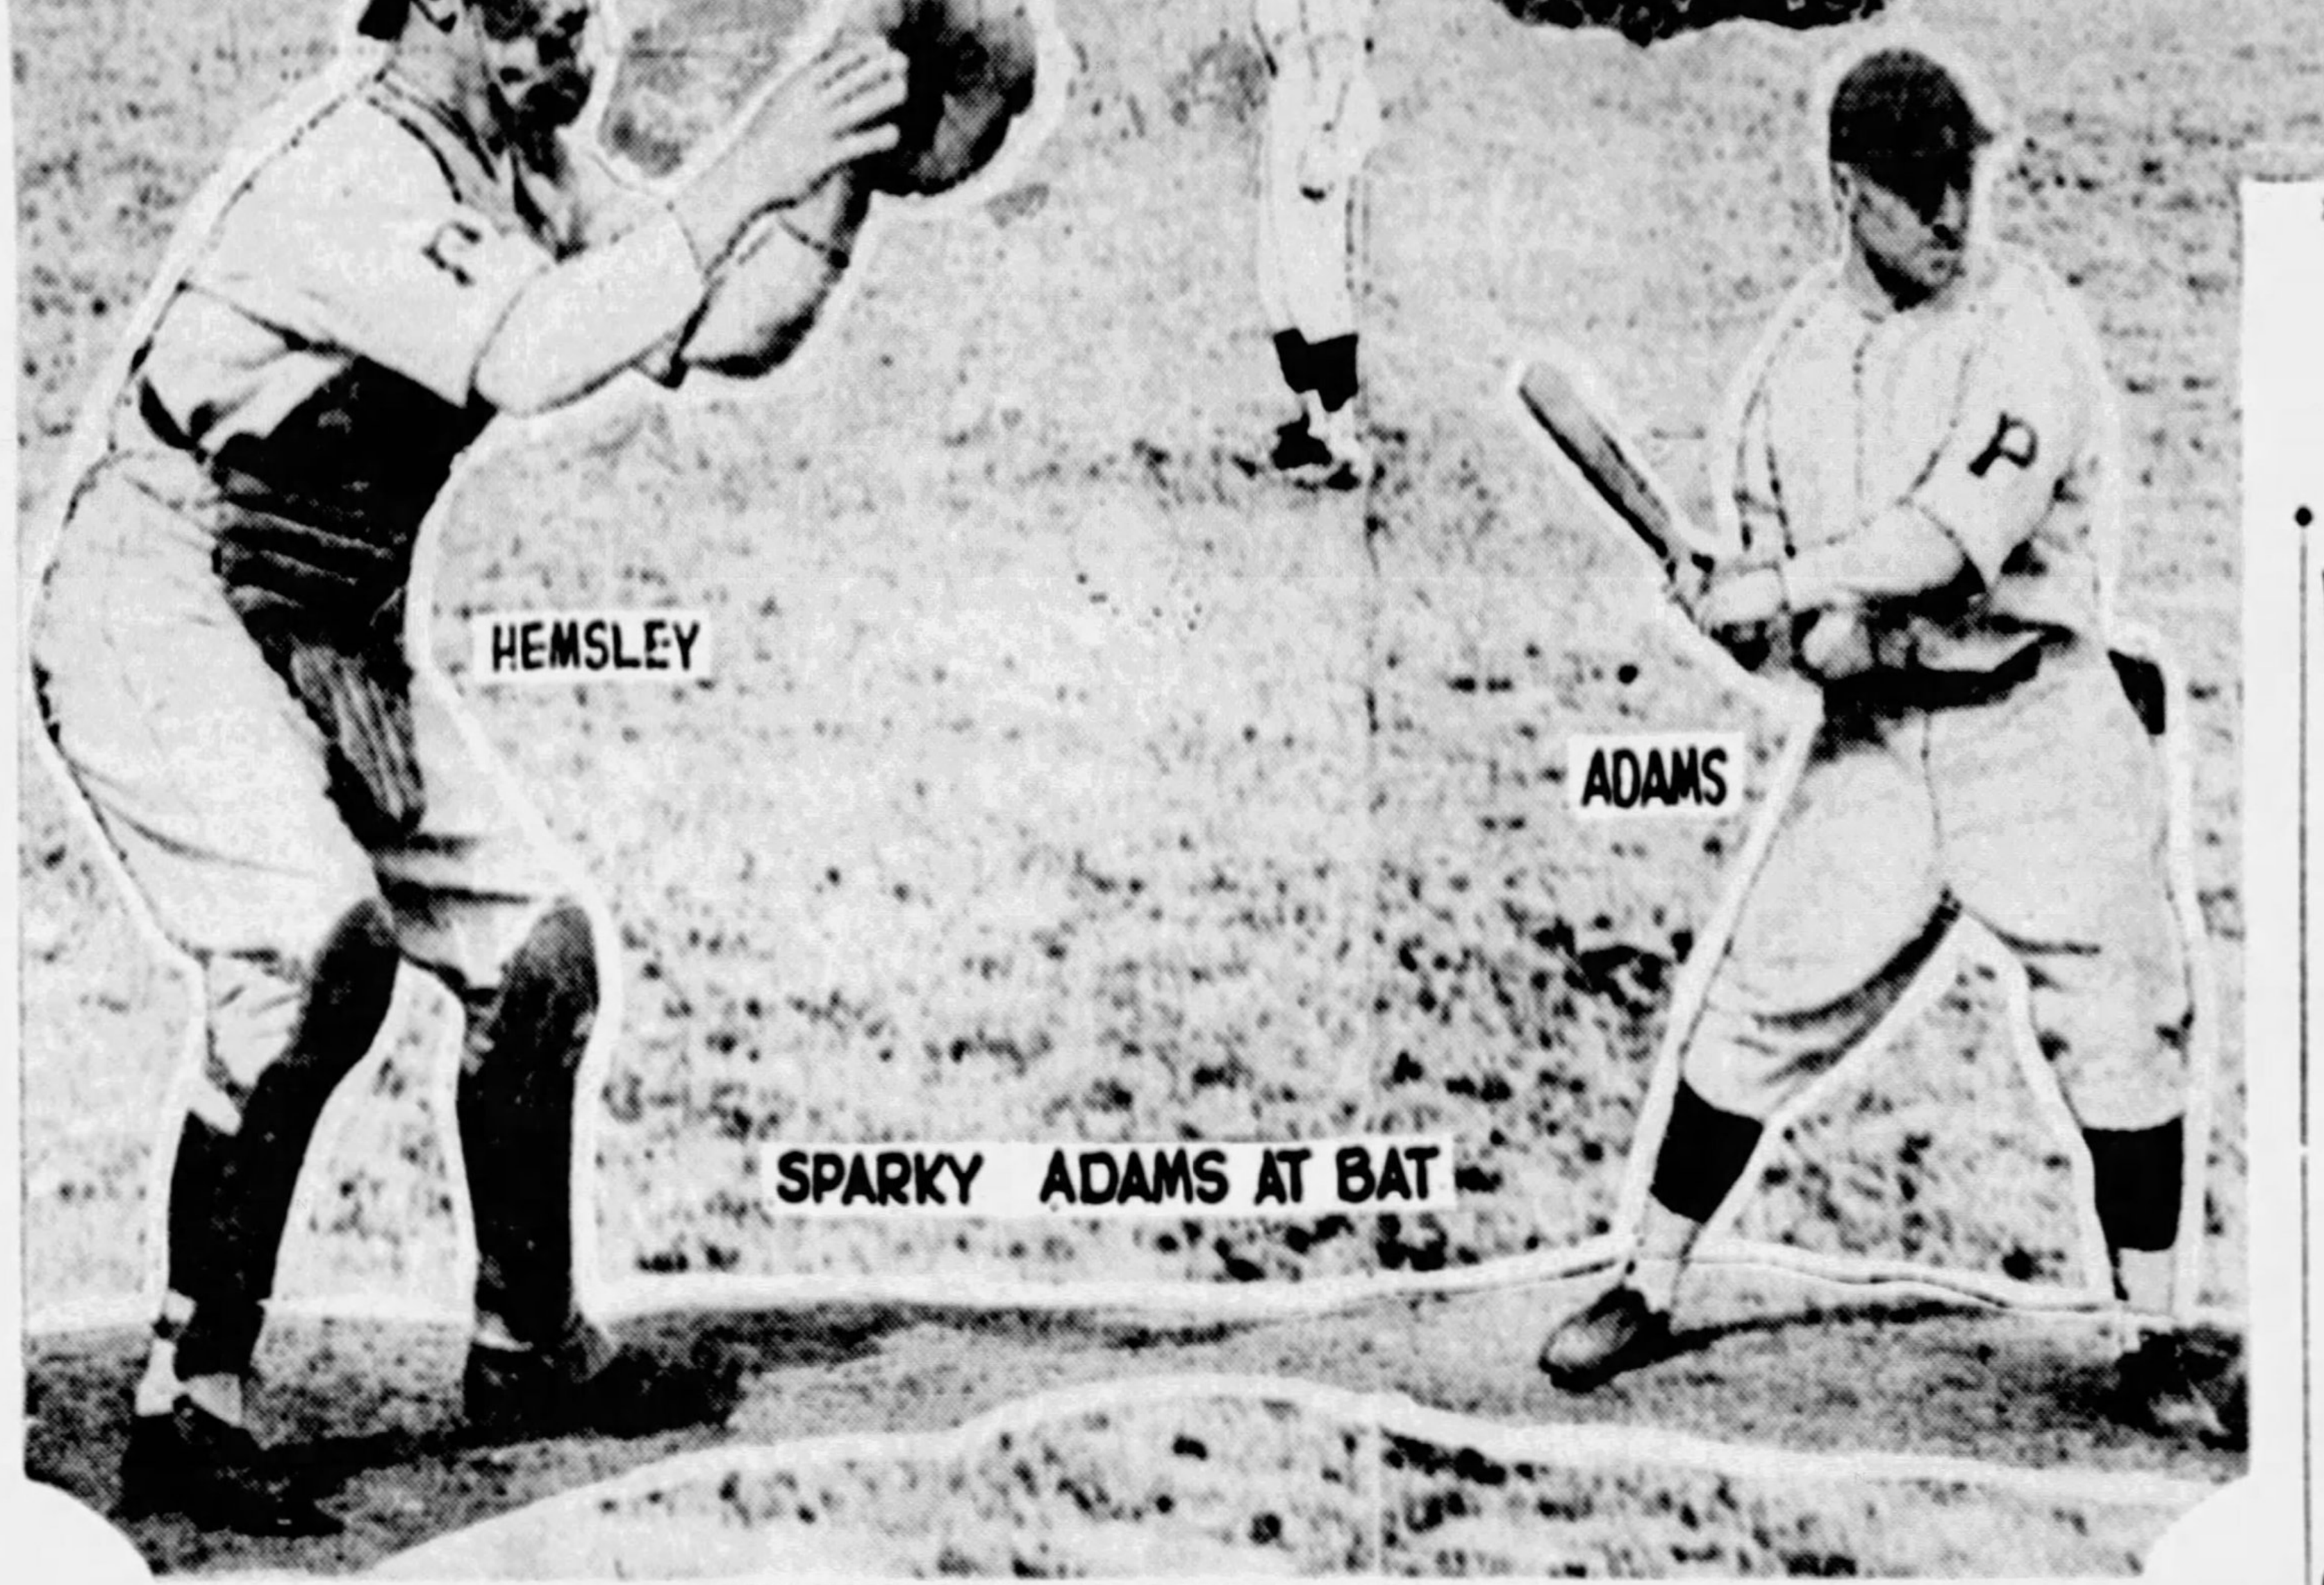
SMALL, BUT MIGHTY BUCS

Manager Donie Bush and Second Baseman Sparky Adams of the Pirates are among the smallest men in stature in baseball, but they rank with the elite in ability. Both are energetic characters on the ball field and easily overcome their handicap of lack of stature. Bush in his playing days was a brilliant shortstop for the Detroit Tigers.



SPARKY GETS IN LICKS AT PLATE

Sparky Adams is the hope of the Pirates' new combination with which Manager Bush will make a bid to retain the National League championship this season. The little second baseman is a star fielder and also a good sticksmith. Above picture shows him on his first appearance at bat in the training drills at Paso Robles. Pictures of the Pirates are superimposed over a general view of the playing field at Paso Robles with the athletes going through their paces.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

WHILE speculating on the chances of various new players to win places on Father Pitt's baseball team this year, don't overlook the possibility that a right-hand pitching recruit named Ervin Brame is apt to be found still hanging around after the training period has ended and the regular season is under way.

PASO ROBLES, March 7.—Donie Bush, Pirate pilot, loves young ball players, but the rookies will have to make the best of it if they feel they are neglected in favor of the veterans in the next few days. The boss of the National League champions is so anxious to get his regulars ready for competition he is giving them a lion's share of attention and will continue to do so until he is satisfied with their training progress.

Bush has stated that he probably would stage the first camp fight tomorrow. The initial scrap originally was slated for yesterday, but it had to be shoved off the program on account of prolonged visits of rain. The ball orchard would be in shape for a tussle today if the sun is as strong as it was yesterday, but Donie says he won't take a chance on competition, as many of the first string players are not advanced far enough in their work to "bear down."

The first team, nevertheless, was much nearer to desired shape this morning than it was 24 hours before. The reason lay in the longest workout yet held by the big squad.

During the hour of limbering up it did not seem wise to get onto the

AT a special conference held in St. Joseph's new Mt. Oliver Lyceum last night, representatives of St. Josephs, winners of the first half of Reserve Lyceum League, and St. Michaels, winners of the second half, met and arranged all details for the post-season series which is to start next Saturday on St. Joseph's Mt. Oliver Lyceum court. Referees Sterling and Strahl, of the Tri-State group, are to handle this game. The second game is to be played on St. Michael's Pius street court next Wednesday and Referees Bill Griffith and Bill Sterling are to do the officiating. The third game, if necessary, will be played on the South Side Market House floor Saturday, March 17, and the officials are to be chosen from the four mentioned.

The last West Penn League game for the two East End teams will be played on the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. floor tonight between Webster Hall and the "Y" team.

STRENGTHENED by the addition of two local college stars whose names will not be announced until they complete their collegiate careers, the Braddock American Legion quintet, former member of the Allegheny County League, will undertake a difficult independent schedule next week.

Manager Hyman Gerhsuney has arranged to meet the Felder Club at Jeannette next Monday night, the Enoch Rauh Club at Columbus Temple next Tuesday night, and Uniontown at Uniontown Friday night.

The Braddock management has opened negotiations with the leading first class teams in this vicinity for games and indications are that the Legionaires will be quite active before the curtain falls on the local professional basketball campaign.

A THREE-CORNERED deadlock for the second half laurels of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Vallek League looms as the teams enter the final week of play. The E. P. Junkers had the honors all but clinched last week, but met reverses at the hands of the Sianos and the Somermans.

Only one more game is scheduled for the Junkers, that with the Sianos at McKeesport next Saturday night. The Junkers need this game to assure themselves of a place in the playoffs with the J. J. Mieles, who won the first-round championship. In event the Junkers lose, the Tubers, Sianos and Somermans will be tied for first place, thereby necessitating a playoff to determine the winner.

DRIBBLES

As a result of defeating the McKeesport Alumni team, the Falk Memorial passers won the championship of the major league for the second round and will meet the Windslow Club for the title unless the officials decide to stage another round of play.

The Yans Wallace Club desires games abroad with teams in the midget class. Call Sterling 2073 and ask for Ralph Malley.

Owing to the cancellation of the Penn Five, the North Side Community House passers will meet the Y. M. H. A. on the Community floor tomorrow night. The reserves meet Heinz House Reserves in the preliminary.

ADA, Okla., March 7.—(AP.)—Returning to the state where he first aspired to track honors, Loren Murchison, Olympic athlete and former king of sprinters, has announced his retirement because of ill health.

Arriving here with his wife and mother to visit friends, Murchison said a recent illness and operations had left him unfit for competition for the present at least, and he believed it best to retire.

Bowling Dub Gets Chance

According to plans adopted for the division of the prize money in the first annual American Duckpin Congress tournament, to be rolled on the Haus alleys, North Side, April 9 to 21, the also-rans will come in for their share of the spoils. The new plan was announced today by Raymond A. Turpen, chairman of the board of directors of the tournament, who elaborated on it as follows:

"When the last ball is rolled the night of April 21, the scores of the teams will be arranged in numerical order with the highest score first and the lowest score last. The first 125 in the singles, doubles and five-men event will be put in Class A, the next 125 in Class B, the next 125 in Class C and the last 125 in Class D.

"The prize committee will determine the number of winners in each class or division. Then the prize money will be distributed among these winners, as follows: In Class A 35 per cent. in Class

W.-J. RALLY TOO LATE; DUKES LOSE

By JESS CARVER.

ONE of those ball games of which you have read about, the sort that sends you home talking to yourself, whether your team won or not, was staged for the benefit of a jammed-to-the-rafters armory crowd at Washington last night when the undefeated Pitt Panthers made a 20-8 lead in the first half stand good for an eventually 33-32 victory over a stubborn and valiantly fighting Wash.-Jeff. varsity.

Wash-Jeff made the most brilliant comeback of the year to press the Panthers, who seemed too secure after their walkaway in the opening half. Field goals from all spots rained through the President basket as the last half waned, and the Kerrmen erased a 12-point lead held by Pitt in less than four minutes of play.

Pitt will now go into the game with Penn State with everything at stake—record, chance for a na-

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

PASO ROBLES, March 7.—Not unmindful of the Cardinals, Cubs and Giants are Donie Bush's Pirates as the National League champions go through their training sprouts in Paso Robles. The Bushwhackers realize they had to go right down to the finish line to win last summer, so there is no over-confidence in camp.

DOWN deeply in the feelings of every mothers son on the Pittsburgh squad there is warm desire to meet once more those Yankees who are sittin' pretty on top of the baseball world.

"Everybody on our club realizes the Yankees are a fine team," said Scout Chic Fraser in recounting events of last year.

"BUT our team was not itself in that World Series," continued Chic. "The strain of the last couple of weeks had its effect on the Pirates in the big scraps with the Yankees. It wouldn't be right to say anything derogatory as to the triump of Huggin's team, but I would like to see the Buccos in their right stride playing the Yankees about 15 games in mid-summer."

AMATEUR CARD COMPLETED

The card of 10 amateur boxing bouts to be staged at Motor Square Garden Saturday night, featuring seven between New York and Pittsburgh rivals, was announced today as follows:

Bucs' Series Hopes Fade

By CARL W. SHATTO.

PITTSBURGH'S hope of getting into the National League's play-off series, while not yet dead, today was in a state of coma, with respiration feeble and pulse slow and weak. For 15 minutes at Duquesne Garden last night, Pittsburgh's hopes rallied and it was thought that they might live indefinitely, but 45 minutes later the hopes utterly collapsed, and the tread of loyal followers of local hockey was heavy and slow as they silently filed from the Craig street clinic.

The relapse suffered by Pittsburgh hopes was brought about by Les Canadiens. Showing utter disregard for Pittsburgh's precarious position and condition, the debonair Frenchmen from Montreal gave the Pirates an awful shock in the form of a 2-1 defeat. The Bucs put up a thrilling, desperate fight in an effort to escape the push that started them down the steep slope to hockey oblivion, but their valiant battling against the league's pace-setters went for naught, and today none is so optimistic as to deny that the locals are destined to finish among the "also rans."

While the Pirates were losing, the Cougars of Detroit handed the crippled Toronto Leafs a 3-1 setback, thereby increasing their lead over Cleghorn's skaters to two full games. Provided the Detroiters win three of their remaining seven games (and there is no occasion to believe that they will win less than that), the Pirates would have to win all of the six games remaining on their card to finish in the money.

Joliat, Gagne and Morenz, starting forwards, were the gentlemen who did most of the heavy work as the Canadiens unloaded their ton of grief. Joliat tallied in the middle of the first period to match an unassisted goal which McCaffrey had registered in the first 49 seconds of play, and Gagne and Morenz, after five minutes of play in the second stanza, put on a combination play that gave the visitors the deciding goal and the game.

Of the three goals, McCaffrey's was the more brilliant and spectacular. Taking the puck near the Pirate net about one-half minute after the opening face-off, Bert skated the length of the arena, doubled back after being forced past the Canadiens' cage, and slipped the puck under Goalie Hainsworth even as he fell to make the save. Tricky skating and masterful stick-handling were Bert's only allies in his scoring feat.

JOLIAT TIES SCORE

Joliat's equalising tally, recorded when slightly less than five minutes of play remained in the period, climaxed a wild scrimmage near the Pirate cage. His shot was started from about three feet out, and Worters had no chance to save.

The combination play which Gagne and Morenz put on to clinch the decision after five minutes of play in the second period was a Morenz act with a Gagne encore. Skating as only he can skate, the brilliant Canadien center carried the disc the length of the ice only to lose it at the goal mouth, and Gagne, following close behind, supplied the finishing touch with a mere flip of his stick.

Outside of the Morenz-Gagne goal, the biggest feature of the second-period play was the sensational work of Capt. Roy Worters in the Pittsburgh nets. Time after time Roy brought the fans to their feet with stops that were little short of miraculous, and it was only his magnificent acrobatic feats that kept the visitors from making the game a one-sided fight.

Emulating major league pilots who make a practice of testing new lineups as the season wanes, Manager Cleghorn juggled his reserves into new positions, and the revamped lineup functioned perfectly. At the start of the third period McCurry was benched, McKinnon was given McCaffrey's defense post, and Bert was transferred to the front line. Performing brilliantly, McCaffrey gave the spare forward line power superior to any it had shown at any other time this season, and it is likely that he will remain a member of the attacking trio for the remainder of the season.

diamond, but the sun and wind worked wonders, so much so that when the customary time came for the whistle, Donie refused to blow it. On the contrary he ordered a flock of pitchers to prepare for a batting drill.

At the conclusion of the batting drill, Bush gave his first infield a chance to cavort at their various positions. Traynor, Wright, Adams and Grantham went through a lively session. That just suited Bush, who was highly pleased when the squad reached the bathhouse at the end of three fine hours.

The fur is expected to fly in the first Regular-Yannigan scrap. The Hooligans are all set to spring at their elders, in fact, they are "mooching" around with a lot of pent-up energy.

The camp continues to be free of serious ailments. Dr. William Marks, however, has quite a few minor cases on his hands. Pitcher Fred Fussell was ordered to bed yesterday on account of some trouble with his stomach. He may take part in the sessions slated for today.

John Miljus is adorned with an abscess which he does not cherish. The club physician has lanced the troublesome sore and John is on the road to recovery. Lee Meadows is troubled with a sinus affliction, but so far he has not missed a session. Ralston Hemsley, after taking a foul on his instep, is flying around as lively as usual.

the tune of its defeat was 47 to 33. While Monessen, by all means, had the best team, Sewickley was by no means disgraced. It rather became bewildered at the outset by the magic-like suddenness of Monessen's swift attack, and took a little time to recover. Yet even when it did recover and showed flashes of real winning basketball, it could not overcome nor ever overtake its opponent.

Monessen took advantage of its foul chances, scoring 9 out of 13 while the percentage for Sewickley was hardly as good, it counting only 7 out of 17. Monessen sunk 19 field goals to the Gray outfit's 13.

tional title and its reputation to do the right thing at the right time in the tough spots. To have lost to Wash-Jeff last night would have been tough—but I'll be dog-goned if the Presidents didn't deserve a victory, after staging such a comeback. It would have been great to have seen old Bill Amos in there with the score tied and—. But let that go.

Charlie Hyatt led the Panther attack, scoring seven field goals and four fouls for a total of 18 points. He scored 11 in the first half, three more than the entire Wash-Jeff team.

While Pitt and Wash-Jeff were staging such a hotsy totsy battle, the Durable Dukes of Duquesne were closing their 1927-28 campaign by taking a punching around at New Concord, the crack Muskingum five making it two in a row over the locals by handing 'em a 47-21 setback.

The Duquesne record for the season is 14 games won and seven lost. Muskingum took both games from the locals.

HE COULDN'T EAT WITHOUT DISTRESS

Pittsburgh Man Relieved of Awful Indigestion By Using Ten Herbs.

"I suffered with such awful indigestion that it was impossible for me to eat anything without suffering distress from sour stomach, gas and belching," was the statement of Mr. C. D. Sailer, Seventh Avenue Hotel, Pittsburgh, to the Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the new herbal preparation, Ten Herbs. "I was a traveling man for twelve years, and I believe that my eating at different places and at all hours of the day was the cause of my badly disordered stomach," Mr. Sailer continued. "At times, I had patches of ulcers in my mouth and on my lips. I also suffered with pains in my right side, and was unable to find anything that would give me relief.

"Friends recommended Ten Herbs, and I can truthfully say that they did not exaggerate the merits of this wonderful medicine, as it gave me complete relief. I hope that all who are suffering as I did will give Ten Herbs a trial, in which event I feel sure they will be benefited as I was."

The problem of combating the scourge of stomach trouble, and its attending ills, has been solved by the new natural compound, Ten Herbs. This medicine not only benefits the stomach, but cleanses and invigorates the entire system, and makes life worth living for those who are weak and run down. Ten Herbs also regulates the liver and bowels, and usually makes one feel better in every way. More and more persons are coming to realize the truth of these statements, as is attested by the words of praise for Ten Herbs, given by Pittsburgh citizens that have been printed in the local papers.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

GAME TONIGHT.

Carter vs. Eichenmiller, at Kalmer's Oakland.

ONE of the best exhibitions of duckpin bowling seen at the Davis alleys this season was turned in by Jeff Marcheck of Sharpsburg recently when he rolled successive games of 225, 277, 181 and 193. During the exhibition Marcheck made 29 straight marks and his average for the four games was 219.

A wobbling pin in the roll-off, which failed to fall after what appeared to be a perfect hit, robbed George B. Daubensteck, manager of the Penn Recreation alleys, of a chance to register a perfect score in a practice game Monday night. Daubensteck got strikes on his first 10 balls. His first ball in the roll-off hit the head pin perfectly, according to witnesses, and nine pins toppled over. For a moment it appeared as if the tenth would follow to give him 11 straight strikes, but the pin steadied itself and remained standing. Daubensteck got the spare, giving him a score of 290. Starting his next game, he got a strike.

Although the A. B. C. tournament entry list does not include his name, Ed Votel, prominent bowler of East Pittsburgh, announces he will be a contestant in the bowling classic, scheduled in Kansas City. Votel will be a member of the Saunier Wilhelm delegation, which is scheduled to take the alleys on March 19 and 20.

While no changes have been recorded in the doubles of the Votel Brothers' tenpin tournament now in progress in East Pittsburgh, two changes have been made in the singles. Bill Adolphson of Greensburg has taken first place with a score of 624. He got 194 in his first game, 226 in his second and 204 in his third. Jerry Saunier, Mt. Washington, advanced to third place as a result of getting 614.

NATALIE BEATS OSWALD

CHICAGO, March 7.—(AP.)—The 16 contestants in the national pocket billiard championship tourney were divided into two classes today, half having clear slates and the others having one or more defeats, at the end of the first round of games.

The three who have worn the title, Frank Taberski of Schenectady, N. Y., incumbent, and Ralph Greenleaf of Philadelphia and Erwin Rudolph of Chicago, came through the first series in easy fashion. Pasquale Natalie of Baltimore and Peter Durocher of Chicago also won their first matches.

Joseph Concannon of Washington was in last place with two defeats. Harry Wood of Duluth broke even in two games, and Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia, Onofrio Lauri of New York and Harry Oswald of Pittsburgh, had one defeat each, the latter losing to Natalie, 125 to 72. Today's pairings: Afternoon: Durocher vs. Lauri; Greenleaf vs. Ponzi. Evening: Natalie vs. Wood; Taberski vs. Concannon.

Baseball leagues in various classes will be organized by the Gimbel Brothers department store, the first meeting being scheduled for next Monday night. Teams interested are asked to attend the meeting.

DUQUESNE COUNCIL, HOST, IS SECOND

M. ROLL in the singles, Luther and Connor in the doubles, and New Kensington No. 1 in the five-man team event were the pace-setters in the second annual national K. of C. duckpin tournament today as the third day of pin toppling got under way on the Duquesne Council alleys in Oakland.

Roll rolled right away from the field in the singles event with a three-game total of 540. He is leading by a margin of 39 pins and he is regarded as almost a certain prize winner. The race in the doubles is extremely close. Luther and Connor, in first place with 949, are leading M. Ostroski and B. Ostroski by only one pin. New Kensington No. 1, in the lead with 2221, and Duquesne No. 5 were the only teams to top the 2200 mark in the five-men event. The leaders:

SPORT COMMENT—By James J. Long

mation from the coast, Brame has impressed the Pirate management very favorably in the camp work up to date.

Besides being master of a deceptive knuckle ball, he is said to have all the other stuff that a pitcher needs in order to get by in the big show, and from every angle, in a mechanical sense, at least—it is too early to get a line on some other essential items—he is reported to shape up like a real pitcher.

BRAME'S showing during the conditioning activities of the Buccaneers is in line with his performances in the minors. Hurling for Jersey City in the International League last year he made a record of 18 victories against only nine defeats. In other words, he won two out of every three games pitched, on an average.

That would be a very creditable mark for a pitcher under the best of conditions, even if he were on a pennant-winning club, but Brame's feat was all the more remarkable because he was flinging for a seventh-place club that lost 100 games, and that would have been last if Reading had not almost fallen out of the league by losing 123 decisions.

Winning 18 games against only nine lost, with such a weak club as Jersey City behind him, indicated more than ordinary pitching qualities in Brame.

Eddie Farrell.

MOREOVER, five of the new Pirates' 18 victories were shutouts. Only one other pitcher in the International League was able to pitch five runless games last season, he being Leo Mangum, a former Buccaneer, now with the Giants. Whereas Brame had a wabbly seventh-place club behind him, Mangum had the support of the strong Buffalo pennant winners.

Brame's earned run average was only 3.11 per nine innings. In effectiveness he ranked fifth and in percentage of games won he ranked eighth among 34 hurlers who pitched 10 or more complete contests.

All in all the Corsair recruit looks like quite a pitcher.

THEY'RE here today and gone tomorrow in baseball.

A poll of the Giant camp shows that of the 27 players present only 13 were working out under John McGraw's direction last spring.

They are Catcher Johnny Cummings of the North Side; Pitcher Barnes, Fitzsimmons, Henry, Clarkson and Porter; Infielders Terry, Cohen, Jackson, Lindstrom and Reese, and Outfielders Harper and Ott.

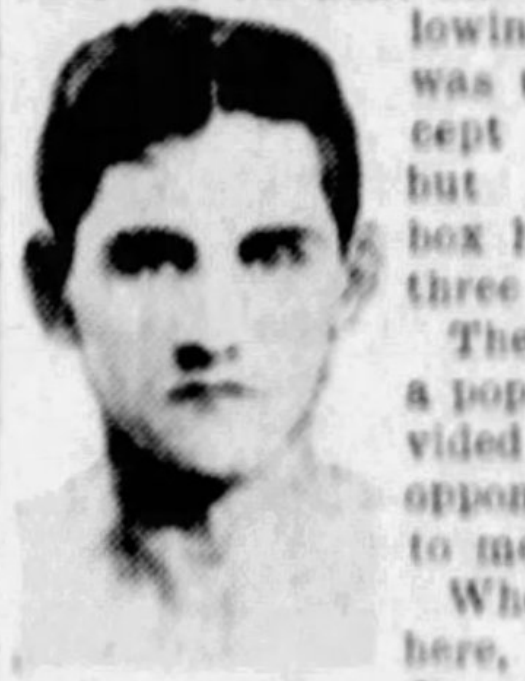
And of this number Cohen and Porter were not carried through the season, but were farmed out, so that only 11 have remained steadily with the club for one year.

TWELVE months ago any fan would have been willing to bet a red apple that Rogers Hornsby and Burleigh Grimes, Eddie Farrell, Kent Greenfield, Al DeVormer, Al Tyson, Dewitt Lebourveau, and several others would draw their pay from the Giant owners for a long time to come, but now they're all playing elsewhere.

Hornsby, Greenfield and Farrell are with the Braves, though more than one fan is surmising that a "deal" will be made for the return of Farrell to fill the second-base hole in the New York lineup before the season is over; Grimes is with the Pirates, DeVormer has been shipped to Toledo, and Lebourveau and Tyson also were sent to the minors, only to be bought back by the Athletics and Robins, respectively.

PITTSBURGH fight fans may see Pete Latzo in action again before the indoor boxing season ends.

It is understood that the Motor Square management wanted to book Pete for its next show or the following one. Latzo was unable to accept either date, but promised to box here in about three weeks.



Pete Latzo.

The card will be a popular one provided a worthy opponent is signed to meet him.

When last seen here, opposed by Jimmy Jones on January 24, 1927, Latzo was welterweight champion of the world. Less than five months later, or on June 3, he lost the welter title to Joe Dundee on a decision. Since then Pete has grown into the middleweight class, and he is after Mickey Walker's crown.

AS RECENTLY announced, Latzo has placed himself under the managerial wing of Jimmy Johnston. Heretofore Pete's brother handled his affairs.

Johnston has made some queer contracts. He took Mike McTigue with the understanding that he would make him light heavyweight champion again or forfeit all pay. He made good and put Mike back on the throne until Tommy Loughran knocked him off.

Only recently Jimmy accepted 10 per cent of Jack Sharkey's earnings to act as "advisory manager."

THE veteran pilot wants it understood that his new pact with Latzo is not a 10 per cent affair. He is to get 33 1-3 per cent of all that Pete rakes in.

"I think I'll be able to close a middleweight championship match with Mickey Walker for next summer in Newark, N. J., where 15-round bouts to decision are now permitted," said Johnston.

"Latzo is a better fighter as a middleweight than he was as a welterweight. So far this year he has beaten Maxie Roseenbloom, who was rated as a leading contender, and also Paul Swiderski, a pretty good young heavyweight.

"Pete is not yet 26 years old, and there's no reason why he can't move into the middleweight title, just as Walker did. The only reason he lost to Dundee is because it murdered him to make the weight."

PITT ENTERS MEET

The University of Pittsburgh swimming team will compete in the Pittsburgh Aquatic Club gala at the Pittsburgh Natatorium next Monday night. Coach Pat Carr's natators have been making a fine collegiate record this winter and should give a good account of themselves in the P. A. C. gala.

TROJANS WIN TITLE

BROWN ROOKIES SHINE

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 7.—Three rookies from the Tulsa Western League club have been assigned to regular berths for the St. Louis Browns first exhibition game with the Cincinnati Reds here Saturday. Brannon and Kress at second and short, respectively, have practically cinched those two berths, and Bennett, in the absence of Heinie Manush, is making a real bid for the rightfield job.

WHITE SOX STARS ABSENT

SHREVEPORT, La., March 7.—(INS.)—A conspicuous absence list is still noted at the White Sox camp here. Prominent among those yet unaccounted for are Bib Falk, Johnny Mostil, Bill Barrett, Bill Hunnefield and Charley Barnabe. Manager Schalk says he is not worried, since his rookies are developing so rapidly. He said Falk is working out in Texas and should check in at any time. Concerning the others he had no comment.

PHILS MEET ATHLETICS

FT. MYERS, Fla., March 7.—(INS.)—The series to determine the baseball championship of Philadelphia will begin here this afternoon when the 1928 edition of the Phillies clash with Connie Mack's Athletics.

ALL-STAR CARD AT MOTOR SQ.

Pete Petrolle, brother of Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, and Tug Phillips of Homewood will box the main bout of an all-star card of four eight-round bouts at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, Matchmaker Johnny Ray announced today.

Petrolle and Phillips recently fought a sensational 10-round draw in Erie and the promoters of that town have been trying to rematch them. Last Monday night, at Motor Square Garden, Phillips knocked out Jess Hoak of McKeesport in the seventh round.

Encouraging Analysis of Conditions and Prospects

By B. C. FORBES

ON THE TRAIN, March 7.

IF YOU are inclined to turn pessimistic, as apparently is now becoming the fashion, first read the following carefully reasoned analysis of agricultural, industrial, political and mental conditions which I have obtained from President L. A. Downs of the Illinois Central System.

THE Illinois Central has extensive and important ramifications down through the Middle West to the Gulf of Mexico. President Downs thus has first-hand information covering vital sections of the country. And as he formerly was president of the Central of Georgia, he is especially well equipped to grasp and interpret what's actually what through the South.

President Downs kindly set down the following for readers of this column:

"A thoughtful survey of business conditions as they bear upon prospects for the future leads to these general conclusions:

"That business as a whole, notwithstanding admitted exceptions in individual instances, is fundamentally sound.

"That the dark spots which have appeared in the business picture in the recent past are mostly transitory in nature.

"That there is a marked predominance of favorable factors in the general situation.

"That there is no cause for apprehension over the prospects for business as whole in the near future.

"I BELIEVE we can disregard the election year bugaboo. Belief that election year is necessarily a bad year for business has happily gone out of style, and, since the matter is chiefly psychological, that is even more important than the fact that there is no reason to be fearful that the 1928 election is likely to have any material effect upon business. Such progress in our economic thinking is worthwhile progress.

"ONE of the most significant developments has been the substantial improvement in the condition of agriculture. The serious predicament in which a large and increasingly important part of our country found itself as a result of the great overproduction of cotton in 1926 and the disastrous floods of 1927 has been partly alleviated. Good prices prevailed for the 1927 cotton crop, so that it brought the growers an aggregate return greater than in 1926.

"Elsewhere agriculture has made appreciable gains through good crops and better prices—and there have been decreases in the prices of many non-agricultural products. This improvement is already reflected in the upward trend of mail-order sales and a heightened demand for farm implements and machinery. As time goes on the effects should have a stimulating and heartening influence upon the whole fabric of business.

"The great progress the South has made in diversification, not only of agriculture, but of all economic activity, is important. Cotton is still the chief farm crop in most parts, but from year to year it constitutes a smaller and smaller part of the South's total income. The development of mining, manufacturing and industry in general, and the substantial progress made in diversified cropping, dairy farming and fruit and vegetable culture, have helped to place the South on a broad and stable economic foundation.

"Another encouraging factor is that the volume of our foreign commerce has been growing faster than that of the rest of the world. With economic conditions throughout the world showing steady improvement, our foreign commerce should continue to expand.

"Encouragement is also found in the fact that the railroads are providing the American public with the speediest, the most reliable, and relatively speaking, the cheapest freight and passenger service in their history.

"Other factors which indicate America's fundamentally sound condition at present are the amicable relations which generally prevail between men and managements, the employment of labor at what is relatively the highest wage scale on record, the ability readily to finance business undertakings of demonstrable merit, and the large volume of construction under way and in prospect.

"WHEN business follows the day-to-day needs of the country, as it has so closely in the last three or four years, an increase in consumption must immediately be reflected in increased business activity. We are, therefore, assured of having business sufficient to sustain the economic life of our large population.

"THE 1927 net earnings of the railroads were much less than in 1926 for three principal reasons, a decrease in traffic, a further decline in the rates and the award of wage increases to large groups. That the public may know and appraise the facts, it should be clearly pointed out that the weakening of the railroads' earning power has an adverse effect upon other lines of business in the country and upon every owner and upon every employe."

DOES not the foregoing contain genuine encouragement as well as food for thought?

STEEL OUTPUT MAINTAINED

NEW YORK, March 7.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade says: Steel production is being well maintained with Steel Corporation plants operating at 90 per cent of capacity and independents averaging about 80 per cent while mill operations as a whole have ceased to expand and ingot output for this month is not expected to duplicate the record production of March 1927, there are increasing indications that the present rate of operations may carry well through April in contrast with the decline in that month a year ago.

The unfilled tonnage statement of the Steel Corporation as of March 1, will probably show little change following recent advances. The increase of $1 a ton to $1.90, Pittsburgh, on plates, shapes and bars is not yet fully established since some mills allowed their customers to cover for both early and second quarter needs at the previous price of $1.85.

Both of the Iron Age composite prices remain unchanged for the fourth consecutive week, that for pig iron at $17.75 a ton, and that for finished steel at 2.364c a pound. steel is close to its level of one year ago but pig iron is down $1.21 a ton.

STOCKS, AFTER HESITATING, ADVANCE

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP.)—Stock prices resumed their upward movement after an early period of irregularity today, with new leaders brought forward when some of the old favorites showed signs of lagging. General Motors continued in the forefront of the advance, creating a new high record for the fourth consecutive session. After touching 150⅞ in the early trading, Motors sold down to 148¾, but was back near the top by early afternoon.

Raising of the annual Rock Island Railroad common dividend from $5 to $6 and the statement of weekly trade reviews that steel production is being well maintained with indications that the present rate of operations may carry through April, in contrast with the decline in that month a year ago, had bullish effect on speculative sentiment. The only disturbing note was a further collapse in crude rubber to the lowest prices in several years, which was reflected in the renewed weakness of the rubber shares.

Hudson assumed a more prominent place in the motor group by advancing 3 points to a new 1928 top at 90⅝, or within 1¼ points of last year's top. Radio, after selling down to around 97, rallied to 99, one block at 11,500 shares changing hands at the top price in the early afternoon.

Public Utilities gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength with buying influenced by reports of expanding earnings and a restoration of confidence in that group on the decision of the U. S. Senate to refer the investigation of public utility projects to the Federal Trade Commission. Greene Cananea Copper, which broke to 113 in last month's reaction, rallied about 6 points above yesterday's final quotation to 122½. Peoples Gas jumped 4½ points and a number of other power and light stocks advanced 2 points or more, several of them to new high records. Rock Island common advanced 1½ points on the dividend declaration, but trading was unusually quiet. Other rails held firm.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Rock Island Raises Dividend.

Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific directors today established the stock on a $6 annual basis by declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share, meeting general expectations in the financial district. The action was considered bullish in railroad trading circles, as it reflects the opinion of the board that the record-breaking earnings of the company will continue. There is talk in some quarters that extra payments may follow if the directors' views prove correct. The St. Pauls were favorably affected by the Rock Island dividend news, but the main body of rail stocks was rather quiet. New York Central and Canadian Pacific have been prominent in recent rail trading, but took no conspicuous part in today's market. It appears only a matter of time until Canadian Pacific shareholders receive a substantial distribution as a result of segregation of some of the company's extensive holdings which have nothing to do with railroad operations. With its large ownership of steamship, hotel and mining properties, Canadian Pacific is in position to be extremely generous.

Coolidge Rumor Bobs Up.

The Street hears a new rumor that President Coolidge in the near future will make announcement reconsidering his originally avowed intention that he "did not choose to run." Inquiry of those most closely associated with Republican politics, both in New York and in Washington, failed to find any reason for such report. There is a very strong belief that the President will be "drafted" and that he will choose to comply with the commands of his party. The politician brokers are not emphasizing such belief at the present time. They expect that development to be the outstanding bull influence on the next phase of the general market advance and wait for conclusion of the correction of brokers' loans rather than to risk "wasting their bullish ammunition."

Cravath Answers Merger Talk.

Paul D. Cravath, acting chairman of the board of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, issued the following statement today: "The subject of merger of Westinghouse Electric with several other companies, as reported in the press, is one for the consideration of the individual stockholders of the various companies and has not come before the board of Westinghouse Electric in any way."

Harvester Nets $17.51.

International Harvester Company reports for the year 1927 consolidated net income of $13,353,215 after interest, depletion and depreciation, equal after preferred dividends to $17.51 a share on 1,059,492 common shares, as compared with net of $22,658,492 or $19.12 a share on 995,747 shares in 1926.

A. Legge, president of the company, says the trade outlook seems more encouraging than at this period last year. He declared the past year has shown some improvement in the agricultural situation in the United States, but the farmer must receive better financial return before the farm industry is on a sound equitable basis. Mr. Legge added that the 1927 volume of business exceeded 1926, but margin of profit was smaller, due to higher cost occasioned by improved product without corresponding increase in sales price.

Nickel Earned $3.30 on Common.

International Nickel Company reports for year 1927 net income of $6,844,141, after depreciation, depletion and taxes, equal after preferred dividends to $3.30 a share on 1,673,384 common shares, against net of $5,558,267 in 1926.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 7.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 3 to 6 points on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool, and reports of a sharp advance in Egyptian cotton in Alexandria. The advance met some selling on reports of light rains in central Texas which some thought might spread into the western part of the state, while there was also favorable comment on the weekly report of the weather bureau indicating that much ground had been prepared during the past week, particularly in the western cotton belt.

Prices eased back to about yesterday's closing quotations in consequence, but trading was in small volume and the market was quiet at the end of the first hour, active months showing net losses of 1 to 4 points.

Private cables reported calling, covering and a shortage of contracts in the Liverpool market and said the advance in Alexandria was due to unfavorable crop accounts from the Sudan.

The market remained quiet later, prices easing off slightly under small selling orders, which appeared to be encouraged by the Texas rain prospect. May declined to 18.51c and October to 18.00c, making net losses of about 4 to 8 points, and the market was within a point or two of the lowest at midday.

WESTINGHOUSE STOCKS UP

Carnegie Metals was the active issue on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, selling up to a new high for current trading with several thousand shares changing hands on the movement.

The upswing today was a carry-through from last night when the stock took a sudden spurt in response to buying orders from sources said to be informed on the company's activities. Incidentally, Greene Cananea Copper executed a wide swing in New York. Greene is reported to have made a rich ore strike on its holdings in Cananea, Mexico, and there have been rumors that Carnegie Metals plans extending the depth of an abandoned property it owns in that territory.

The Westinghouse issues were conspicuously strong in New York but there was very little trading in the stocks here. Buying in New York was attributed to the merger story envolving these companies, Baldwin Locomotive and other equipment concerns.

Fuels were dull here as well as in New York. Standard Sanitary was in fair demand most of the session. There was no noticeable changes in the glass section.

BUGS BAER Says

C. C. PYLE has accomplished more queer things than a monkey on a grapevine.

He ran a plugged nickel into a financial panic, made Suzanne Lenglen beautiful and moved Red Grange from the back of an ice wagon into the driver's seat.

Now, C. C., who has the initials of an army pill, has started 200 runners from coast to coast.

ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

This sore-footed pilgrimage is known as the Bunion Derby. The boys will run until their corns pop.

C. C. is not running in the contest. He is strictly a limousine athlete.

This is the third day of the contest and most of the scooters are already running on blisters like balloon tires.

The oldest man in the transcontinental stampede is an Englishman aged 63. He refused to enter the contest until C. C. promised not to kick his crutch from under him.

The distance from coast to coast is 3,400 miles as the crow advertises.

If that isn't a self-inflicted marathon then the Rocky Mountains are not bunkers.

After this contest is over C. C. has another bright idea. He is going to promote a sack race across the Atlantic.

The promenade of aching arches is merely a hobby with C. C. He likes to see 200 tongues hanging out. The only smart guy in the race is C. C.'s chauffeur.

C. C. had better keep that mob out of the Indian country. The Hopis and the Mojaves still have their bows and arrows left.

When 200 ankle excursionists start hoofing over a Missouri corn field we can see the farmers getting into the Olympic contest with guns loaded with rock salt.

The race is pleasant news for New York chiropodists. But it has caused a strike among the Red Cross nurses, who claim that the Geneva agreement does not compel them to chase a body over 3,000 miles.

They're willing to clean up battlefields, but they refuse to run themselves bowlegged trying to give first aid in one of C. C.'s skirmishes.

The winner gets twenty-five grand when he reaches New York. After running through the desert, climbing the Rockies and swimming the Mississippi, we hope that Jimmy Walker meets him on the bottom step of City Hall instead of the top.

Binks—"Why doesn't your wife sing to the baby when it cries?"

Jinks—"She used to, but the neighbors said they would prefer to hear the baby cry."

Give Her a Chance

A man told his wife that she did not appreciate a good husband.

"Well," she replied, "I might if I had one."

A Give-Away

The Father (admonishing his children): "Well, I can tell you there is one thing I never did when I was a small boy."

His Mother (interrupting): "What was that, Henry? Murder?"

She—"Pretty lucky for you, isn't it?"

The Camel, God's Best Gift

Savage Man, Savage Animals,

A BEDOUIN AND HIS BEST FRIENDS.

Of all the Semitic tribes, the Bedouins are said to be the most ferocious fighters. And the camel, according to the Bedouin's statement, is his best friend.

An Arab, asked "Why do you put the camel ahead of your holy book, the Koran, as the gift from God?" replied "The camel comes first, because without him we could not live and therefore could not obey the orders of the Koran."

These monster camels, towering above their owner who controls them with a rope fastened in the nostril, represent the race that has made travel on the desert possible.

Desert wells are ten days camel journey apart The camel can go twelve days, in extreme cases as much as nineteen days without water, and at the same time carry enough water to keep the man alive. But travel over the desert is a constant struggle against sand, heat, sand storms and death.

With the wells so far apart there must be no delay. If a camel is sick the owner will only wait ONE HOUR for him to recover and start on again.

He will wait TWO hours for a dying man to close his eyes, not more.

Marvelous stories are told of the camel's ability to find water and get back to a well that it has once visited.

An old story relates an argument between a female camel and a "sand grouse," a bird living on the desert.

The bird boasted that it could fly one hundred miles away from its unmarked nest seeking water and then fly back to its eggs in a straight line. The she-camel replied: "That is nothing. I drink at a well a month before my baby camel is born. Then I wander away many hundreds of miles And my baby when it is a year old can find its way back to that well."

That is probably exaggeration, but shows the high opinion that Arabs have of their camels.

Today the trip across the desert, that risks the lives of camels and all in the caravan, is made in a short time by high powered automobiles, with absolute safety, crawling over the sand with "caterpillar treads," carrying heavy burdens and threatening the camel and his driver with extinction.

So goes the world progressing.

Wives of Great Men

What is it like to be the wife of a famous man? Must she play second fiddle, cater to his every wish, soothe him when he is ruffled, be gay when he is gay?

Suppose, too, that the wife of a celebrity is herself clever and intelligent. What compensation has she for the possibly brilliant career which she must so often forego in the interests of the wedded state? Is she content merely to aid the famous novelist, artist, statesman, financier, as the case may be, with her sympathy and help?

Most wives of great men are mute and uncomplaining. From them we have learned little of the part they play in the lives of their distinguished husbands.

But every now and then the world learns from the lips of celebrated men themselves how much they owe to these wives.

We discover that their debt to them is, indeed, great. The wife of George Bernard Shaw, for example, is satisfied to remain in the background while her husband's every word and gesture is broadcast over the world.

Yet she has played an important part in moulding her husband's destiny and cementing his fame.

Margaret MacDonald, wife of the English prime minister and labor leader, proved an ideal mate to a man who stood in need of staunch friendship in his dark hours.

The wife of Theodore Roosevelt contributed largely to her husband's success by her sympathy and devotion. Yet she never put herself forward in the public eye.

Men of note reap the harvest of their distinction, but their wives very often have guided them into the path of glory.

Sensible Talk

Patriotism is a subject about which it is all too fatally easy to talk nonsense. The effort to steer a sane middle course between the rabid 100 per center and his implacable foe, the eternal carper and fault-finder, is as commendable as it is rare.

It is enormously to his credit that Assistant Secretary of State William R. Castle, Jr., succeeds in striking a happy balance between these two common extremes.

In a talk before the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense, Mr. Castle points out that necessary as adequate preparation for national defense is, the great aim of the State Department is to insure peace. War is the drastic punishment of failure to do our job well.

It is unfortunately the case, as Mr. Castle says, that the 100 per center is a man who wears his patriotism on his sleeve, talks loudly and does little. He causes much harm by his tendency to magnify danger and his too great readiness to see danger where none exists.

On the other hand, the man who is dissatisfied with everything the American government does is a type of patriot as dangerous as the first. He proceeds on the assumption that everything the government does is inevitably wrong. "This kind of criticism," says Mr. Castle, "weakens the government in the eyes of foreigners, makes everything we try to do less effective. The Department of State was not established to protect the interests of Mexico or of France or of China. It was established to look after the interests of the United States, and it proposes to do so."

This is sensible talk. It is worth pondering over.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Mountain Cold

"For many years I have read your articles, but do not recall having seen anything pertaining to the question why high altitudes are colder than on the earth's surface, which is farther away from the sun. —E. S."

THE sun's rays are not colder, but (to an infinitesimal degree) hotter at high altitudes than at sea level. You get "sunburned" much more quickly on a mountain top than in a valley. The temperature shown by a thermometer exposed to the solar rays and protected from wind is higher on Mont Blanc than in the valley of Chaumony. But the air feels cold around you on the mountain. The reason is that the thinned atmosphere at great heights presents less obstruction to the passage of the solar radiation. The air on the mountain, absorbing relatively little heat from the sunbeams, remains itself at a lower temperature than the air below.

But, you say why does not the snow melt on the mountain top, as it does in the valley? For the same reason that you, yourself, when on the mountain feel cold, notwithstanding the blazing sunshine, especially if you are either in the shade of a rock or of a towering "serac," or exposed to a breeze. In the full sunshine, the surface of the great Alpine snow fields may melt a little, but the melting does not penetrate far, for the brilliant white surface reflects back the sun's rays too swiftly to permit an accumulation of heat. The glare from the snow is almost unbearable and sometimes produces temporary blindness.

When the sun sets on high, snow-clad mountains, the cold of space seems to drop down upon you like a freezing blanket, abstracting the heat from the marrow of your bones. The ice cracks with the terrific cold, the stars seem to be shivering in a frozen heaven. The spendthrift air has parted with the solar heat as fast as it received it, and now has nothing to spare for you, but on the contrary, draws mercilessly upon your limited supply of bodily heat. If you cannot find a refuge hut your blood may be ice before the burning sun strikes the peaks again in the morning.

And yet, all night in the valley a few miles below the delicate Alpine flowers are sleeping in the genial air, and people may even feel oppressed by the heat. Th valley during the daylight received no more heat from the sun than did the mountain heights, but it had the immense advantage of being enveloped in a denser atmosphere, which not only became warmed by the passing rays, but received an accession of temperature from the "low-grade" or "long-wave" radiation shed from the heated ground. And if the night happens to be cloudy, the lower air parts all the more slowly with its accumulated heat, for then it is screened off by the clouds from that insatiable consumer and dissipator of heat—"open space."

You get a striking evidence of the effect of the thin air of the great heights in preventing accumulation of solar heat when you look at a vast glacier hanging down the mountain slopes, white and glittering in the sunshine there, but shrinking away and ending, sometimes abruptly in a huge precipice of ice, when it has descended a few thousand feet of vertical elevation, and entered the region of the denser air where heat is stored up as in a reservoir.

On the mountain it is as hard as rock, splintering like glass; in the valley it turns into a baby river, with waters made golden with mud ground out of the rocks by the slow, heavy creeping of the glacier in its cold mountain bed. The foot of the glacier, where it melts away, is not more than one twenty-millionth part farther from the sun than is its head on the heights, so that there can be no perceptible difference of temperature arising from increase of distance. It is the blanket of air that performs the seeming miracle.

Protecting Fishes

AN ADAGE tells us that there are as good fish in the sea as have ever been caught. But the truth is that sea food is as much in need of conservation as any resource on land.

When you buy a slice of halibut or a lobster, you pay a small amount for the viand and a large amount for past carelessness. The cost would be a fraction of what it is if years ago man had used scientific judgment in his fishing.

New Jersey is proposing to build a marine laboratory to guide it in protecting its fishing industry. Every coastal state needs one.

Gain Confidence

HAVE you given up hope of ever being able to better your finances?

You can't get out of the rut, you think, and you give up trying.

But if you don't get rid of the idea that you can't pick yourself out of environment, you are going to mire yourself in penury.

If you convince yourself that you are destined to remain a poor man, you are doing more than anyone else to keep you poor.

If you think you are beaten, of course you will be down and out.

The first step in advancement is to believe in your own future.

Have more confidence in yourself. Think "I can" thoughts.

Others have succeeded, why not you?

Put forth your best efforts—go the limit in trying to improve.

It is not yours to say when or how you shall succeed.

But it is yours to try to the utmost and never give up.

When you get rid of that conviction of failure you are on the road to success and things are bound to improve for you.

The Cost

GREAT is the price that the years have cost.
Beauty and youth have flown,
Rapture of springtime and love are lost;
Yet, it is life I have known.

Life with its wonder and life with its woe,
Life with its ceaseless change;
Brightness and bloom of the world I know,
And lore that is dark and strange.

Vast is the treasure which I have spent.
Now at last I must go alone;
Great is the cost, but I rest content
For it is life I have known!

Ye Towne Gossip

by K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.: I wonder if you could help me. I wipe up my car nice and clean and then I go to a gas station to fill up on gas and oil, and the attendants have winning smiles and cheerfully do their stuff, and while one is getting the gas and oil another one attacks my windshield with a sponge filled with whatever it is they use on it and then they lay the sponge on the top of the car, and use a clean rag to finish the job and I drive away, a big white spot on the roof of it where the man put the sponge and it sure gets my goat. Thank you. D. R. B.

PARIS, March 7.—The change in time somehow or other makes most Americans awaken before daylight for a week or so, but there is pleasant compensation for this annoyance in seeing Paris swim up from its sluggish well of sleep. It leaps to life like a trout to the fly.

The low hung clouds change swiftly from blue to yellow to heliotrope and then to that pale pink glow that has inspired innumerable enraptured poets. Wisps of smoke curl from a million chimney pots bristling on the roof tops. Ponderous doors open with a thunder of bangs. Shop shutters are lifted with a clatter.

Bread boys hurl yard-long loaves to the pavement from tricycle wagons. Early workers seem to be whistling, and the sidewalk trees are alive with chirping birds, Cathedral bells ring the clear call to early worship. Dawn comes like frosty starlight. And the east is slashed with fire.

The town bubbles in the early morning as though it might be an unquenched spring of gaiety—coltish and a bit untidy, but contagiously stimulating. You feel an eagerness to do something foolish—like turning a handspring in Place Vendome or playing tag with a gendarme.

From my window is a medley of impressions. A priest in one of those pancake flat derbies bicycles by with his robe ends straight out in the breeze. A black-aproned wine waiter is placing blue seltzer bottles on the sidewalk tables. An old woman whose back is bent with a load of firewood trudges along.

A glazier with his shoulder pack of glass rings a dinner bell to announce his presence. Perky midinettes are delivering packages from millinery and dressmaking establishments. Coal and wood carts with belled horses driven tandem. A swarthy man in a turban. Men who wear black gloves and white vest edging.

Near my hotel at intervals there is a rising hum of shouting that reaches a din. It comes from school children unloosed for recess play. It is typical of the Parisian zest for frolic. And it seems to be just as unrestrained among the elders. Life is a big whoop in the morning, and it is only at night when it is shuttered and barred that Paris seems brooding and sad.

Add similes: As futile as the effort of an American to open a French window.

At a quaint luncheon place today there was an example of French unwillingness to change customs. When the place opened 19 years ago it had 21 delighted patrons. Today the proprietor will never serve more than 21. Bribery or cajolery is useless. The method is first come, first served, and there is double the favored number turned away. One is not permitted to order, but must take what is served, and this proves a constant surprise. To the French the cocktail has always been anathema, although it is served in most places, but not here. The customary white wine is served with fish and red with meat, but only a single glass to each. You cannot buy or beg more. You are elegantly fed, but you are given the impression the proprietor is condescending to serve you.

The Paris of great value at low prices is no more. Clothes for men and women are about as expensive as in New York, and custom duty makes them a luxury. The tariff at first-class hotels is the same as in New York, plus the various taxes, and the laughable 10 per cent exacted for tipping. The only thing remaining cheap is taxi fare and the impertinence you suffer at the hands of the drivers does not compensate for the cheapness. The shops are empty, although general financial conditions in France are good.

It was interesting to watch what is comparable to our city salesman call on the proprietor of a barber shop. He shook hands all around, discussed family matters with each, offered cigarets, told a story or so, and I rather expected them to snap into a waltz. Finally he touched upon the need of barber supplies, and finding no need, shook hands all around again and departed. A good time was had by all.

Honest Men

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

There are some people who are just naturally honest. They live up to their contracts and do not seek to break them.

They are not always considering the letter of the law, but have an inward letter that they obey.

It is refreshing to meet these people. They renew your faith in human nature.

Some one has said the honest man has the advantage over the dishonest one because the honest man knows there is one honest man in the world, while the dishonest man does not know there are any.

A lawyer named Gavin McNab died the other day in San Francisco. In his will we find two bequests, one to Mrs. Elkins of $35,000 and another of $5,000 to Joseph Finnell.

The money was bequeathed in each instance because the people had lost money on account of advice given them by Attorney McNab.

He was under no obligation to return this money, but he just felt better for doing it.

The explanation is simple.

The man was honest.

And he wasn't honest because he had to be, but just because he was

The other instance is that of Rueben H. Donnelly, millionaire head of a publishing company.

Twenty-two years ago Mr. Donnelly's company passed through bankruptcy. He afterwards made good, is now 68 years old, and has some money.

He has voluntarily made good all the debts that were wiped out by bankruptcy.

Some of the creditors held claims for only small amounts, but they were in the humbler walks of life and in many cases a little money meant a good deal to them.

Now he is taking care of these little fellows.

There was one man who had a claim of $13 when the house went into bankruptcy. That was in 1905. He got his check for $33.75, which is plus interest for 22 years.

Mr. Donnelly said in his letter to the old creditors, "While the unpaid balance does not constitute a legal claim, I have always considered it a moral one."

It is a comfort to know that there are some people in the world who cannot rest easy until they have discharged all their obligations.

Right Angles

The Devil's Language

CARLYLE calls sarcasm the language of the Devil.

As I recall my last confabulation with his barbed-tailed majesty, I think the great Scot has it right.

Sarcasm literally means to tear the flesh. It is a jungle word, a figure of speech of wolves and tigers.

There is a whole tong of culprit words which always occupies the same cell—sarcasm, irony, innuendo, insinuation, persiflage, raillery, billingsgate, defamation, libel, diatribe, slander.

What a pigsty group they are! What an oracular Mafia!

Call them weapons if you will and lock up the outfit in an arsenal of inhibition and post the sign, "No admittance except to prophets of broad heads and deep hearts."

Dr. Johnson called patriotism the last resort of scoundrels. Suppose we call sarcasm the frothing of the man bereft of ideas standing with his back against the argumentative wall.

It is the coward's weapon. The brutal and uncultured strong depend upon it in a castigation of the inoffensive weak.

And yet sarcasm is a legitimate weapon in the arena where right battles with wrong and the Spartan gladiators of truth are in death grapple with error.

Voltaire maintained a private cemetery peopled with dead demons and philosophical cadavers whom he had slain in his sanguine combats with the fallacy and folly of medieval thought.

So that even those who hate Voltaire love him.

His speech teemed with sneers and the smile without mirth. But he strew the battlefield with groaning injustices and he officiated at the Waterloo of many a hoary superstition.

Very well.

But baptize your friend with a continuous downpour of sarcasm and he will check you off his calling list. Try it on your business partner and your shingle will call for a new legend because the firm's name will change like a barometer in a sail-shivering storm. Try it in your home and it will soon be only a house whose walls will resemble the empty arms of a mother bereft of her babe.

In the name of all decency why should one use the conversational tools of the damned? We are here to build a palace, not a lazar house.

When somebody said silence was golden he meant that the sarcastic tongue needed a furlough.
